THE BUSINESS CYCLE AND UNEMPLOYMENT.

(By Edward Lyre Hunt, Secretary, President Harding's Conference on Unemployment.)

Early in 1923 results of the first serious attempt to estimate the direct economic losses caused by crises and business depressions will be made public in the report on the Business Cycle and Unemployment by a sub-committee of President Harding's Conference on Unemployment, which has been at work on the subject since March, 1922.

The President's Conference on Unemployment in 1921 suggested that an analytical study of the business cycle be prepared and an attempt be made to collect statistics and facts as to the methods for offsetting the bad results of those periods of expansion and depression which have been characteristic of our industries.

A committee on the business cycle was appointed by Secretary Hoover, consisting of Owen D. Young, Chairman, Clarence Mott Woolley, Joseph H. DeLores, Matthew Woll, Miss Mary Van Kleeck, and Edward Lyre Hunt, Secretary.

The so-called business cycle is that recurring process of booms and slumps which affects industry and business directly, and agriculture indirectly. The solution of this problem is to top off from the peak in boom times and to temper an industrial crisis by acting before the crisis becomes inevitable. If it can be accomplished, the idea is to plan for the future by applying a knowledge of the past.

This business cycle is marked by peak periods of boom between valleys of depression and unemployment. The peak periods of boom are times of speculation, overexpansion, extravagance in living, relaxation in effort, wasteful expenditure in industry and commerce, with consequent destruction of capital. The valleys are marked by business stagnation, unemployment, and suffering. Both of these extremes are vicious, and the vices of the one beget the vices of the other. It is the wastes, the miscalculations, and the maladjustments grown rampant during booms that make inevitable the painful process of liquidation. The most hopeful way to check the losses and misery of depression is therefore to check the feverish extremes of "prosperity." The best time to act is at a fairly early stage in the growth of the boom.

The committee, from the information in the bureau's report, and from other sources, has drawn up a series of recommendations and a plan of action which the Department of Commerce will submit for a nation-wide referendum to business generally. These recommendations deal with the question of what part of the cycle is controllable, the necessity for group action, the importance of information on the trend of current business and closer study of business problems, advance planning, financial stabilization, public works, reserve projects and employment exchanges.

Financial and Economic Review of 1922.

By S. S. Fontaine, Financial Editor of The World.

While the world has begun during the last twelve months to make a reassuring recovery from the havoc of war under the reconstructive influence of four years of comparative peace, it cannot be said that the economic difficulties that beset many of the victims as well as victors of the great conflict have been composed or that the problems of lifting the prostrate to their feet, or restoring the social and financial balance of civilization, or setting to work along normal lines the productivity of the nations as a whole, and thereby re-establishing world trade and credit—the reward of labor and efficiency—have been solved. And until the solution is found the ablest minds in finance do not believe that full prosperity can come to any member of the family of nations, even to us, who have been blessed during the past year with abundance far out of proportion to that which has come to the greater part of our neighbors of the world.

In the restoration of sound underpinnings for our financial structure, in the reconstruction of our credit functions, in the revalorization of our securities to a marked degree, in the rehabilitation of our industries and our system of distribution and purveying, in the revival of our agricultural production on a fairly profitable plane, and in the reconciliation, generally speaking, of our major great productive forces, capital and labor, we have made great and satisfactory progress. And yet, while we maintain an attitude of aloofness from the control of the world prostrate, while we are content to remain mere observers of their struggles to rise to the posture of upstanding nations of the world, we cannot, in all conscience, feel, on the threshold of the new year, that we have performed the full functions of the first citizen of the world.

With Germany facing imminent bankruptcy, due partly to the inexorable demands of her ravished neighbor, now become her implacable enemy, and very largely to her own atavism and financial folly, with the Soviet Government knocking vainly at the gates of civilization for readmission and recognition, with the Turk standing at the moat of Europe's citadel with a firebrand whose flame an ill wind may at any moment carry to the magazine of the Balkans, whose explosions have heretofore shaken the foundations of civilization, neither the retrospect nor the outlook is sufficiently reassuring for us to sit down in snug comfort and consider ourselves immune from evils that menace our neighbors.

The Continental financial situation, as the writer has been pointing out in the columns of The World, is a canker that is gnawing at the world's vitality, whether we, in our heedless headlong rush to mind our own business, pass it by like the careless engineer ignores the red signal that warns of the open draw-bridge ahead. But in the long run it will be our business, and our very serious business, if we do not halt our pace to take counsel of our conscience and our common sense.

It may take time—years perhaps—months most likely—for the virus of this sore to spread through the veins of the entire political and financial system of civilization. Corrective measures, forceful as they may be required to be, are as yet available and may be employed effectively. As the surgeon with the greatest skill and resourcefulness, we must take our place at the operating table. We have grown beyond the irresponsibility of youth's estate in the family of nations. We may no longer absent ourselves from its councils nor put aside, pettishly or petulantly, the obligations and responsibilities of red-blooded manhood; we may not, in honor, or in the charity of our hearts, refuse, like the Priest and the Levite, to kneel by the side of the sorest wailing neighbor, to anoint and bind his wounds and bear him to the inn by the wayside, even if he has not the pence to pay his reckoning.

So far as our own domestic affairs are concerned, they have been gradually on the mend since the termination of the drastic deflation imposed by the country's financial mentors upon practically every form of enterprise through the rationing of credits and the placing of a premium on the commercial dollar, so prohibitive that it not only had the effect of restraining speculation but in many instances business initiative as well. It was a major operation which, though scientifically successful, has imposed upon the patient a protracted convalescence, from which he has only now emerged.

RESUMPTION OF BUSINESS ACTIVITY.

The years 1920 and 1921 were twelve months of depression, accompanied by falling prices, although the trend was full of irregularities and the readjustments, particularly of costs of production, were not of a character to bring about a compensating reduction in the costs of living. Now that the tendency of domestic business is toward expansion, we have entered the first stage of secondary inflation, which has found its expression in increased costs of commodities without, generally speaking, a corresponding rise in the wage scale of the producers.

The year 1922 has been marked by a resumption of general business activity in most sections of the country and progress toward a complete restoration of the domestic, financial and industrial equilibrium has been retarded only by the differences that have developed between those two great agencies of production—capital and labor. The channels of distribution were for a time seriously clogged by the railroad strike, while the country's productive energies were impaired very seriously by the great coal strike, from whose debilitating influences the country's vigor has not yet made a full recovery.

Our foreign trade has shown throughout the year the unfortunate influences of Europe's financial prostration, which has not only weakened her productive power, which is the essential foundation for the rebuilding of her economic structure, but has impaired her purchasing power here, which, when world balance is maintained, furnishes our producers, and particularly our farmers, a market for their exportable surplus. We have still further restrained these agencies of reconstruction by the erection of a tariff wall around our trade confines, which not only prevents our customers abroad from trading with us on terms of equity and comity but imposes a still heavier burden upon our consumers, whose shoulders are already bowed by the heft of the tax load.

Generally speaking, the prosperity of our country depends very largely upon the returns from agricultural harvests, one of our greatest agencies in the yearly production of new wealth.

The price index of all crops on November 1 was 17.2 per cent. more than a year ago and 40.2 per cent. less than the average of the preceding five years. The production index is about 12 per cent. more than last year's aggregate production and 0.3 per cent. more than the average of the preceding five years, 1916-1920.

According to a survey of economic conditions made by the National City Bank, the iron and steel industry is operating on about 80 per cent. of capacity, stimulated by liberal buying for the railroads, the building industry, automobile and implements manufacturers. It seems to have plenty of work ahead for the winter.

In the textiles buying has been stimulated by the rise of raw materials, wool, cotton and silk, all being in strong positions statistically. The industries are busy with capacity well sold up for several months. Merchants, however, continue to buy with caution, not convinced that the public will follow price advances far.

The building industry is experiencing the seasonal slowdown, but it is completely the greater part of its history, and the plans in hand and contracts under negotiation give every reason to expect that this activity will continue through next year. In the opinion of experts building activity has been the largest single factor in the business recovery that has taken place.

On the whole the outlook for business during the winter months is good, with a promise of continuance next spring, providing developments in Europe are not unfavorable. The fact cannot be neglected that the prices of farm products are dependent upon Europe's taking its accustomed supplies. The price level is not yet fully readjusted, but the gains made by farm products in the last two months have done much for the relief of that situation. Conditions still partake largely of the character of a rally, stimulated by shortage in certain lines. Many experienced observers do not believe that industrial costs are yet low enough to furnish a basis for stable prosperity.

GOLD RESERVES.

The extent to which the financial foundations of the country have been strengthened is shown by the heavy retirement of Federal Reserve notes in circulation, the contraction in the total earning assets of the regional institutions. There has been an increase of over $223,000,000 in our gold reserves. The banks now hold total gold reserves of $3,083,325,000. The following is a short summary of the increase or decrease in principal assets and liabilities of the Federal Reserve Bank on Nov. 29 as compared with Nov. 30, 1921, in millions of dollars:

While there have been some striking advances here and there in commodity prices, especially in farm products, which have greatly increased the purchasing power of the farmer who supplies over 60 per cent. of the purchasing power of the country as a whole, the index numbers of the price tables of 404 commodities, prepared by the Bureau of Labor, show an increase in the general level of only  $\frac{1}{4}$  of 1 per cent. These index numbers of wholesale prices are as follows:

|--------------------------------|-------|-------|
|                                | Oct.  | Sept. |
| Farm products.....             | 124   | 133   |
| Foodstuffs.....                | 140   | 138   |

| Miscellaneous.....             | 118   | 116   |
| All commodities.....           | 142   | 163   |

Comparing prices in October with those of a year ago, as measured by changes in the index numbers of the above groups it is seen that the general level has increased 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent.

The work of reconstruction that has made such progress in the country during the year has naturally been reflected in an expansion in activity in the security markets, accompanied by a marked revaluation in the prices of stocks and bonds. The average daily trading in November was 221,000 shares against 708,000 shares in the preceding year.

The following is a retrospect of the stock market as of Dec. 2, 1922, prepared by Dow, Jones & Co., and showing the daily average prices at the close of twenty industrial and 20 railroad stocks for the periods indicated:

|                      | 20 Industrials. | 20 R.R.'s.      |

ENORMOUS STOCK DIVIDENDS.

One of the most notable financial developments of the year has been the enormous distribution of stock dividends, which, according to a compilation made by a reliable authority, has totaled $1,007,000,000 during the twelve months. This movement on the part of the superprosperous corporations of the country has undoubtedly been taken as a precaution against legislation by Congress with a view to making the surpluses of corporations subject to income tax levies by the Federal Government. Under the decision of the United States Supreme Court, which is the existing law, stock dividends are not taxable.

Singularly enough, the great disbursements call attention in a striking way to the facility, in one direction at least, of the decision rendered years ago by this supreme tribunal of the United States ordering the dissolution of the Standard Oil Trust under the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. Financial analysts call attention to the fact that when the original Standard Oil Company of New Jersey with its thirty-three subsidiaries was ordered dissolved it had a total capitalization of $100,000,000, which was selling in the market for about $400,000,000.

During the last year, and principally within the last three months, seven of these independent units, namely, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard Oil of New York, Standard Oil of California, Ohio Oil, Vacuum Oil, Atlantic Refining, Standard Oil of Kentucky, have disbursed $781,324,311 in stock dividends.

REVIEW OF THE BOND MARKET FOR 1922.

By Burton L. Read.

Market values of bonds in 1922 have reflected a continued lowering of money rates up to the fall months, followed by a firmer tendency in money due to crop-moving requirements and increasing activity of business.

As reflected by the Dow, Jones & Co. average of forty corporation issues, the general level of bond prices at the middle of September was about equal to that of May, 1917, shortly after America's declaration of war against Germany, and more than twenty points above the low mark of May, 1920, which marked the extreme depression of investment values due to the war and ensuing over-expansion of credit. The change in money and credit conditions which brought about this recovery is shown by a decline in the interest rate on prime commercial paper from 8 per cent. in the summer of 1920 to 4 per cent. or less in the corresponding period of 1922.

Bond market changes for about eight years may

| YEAR.      | High.            | (To Dec. 1, 1922.) | Low. |
|------------|------------------|--------------------|------|
| *1922..... | 92.12 (Sept. 14) | 84.34 (Jan. 4)     |      |
| 1921.....  | 84.13 (Dec. 7)   | 75.11 (June 22)    |      |
| 1920.....  | 80.40 (Jan. 12)  | 71.96 (May 21)     |      |
| 1919.....  | 86.53 (Jan. 8)   | 78.39 (Dec. 16)    |      |
| 1918.....  | 88.58 (Nov. 14)  | 81.94 (Sept. 24)   |      |
| 1917.....  | 96.25 (Jan. 18)  | 82.13 (Dec. 28)    |      |
| 1916.....  | 95.67 (Nov. 27)  | 93.66 (Aug. 31)    |      |
| 1915.....  | 94.04 (Nov. 24)  | 89.04 (Sept. 16)   |      |
| †1915..... | 94.04 (Nov. 24)  | 89.04 (Sept. 16)   |      |

On Nov. 29, 1922 the average stood at 88.42, showing the extent of the autumn reaction.

A distinguishing feature of the bond market year has been the advance in all Liberty Loan issues to record high prices, in all cases well over par. In the  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. loans the apex of the rise occurred in July, two months earlier than the highest point of the advance in corporation bonds. Extensive range of the more active Government securities has been as follows:

|                                                          | High.               | (To Dec. 1, 1922.) | Low. |

† Refunding issue of 1922. Listed on New York Stock Exchange October 25.

From the prices of Liberty Bonds, as shown above, losses of approximately three to three and one-half points occurred in later months due to increased business activity, firmer money rates and the issue of a new refunding loan in October. On Nov. 29 the Liberty first 3½s closed at 100.08, first 4½s at 98.32, second 4½s at 97.84, third 4½s at 98.40 and fourth 4½s at 98.03.

Foreign Government bonds also have sold at much advanced prices, reflecting both the improved money market situation and financial improvement in the issuing countries. But this group as a whole has shown a wider reaction, owing to a heavy volume of new flotations, and in a part of the list, especially French and Belgian loans, to the uncertainty over reparations and unsettling influence of the Near East disturbance.

High and low price range of the principal Allied loans floated in this country is shown by the following table:

| BOND.                                                              |      | High.              |     | Low.            |  |

The two French loans touched their lowest points in November, 1922, recovering to 97½ and 92½ respectively at closing prices November 29. Belgian 7½s closed November 29 at 100½, Belgian 8s at 99½, United Kingdom 5½s of 1937 at 102½, convertible ten-year 5½s at 110½, reflecting the strong sterling market, and Kingdom of Italy 6½s at 93½.

Based on figures for the eleven months to and including November, total bond dealings on the New York Stock Exchange for the year 1922 will approximate $4,150,000,000, making a new high record. For 1921 the total was $3,086,000,000, and for 1920, the previous high record year, it was $3,887,000,000. These figures compare with $955,000,000 in 1915, the first year in which dealings reflected war stimulation.

Total for eleven months to the end of November was $3,836,000,000, of which amount about 40 per cent. was in Liberty and Victory bonds, including the new Treasury issue of October. It is important to note the changing ratio of Government bond dealings in late years. In 1917, when Liberty bonds first appeared on the market, the proportion of such dealings was 27.8 per cent. In 1918 it rose to 70.9 per cent. and in 1919 to 76.8 per cent., which was the maximum. In 1920 it declined to 72.7 per cent., in 1921 to 60.7 per cent., and, as noted, a further very pronounced decline in this ratio has occurred in 1922.

Dealings in foreign bonds, relatively unimportant before the war, have been steadily increasing. The total for 1922 may be estimated at well in excess of $500,000,000. Transactions in domestic corporation bonds since the year 1915 have more than doubled.

While the only definite statistics available are those of Stock Exchange trades, such figures represent only a small proportion of aggregate transactions, as the greater part of all bond sales take place directly between bankers or between the banker and the investor. The above record is mainly significant as showing the general trend in total bond investments and dealings in the various classes.

NEW FINANCING.

Bond and note flotations in eleven months from January to November, inclusive, 1922, may be stated at approximately $4,635,817,000, not including United States Government issues. The Government during this period sold Certificates of Indebtedness, Treasury Notes, and Treasury Bonds to an aggregate amount of $3,922,000,000, making a total of Government and other financing of about $8,557,817,000.

In the following summary of financing, other than United States Government, the total of State and municipal issues is supplied by the Daily Bond Buyer. Figures for corporation securities are based principally on the compilations of the Commercial and Financial Chronicle, and in the division of foreign loans the statistics have been prepared by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

For purposes of comparison the appended figures from the Commercial and Financial Chronicle give

| Year.     | Total Issues.   |
|-----------|-----------------|
| 1921..... | $4,231,320,000 |
| 1920..... | 4,010,048,000   |
| 1919..... | 4,361,188,000   |

It will be noted that the total for eleven months of 1922 exceeds that of each of the complete years of 1919 to 1921.

The record volume of tax-exempt issues, including State, municipal, and farm loan bonds, is a feature of 1922 financing. State and municipal issues have about tripled as compared with the output previous to the participation of the United States in the World War. This has been due to a variety of causes, of which one that has contributed largely is the tax-exempt character of such bonds, resulting in a heavy demand for these securities by investors subject to the surtax rates of income tax. Increased cost of public improvements has added to the amount of bonds issued; also the extensive movement toward construction of roads. An important item in this class of securities has been the issue of about $350,000,000 of bonds by various States for soldier bonus purposes, this figure being the aggregate as reported by the Bond Buyer, to Nov. 16, 1922, including earlier years.

Farm Loan bonds include two joint issues of the Federal Land Banks, of $75,000,000 each, the remainder consisting mostly of bonds of the Joint Stock Land Banks, with a small amount issued by individual Federal Banks. These bonds, like State and municipal issues, are in the tax-exempt class.

Of the domestic and foreign loans in the above tabulation, approximately 20 per cent. were issued for refunding purposes. The remainder represent new capital. In the case of United States Government issues the proportion is much larger. Compared with the total of $3,922,000,000 of new issues, as above stated, the Government paid off in the eleven months $2,432,595,000 of maturing obligations, in cash or by exchange for new securities. This does not include payments on account of Victory notes and other obligations in December.

While the above figures deal with bond financing only, a large additional volume of capital has been raised by stock issues. According to Dow, Jones & Co., the total of stock issues in the eleven months period to Nov. 30, 1922, was $710,272,000.

In addition to Government and municipal issues, bonds of foreign corporations have been floated in the United States in the same period to the amount of $136,115,000, omitting Canada, and $36,831,500 of Canadian companies, making a total of $172,947,200, and aggregate of all foreign issues, $801,674,700. In addition, stock issues of foreign companies amounted to $7,075,000.

Of the foreign corporation loans, $64,995,000 were issues of railroads, $8,761,000 of public utilities, and $99,190,000 of industrial companies. The largest foreign loan in this class was that of $40,000,000 for the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean Railroad Company. Countries represented, other than Canada, include France, Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Cuba, Australia, and Brazil.

PLAN FOR CONSOLIDATING UNITED STATES RAILROADS.

The Interstate Commerce Commission opened in Washington on Nov. 17, 1922, hearings in the matter of consolidation of the railway properties of the United States into a limited number of systems. The roads immediately concerned in the first hearing were those covered in the group systems Nos. 14 and 15 of the tentative plan prepared by the commission.

The following table gives the outstanding capital stock, funded debt and the total mileage owned, leased and controlled by the four companies immediately concerned as of Dec. 31, 1921. It shows an aggregate stock and bond capitalization of almost $2,500,000,000.

|                  | Outstanding Stock. | Funded Debt.    | Mileage. |
|------------------|--------------------|-----------------|----------|
| No. Pacific....  | $248,000,000      | $453,513,600   | 11,287   |
| Gt. Northern.... | 249,478,250        | 257,721,515     | 11,475   |
| Burlington.....  | 170,839,100        | 173,619,300     | 9,393    |
| St. Paul.....    | 233,725,100        | 574,240,055     | 16,106   |
| Total.....       | $902,042,450      | $1,458,094,470 | 48,261   |

Of the outstanding capital stock of the Burlington 97.09 per cent. is owned in equal parts by Northern Pacific and Great Northern, and the two roads guarantee an important part of the bonded debt of the controlled road.

The tentative plan which the Interstate Commerce Commission put out is herewith presented. The commission finds for the purposes of this tentative plan that the railway properties of the continental United States may be consolidated under the statute into the following systems:

SYSTEM No. 1—NEW YORK CENTRAL.

New York Central.
Pittsburgh & Lake Erie.
Rutland.
Michigan Central.
Chicago, Kalamazoo & Saginaw.
Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis.
Cincinnati Northern.
Western Maryland.
Fonda, Johnstown & Gloversville.
Lake Erie & Pittsburgh.
Central Indiana.
Pittsburgh, Chartiers & Youghiogheny.
Monongahela.
Boston & Maine.
Maine Central.
Bangor & Aroostook.
And all railway properties controlled by the above carriers through lease, stock ownership, or otherwise, except:
Lake Erie & Western and Toledo & Ohio Central.
(Both now controlled by New York Central.)
Zanesville & Western and Kanawha & Michigan.
(Both now controlled by Toledo & Ohio Central.)
Indiana Harbor Belt, now controlled by New York Central, 30 per cent.; Michigan Central, 30 per cent.; Chicago & North Western, 20 per cent.; Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, 20 per cent.

SYSTEM No. 2—PENNSYLVANIA.

Pennsylvania.
West Jersey & Seashore.
Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic.
Cumberland Valley.
Maryland, Delaware & Virginia.
New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk.
Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis.
Waynesburg & Washington.
Grand Rapids & Indiana.
Cincinnati, Lebanon & Northern.
Ohio River & Western.
Louisville Bridge & Terminal.
Wheeling Terminal.
Toledo, Peoria & Western.
Lorain, Ashland & Southern.
Lake Erie & Pittsburgh.
Central Indiana.
Pittsburgh, Chartiers & Youghiogheny.
Monongahela (see No. 1 also for last four).
And all other railway properties controlled by any of the above carriers under lease stock ownership, or otherwise, except the Norfolk & Western and railway properties controlled by it, which may be included in system No. 9, Norfolk & Western.

SYSTEM No. 3—BALTIMORE &amp; OHIO.

Baltimore & Ohio.
Sandy Valley & Elkhorn.
Staten Island Rapid Transit.
Reading system, comprising the Philadelphia & Reading, Central Railroad of New Jersey, and various others.
Cincinnati, Indianapolis & Western.
Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville.
New York, New Haven & Hartford.
Central New England.
Lehigh & New England.
Lehigh & Hudson.

SYSTEM No. 4—ERIE.

Erie.
Chicago & Erie.
New Jersey & New York.
New York, Susquehanna & Western.
Delaware & Hudson.
Delaware, Lackawanna & Western.
Ulster & Delaware.
Bessemer & Lake Erie.
Buffalo & Susquehanna.
Pittsburgh & Shawmut.
Pittsburgh, Shawmut & Northern.
Lorain, Ashland & Southern.
Wabash lines east of the Missouri River.

SYSTEM No. 5—NICKEL PLATE-LEHIGH VALLEY.

Lehigh Valley.
New York, Chicago & St. Louis.
Toledo, St. Louis & Western.
Detroit & Toledo Shore Line.
Lake Erie & Western.
Wheeling & Lake Erie.
Pittsburgh & West Virginia.
Bessemer & Lake Erie.

SYSTEM No. 6—PERE MARQUETTE

Pere Marquette.
Detroit & Mackinac.
Ann Arbor.
Detroit, Toledo & Ironton.
Boyer City, Gaylord & Alpena.

SYSTEM No. 7—NEW ENGLAND

New York, New Haven & Hartford.
New York, Ontario & Western.
Central New England.
Boston & Maine.
Maine Central.
Bangor & Aroostook.
Lehigh & Hudson River.

SYSTEM No. 7A—NEW ENGLAND-GREAT LAKES.

Same as system No. 7 with addition of the following, which otherwise with the exception of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, may be included in system No. 4, Erie. That carrier may be included in system No. 5, Nickel Plate-Lehigh Valley.
Delaware & Hudson.
Ulster & Delaware.
Delaware, Lackawanna & Western.
Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh.
Pittsburgh & Shawmut.

SYSTEM No. 8—CHESAPEAKE &amp; OHIO.

Chesapeake & Ohio.
Virginian.

SYSTEM No. 9—NORFOLK &amp; WESTERN.

Norfolk & Western.
Toledo & Ohio Central.
Zanesville & Western.
Kanawha & Michigan.
Kanawha & West Virginia.

SYSTEM No. 10—SOUTHERN.

Southern.
Alabama Great Southern.
Georgia, Southern & Florida.
Mobile & Ohio.
Southern Railway in Mississippi.
Northern Alabama.
Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific.
New Orleans Great Northern.
Alabama & Vicksburg.

SYSTEM No. 11—ATLANTIC COAST LINE—LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE.*Atlantic Coast Line.

Atlanta & West Point.
 Charleston & Western Carolina.
 Louisville & Nashville.
 Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis.

Certain lines such as the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie and the Central Vermont, which are controlled by Canadian carriers, have not been specifically included in this tentative plan because these lines form parts of through trans-continental Canadian systems in active competition with systems above set forth.

The carriers included in this tentative plan comprise most of the Class I. steam railroads, but very few of those in Class II. and Class III. Those not so included, whether industrial common carriers, terminal carriers, interurban electric railways operated as a part of general steam railroad systems of transportation or engaged in the general transportation of freight, "short lines," or others, will be considered as the hearings to be hereafter assigned so that in the plan to be ultimately adopted provision can be made for their inclusion in the systems.

Water carriers where now controlled by carriers by rail will be considered as being included tentatively in the systems in which the controlling rail carrier has been included.

RAIL ACT TINKERING OPPOSED.

The Railway Business Association at its annual meeting in New York, Nov. 9, 1922, adopted this resolution:

"Prosperity is here. Let us make it last. Recovery in agriculture, industry and trade has its mainstay in railway building. It was the replacement and addition of locomotives, cars, tracks, terminals and accessories which largely revived general business. Railway improvements must continue if the traffic is to be carried. Car shortages are upon us. October almost brought a new peak in car loadings. Shippers are confronted by congestion in freight, limit upon industry and sacrifice of farm products.

"The foundation of railway purchases is the confidence of railway managers and investors. For Congress to consider early amendments to the Transportation Act would open the door to assaults upon the policy which is designed to give the roads an opportunity to make sufficient earnings. To let it clearly be seen that no amendments of any kind are under serious consideration will leave all concerned free for the work of railway rehabilitation and preparation for the coming burden of traffic.

"We urge that Congress refrain at this time from all amendments to the Transportation Act."

GOVERNMENT PAYMENTS AND LOANS TO CARRIERS.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, in his annual report to Congress, listed the payments made to various railroads up to Nov. 15, 1922, for the reimbursement of deficits on account of Federal control. The total from Nov. 16, 1921, to Nov. 15, 1922, was $1,949,181; the grand total, $5,139,550.

The payments to carriers from Nov. 16, 1921, to Nov. 15, 1922, for the guarantee provided for in Sec. 209 of the Transportation Act of 1920 as amended amounts to $19,622,040 and the total payments to Nov. 15, 1922, amounted to $450,090,804.

The loans to carriers under Sec. 210 of the same act showed that the loans outstanding on Nov. 15, 1921, amounted to $238,208,184.

New loans made from Nov. 16, 1921, to Nov. 15, 1922, were $58,419,450.

Repayments during that period were $77,425,512. The loans outstanding Nov. 15, 1922, were $219,202,128.

The total amount of money that the Government has loaned out to the carriers was $317,886,667. Of this amount, $98,664,545 had been repaid up to Nov. 15, 1922.

Obligations of carriers accrued under Sec. 7 of the Federal Control Act, approved March 21, 1918, $55,867,000.

Equipment Trust 6% Gold Notes, acquired by Director General of Railroads pursuant to Federal Control Act of March 21, 1918, as amended, and act approved Nov. 19, 1919, to provide for the reimbursement of the United States for the motive power, cars, and other equipment ordered for carriers under Federal control, $49,999,800.

Obligations of carriers acquired pursuant to Sec. 207 of the Transportation Act approved Feb. 28, 1920, as amended, $116,646,500.

Obligations of carriers acquired pursuant to Sec. 210 of the Transportation Act approved Feb. 28, 1920, as amended, $233,991,830.

Labor Review for 1922.

(By John J. Leary, Jr.)

Developments in the labor world in 1922 fall naturally into two classifications—the spectacular and the non-spectacular—and, as is frequently the case, the non-spectacular was on the whole the more important.

Of the spectacular developments, the successful fight of the miners to retain the 1920 wage scales, and the unsuccessful strike of the railroad shopmen were easily the more important, with the strike of New England cotton mill hands against lower wages and longer hours, still on in the early days of November, a good third.

The less spectacular developments included the conversion of a mass of unemployment of peak proportions in January to an actual shortage of unskilled labor, in some sections and of skilled men in some trades, notably building, before the summer was half through, and a change in the wage trend from a sharp curve downward to an almost equally sharp upward curve. With these the "open shop" drive, always in evidence when the labor reservoir is full to overflowing, slowed down until it all but stopped.

For the shift in the wage trend, called to the attention of the least observing by an increase in the wages of the unskilled of 20 per cent. by the United States Steel Corporation in late August, the speeding up of industry and the consequent absorption of the labor slack and restriction of immigration were mainly responsible, with the fight waged by the miners a contributing factor of no small value. Had they accepted, or been compelled to take a cut, their reduction would unquestionably have had an adverse effect upon wages in other lines.

The shopmen's strike, costly though it was to the carriers, the unions and their members and to the general public, also contributed to this result—a negative value, perhaps, to those injured, and intangible to all others, but worth bearing in mind in appraising the results of that strike.

Taken altogether, therefore, and bearing in mind that the 1,100,000 who suffered large direct losses through these major strikes constitute something less than 3 per cent. of the number scheduled by the Census Bureau as engaged in gainful occupations, it is clear that labor, organized and unorganized, finds itself much better off than it was at the beginning of the year. This applies as strongly to the so-called "white collar" classes as to those who do manual labor.

Unquestionably the loss of the shopmen's strike has caused a loss in membership that will be felt for a considerable time to come, but the probabilities are that the close of the year finds the unions, as a whole, stronger numerically than they were on January 1, losses in the railroad unions being largely, if not altogether, offset by heavy gains of the United Mine Workers as a result of their strike, and gains in other craft organizations.

Official figures as to union membership are, as in the past, unobtainable. However, taking the 3,195,000 dues-paying members reported by Secretary Frank Morrison to the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor in June as a base, adding the 600,000 then on strike and not paying dues, and allowing another 600,000 for the "Big Four" railroad brotherhoods and miscellaneous unions not affiliated with the federation, the total union membership of the country as the year closes is not far from 4,400,000, or about the 1921 level when the federation reported 3,906,520, and membership in the non-affiliated unions was somewhat larger.

THE COAL STRIKE.

Of the two great strikes in 1922, the most stubbornly contested was that of the coal miners who, on April 1 downed tools in both anthracite and bituminous fields. This general strike, precipitated in the bituminous fields by the failure of the operators of the Central Competitive Field to keep an agreement to confer on wages prior to April 1, and in the anthracite fields through inability of operators and miners to agree upon wage schedules, was, when all camouflage was stripped away, a contest to maintain the old wage scales. In the soft coal fields, the desire of the operators was a return to the scale made in 1917 to which 26 per cent. was added in the 1920 scale fixed by President Wilson's bituminous commission. In the hard coal fields, the operators matched a demand for a 20 per cent. increase on the part of the union with a demand for a 22 per cent. reduction.

Both groups of operators stressed competition as reason for demanding reductions—the bituminous operators that of the non-union fields, and particularly those of West Virginia, and the anthracite operators that of bituminous coal, in the raw, or in the form of coke and gas, and fuel oil. Necessity of placing miners' wages in line with the wages paid other industries was also urged. Against these, the United Mine Workers, through their chief spokesmen, President John L. Lewis, and Vice President Philip Murray, urged the cost of living, the hazards of the industry and that, large though the increases of 1920 might be over prewar wages, the existing rates were justified because the prewar rates were unconscionably low. The chief reliance of the miners, however, was the 100 per cent. membership in the hard coal country and in 70 per cent. of the bituminous territory.

The strike began on April 1, when approximately 550,000 union miners quit work, followed within the next few weeks by 90,000 men in the non-union fields of Pennsylvania and West Virginia. The ability of the union to cripple the Connellsville coke field, non-union for a generation, and to take thousands more out of other equally strong non-union districts in Central Pennsylvania was the surprise of the strike, and in the opinion of many, the determining factor in enabling the union to carry its point. Whether this be so or not, it is a fact that important producing interests had confidentially informed official Washington that by taking one field away from the union the non-union output of the country with the stocks above ground April 1 would be sufficiently large to break the strike. This information checked with data prepared by a Government bureau but withheld from publication.

Actual figures as to the stocks above ground April 1 were also withheld, the total of 63,000,000 tons or 43,000,000 above the minimum of safety, estimated by the Geological Survey as of that date, omitting such items as fuel in transit, in consumers' hands and at the head of the lakes, as to make it comparatively valueless. The actual figures, as prepared by Federal experts, and published in advance of the strike in The World, showed 120,000,000 tons available. That this estimate was the more nearly accurate is shown by the fact that it was not until late summer, when the difference in non-union production and national consumption was far in excess of 63,000,000 tons, that the Administration felt called upon to intervene to force a settlement.

This too, the form of conference in Washington whereon the President proposed an immediate resumption of mining and the submission of all disputed points to arbitration. This was declined by John L. Lewis, acting for the miners, who shortly thereafter called a joint meeting of Central Competitive Field Operators and union leaders in Cleveland. This conference met August 7, when it was expected operators representing the bulk of Central Field tonnage would agree to renew the old scale, this to be followed by a like renewal in other union fields whose scales for more than twenty years have been based on that of the Central Field. This plan failed, whereupon a second conference, embracing operators and miners from all fields, agreed on August 15 to renew the old scales to run to March 31 next and to set up machinery for the making of a new agreement to be signed before that date. To this agreement operators representing an annual tonnage of 60,000,000 were immediate parties. Within a fortnight the entire union tonnage of the country had accepted the agreement, and Mr. Lewis had accomplished what the operators and a large part of his membership had felt to be impossible—the avoidance of a reduction.

Securing this, the union chief waived the demand for a six hour day and five day week framed at a national convention held in March and other demands of lesser importance imposed by the radical element in the organization. These demands, however, were later agreed upon by union representatives as the basis on which they will enter new negotiations in January, 1923.

IN THE ANTHRACITE FIELD.

Following the bituminous settlement, the union chiefs and the anthracite operators, headed by Samuel D. Warriner, resumed peace negotiations in Philadelphia, first meeting on August 17. Here the operators insisted upon arbitration of future disputes as a condition of renewing the old scales. After a fortnight's negotiations, in which Senator George Wharton Pepper and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis actively intervened, it was agreed on September 4, to extend the old scale to August 31, 1923, without conditions. In reaching this agreement, the fact that Congress was expected to authorize the appointment of a fact finding commission served to mollify the operators whose final proposal, prior to signing, was an inquiry by a joint board whose findings would be binding on neither side.

This board, subsequently authorized by Congress, was named by President Harding on October 9, and organized October 17, with John Hays Hammond, of Gloucester, Mass., the noted metal mining engineer, as Chairman. With Mr. Hammond on the board, the President named Thomas Riley Marshall, of Indiana, former Vice President of the United States; Judge Samuel Altschuler of Chicago; Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution; George Otis Smith, director of the United States Geological Survey, Washington; Dr. Edward T. Devine, sociologist, New York; and Charles P. Neff, former Commissioner of Labor, Washington. Each is to receive a salary of $7,500 a year.

Under the Winslow-Borah law, providing for its appointment, the commission is required to make a report of conditions in the bituminous industry by Jan. 15, 1923, and on anthracite by July 10. To attain the material for these reports, the commission is authorized to investigate all phases of the coal industry including, among other things, the advisability of nationalizing the mines. In making up the commission, President Harding declined to name representatives of operators or miners.

As stated by the commission, following its organization, its object is "to endeavor to get all the essential facts touching the coal industry to the end that practical measures may be found to insure a constant supply of this most necessary commodity at as reasonable prices as are consistent with fair wages and profit to those engaged in the industry." The policy of the commission will be to invite and welcome every suggestion and offer of assistance from the mine workers, operators, dealers and consumers of coal."

Settlement of the strike in the old union fields left 90,000 newly organized miners in the Connellsville and other Pennsylvania fields, previously non-union, unprovided for. In these fields the strike remains in effect, the union in order to concentrate its strength there calling off late in October, the strike in Mingo County, West Virginia, that in the two years it was on, cost the union $3,000,000 in benefits, upward of two score lives and caused the uprising of union miners in August, 1921, that required the use of United States troops to end.

The cost of the strike in the soft coal fields is impossible to estimate because of the overdeveloped state of that branch of the industry which, had there been no strike, would have kept practically all of those who struck in the unionized fields on part time, or less, most of the summer. In the anthracite part of the industry which has been practically a full time basis for years, the losses to the combatants, based mainly on figures furnished by the Anthracite Bureau of Information, were as nearly as can be estimated, $250,000,000. Of this amount, the loss in wages, is placed at $125,738,400. The balance includes cost of labor in maintaining the mines while idle, $35,000,000, lost profits $11,000,000, and uninsurable damage to mines, which, with losses incidental to inability to mine at capacity for months on some properties, cost the operators tens of millions more.

The loss to the public in tons of anthracite approximated 35,000,000 or about 45 per cent. of the annual supply. As this cannot be made up for months, the Atlantic seaboard consumers, chief users of hard coal, will have to do with something like a 50 per cent. supply of normal and rely on bituminous and other substitutes for the balance of its fuel this winter. Users of bituminous are more fortunate, the supply from union and non-union fields subsequent to the breakdown of the shopmen's strike being at a rate that threatens a surplus before the spring of 1923.

THE SHOPMEN'S STRIKE.

The shopmen's strike, begun three months after the miners quit work, was a factor in forcing a settlement of the coal strike, through impeding the flow of non-union coal from the South which at one time touched according to the United States Geological Survey, the high level of 5,500,000 tons a week. Threatening since the spring of 1920, when the roads were released from Government control, the dangers of a strike first became really acute in June when at meetings of the shopcraft unions held in Cleveland as an adjunct to the convention of the American Federation of Labor, John L. Lewis joined in the deliberations. Just what arguments the miners' leader used was not disclosed, but it was not until after his arrival and participation in their conference that Bert M. Jewell, President of the Railway Department of the American Federation of Labor and his associates served notice on the United States Railroad Labor Board of intention to strike July 1.

As officially stated, the causes of the strike were the reduction of wages averaging 12 per cent., effective July 1; changes in working conditions previously ordered by the board, and the practice of some roads, condemned by the board, of leasing shops and other work to private contractors to place it beyond the jurisdiction of the board, and thereby permit lower labor costs. It was an evasion of the spirit if not the letter of the Esch-Cummins act, under which the board was created, and as such was condemned by railroad executives not resorting to the practice as well as by the unions. Of these grievances, the contracting out and changes in rules were the most serious, the latter depriving the men on many roads of conditions they had enjoyed twenty or more years.

Actually, the strike was the outcome of the struggle begun by the unions before the roads were returned to their owners in 1920 to retain as much as possible of what they had gained during the period of Government control, including the national agreements and of the executives to restore as nearly as possible, prewar conditions.

In this contest, the roads had attained two general reductions in wages and changes in rules contained in the national agreements that cut heavily into the earnings of the shopmen. Abrogation of the national agreements had been approved by the board, conditional on agreements between unions and executives, but had not been made effective because the unions insisted on writing the national agreements into all system contracts. The changes in rules and wages ordered by the board with the contracting out practice previously referred to, and the refusal of the Pennsylvania Railroad to obey a ruling of the board fixing the manner in which employed representatives on wage boards were to be selected, led to the taking of strike votes and the decision of the union heads to resort to a test of strength. It was the feeling of many, if not of a majority of the union heads, that only by a strike could they prevent the gradual destruction of their organizations and the whittling down of wages and favorable working conditions. They further argued that the board was unable or unwilling to protect them, citing the contracting out practice and the Pennsylvania case as proofs.

Though notice of the intention of the unions to strike July 1 was served on the Labor Board a week in advance of that date, the board took no official action until June 30 when it issued subpoenas to carriers and union heads to appear before it and show cause why they should not be ordered to refrain from interrupting traffic. The carriers were represented in force, but the union chiefs, never legally subpoenaed, were missing, having departed for their several headquarters to direct the strike, a necessary precaution according to Bert M. Jewell, to prevent a headless, disorganized and disorderly movement.

The board, after some delay, did secure the attendance of two union heads who had not approved strike votes. One of these, Daniel W. Helft, chief of the signalmen, never did permit his men to quit. The others, Timothy Healy, President of the stationary firemen, issued the necessary approval a few days later. At this meeting, the executives agreed to obey all rulings of the board, including a majority of those who had previously contracted out work and who agreed to abandon the practice.

AGAINST ORDERS OF THE BOARD.

Ignoring the board, the shopcrafts in a letter to T. DeWitt Cuyler, as Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives demanded that the roads restore the second out made by the board and working changed by it. This demand was refused and no peace being seen, the board on July 11 declared the strike not against the roads, but against its orders and that men who took strikers' places were not to be considered strike-breakers and were entitled to official and public support.

The programme of the strike leaders called for all crafts other than telegraphers and train service men ("Big Four" brotherhoods and the Switchmen's Union of North America) who were not affected by the changes in wages and rules and the "contracting out" practice to down tools. It failed in that the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Men and Shop Laborers declined to authorize a strike of the 400,000 men under its jurisdiction as did the International Brotherhood of Signalmen with 16,000 members. The Brotherhood of Clerks and Freight Handlers struck only in spots. This left the burden to be carried by the machinists, blacksmiths, boiler-makers, sheet metal workers, electricians and carmen who quit generally on July 1 and the stationary firemen who officially went on strike ten days later. The shops of practically every road in the country were crippled and the movement of trains was made difficult by the walkout of car inspectors, but with reserve rolling stock, and the drafting of men from supervisory and other forces, the roads maintained fairly close schedules while rebuilding their forces. Only in the West and South were any considerable number of trains cancelled.

The strike leaders had not counted on an early victory. On the contrary, they told their followers and the public it would be a matter of weeks before the breaking down of rolling stock would compel the executives to surrender. Stated otherwise, they hoped to win by a process of attrition. It soon became apparent, however, that the roads were more than holding their own and rebuilding their forces and, abandoning their demands, the strike leaders on July 14 proposed to send the strikers back to work, conditional on their being given their old places and seniority ratings, the Labor Board to give re-hearings on all matters in dispute. The proposal was rejected by the roads, acting through Mr. Cuyler. They insisted that all strikers must return as new men and juniors to (a) those who remained at work and (b) men employed after July 1 and lose the preference as to class of work to be done, hours of duty, etc., that was theirs prior to the strike by reason of long service.

The next move for peace came when the President called both sides to the White House for conferences. Out of this grew a proposal, accepted by the unions, but rejected by the Association of Railway Executives that in effect was restoration of the status quo ante, with the strikers retaining all seniority rights. Following this, the "Big Four" brotherhoods sought to make peace at conferences in New York City, but nothing resulted. Eventually, on September 23, an agreement was reached on what has come to be known as the Willard-Jewell plan between the unions and roads that had been unable for one reason or another to rebuild their forces to their entire satisfaction.

THE WILLARD-JEWELL PLAN.

This agreement as published in a special circular by the Railway Department of the American Federation of Labor, dated Chicago, September 14, was in the form of a memorandum reading as follows:

"1. In order to bring to an end the existing strike of employees upon the undersigned railroads and relieve the country from the adverse effects thereof and to expedite the movement of essential traffic, the following memorandum of agreement is made upon the understanding, which the parties hereto accept, that the terms hereof shall be carried out by the officers of the companies and the representatives of the employees in a spirit of conciliation and sincere purpose to effect a genuine settlement of the matters in controversy referred to below. This paragraph does not apply to or include strikes in effect prior to July 1, 1922.

"2. All men to return to work in positions of the class they originally held on June 30, 1922, and at the same point. As many of such men as possible are to be immediately put to work, at present rates of pay, and all such employees who have been on strike be put to work on under pay not later than thirty days after the signing of this agreement, except such men as have been proved guilty of acts of violence which in the opinion of the commission, hereinafter provided for, shall be sufficient cause for dismissal from service.

"3. The relative standing as between themselves, of men returning to work and men laid off, furloughed or on leave of absence, including General Chairmen and others who were as of June 30, 1922, properly on leave of absence, will be restored as of June 30, 1922, and they will be called back to work in that order.

"4. If a dispute arises as to the relative standing of an employee or if any other controversy arises growing out of the strike that cannot be otherwise adjusted by the carrier and said employee or the duly authorized representatives thereof, the matter shall be referred by the organization, parties to this agreement, the employees or the carrier in the interest of any employee who may be aggrieved, to a commission to be established and constituted as hereinafter provided, for final decision by a majority vote.

"5. The commission referred to in paragraph 4 hereof shall be composed of six representatives to be named by the chief officers of the organization parties hereto and six railroad officers or representatives selected from and by the railroads agreeing hereto. This commission shall be constituted within fifteen days from the signing of this agreement and shall have jurisdiction to decide all cases that may properly be referred to it on or before May 31, 1923, but not thereafter.

"6. Inasmuch as this agreement is reached for the purpose of composing in a spirit of compromise this controversy, all parties hereto agree that neither this settlement nor any decision of the commission above provided for shall be used or cited in any controversy between these parties or between the railroads signing the same or any other class or classes of their employees in any other controversy that may hereafter arise.

"7. Both parties pledge themselves that no intimidation nor oppression shall be practised or permitted against any of the employees who have remained at work or have taken service or as against those who resume work under this understanding.

"8. All suits at law now pending as the result of the strike to be withdrawn and cancelled by both parties."

Under this it will be noticed that the unions abandoned the claim to seniority save "as between themselves" and the earlier position that any settlement would have to be on a national basis. The process of settlement with individual roads is still under way up to Nov. 15, 1922, though so far as any visible effect on transportation the strike, still on officially, ceased in late summer.

HEAVY COST OF THE STRIKE.

The cost of the strike to the railroads has been estimated at $150,000,000. Through it they succeeded, on many of the more important roads, in loosening, if not entirely breaking, the hold of the unions upon their shop employees and by the formation of new associations, or company unions, have in some instances paved the way to escape from the remaining provisions of the national agreements by amending or deleting rules held by them to be onerous, such as that forbidding piece work, and rid their payrolls of men who for one reason or another were objectionable.

The cost to the strikers in wages is estimated by the Labor Board at $177,535,524. It also cost many thousands of them positions earned by long service, and it cost the unions in membership.

Against these losses, the union leaders balance the claim that by striking they checked further reductions in wages which they assert, were due after January 1. The further claim is made by them that though the loss in membership may be considerable it is small as compared with what would have resulted from a policy of non-resistance, and that it will be much easier to rebuild the membership than it would be had the membership been allowed to shrink because of apparent unwillingness to strike no matter how serious the grievances might appear to the rank and file. In these contentions experts in trade union matters not connected with the shopmen are inclined to agree while questioning the strategy of calling a strike at a time when the executives of important roads were prepared and not altogether unwilling for a test of strength. In this criticism, however, the value of hindsight over foresight is once more apparent.

Compared with other great railroad strikes, such as that of 1877 or the Debs American Railway Union strike of 1894, the strike was remarkably free from violence. At such places as Bloomington and Aurora, Illinois, and Denison, Texas, there was much disorder, necessitating the use of United States Marshals and militia. In New York State troopers were used at several points. Charges, as yet unsubstantiated so far as the public record goes, as this is written, were made of deliberate wrecking of trains and the killing of employees and passengers. Disorders, however, were by no means general, and, as measured by previous industrial disputes, rarely serious, the one thing that more than anything else alienated public opinion being the desertion of trains by their crews at isolated points, particularly in the great western desert.

DAUGHERTY'S STRIKE INJUNCTION.

This fact, however, did not prevent Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty applying to the United States District Court in Chicago on September 1, when the strike was practically over, for a blanket injunction restraining the strike leaders, their associates and members from further interfering with transportation and, among other things, forbidding picketing, publication by advertisements or in the form of interviews of anything calculated to prolong the strike or interfere with traffic. In many respects it was the most sweeping order ever asked for in a labor dispute. Over the bitter protest of the union Judge Wilkerson issued the order requested by the Attorney General, which remains in force pending review by higher courts.

Because of this, an effort was made to impeach Mr. Daugherty in the House of Representatives, the Committee on Judiciary, to which it was referred, tabling the resolution by a party vote. Since then Mr. Daugherty has declared he will welcome a thorough investigation.

The promise made to the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way men of a re-hearing of their case, a large if not the chief factor in keeping their group out of the strike, was kept by the Railroad Labor Board, which in October granted an increase of two cents an hour over the July 1 scale, making the minimum for this class of labor 25 cents an hour.

In making this award the board estimated that it added $20,000,000 to the annual wage bill of the roads, and that through remaining at work during the strike, the men received "about $147,656,866 which they would have lost."

Within the labor organizations the most important development of the year was the announcement of William G. Lee that hereafter the "Big Four" brotherhood will not function as a whole, the trainmen and conductors' organizations working as one unit and leaving the engineers and firemen,

FEDERAL UNEMPLOYMENT

Proposals for the prevention of future unemployment crises and for the reduction of the normal number of workless men in the country were put forth by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis in his annual report. He said:

"Less than a year ago it was estimated that between five and six million workers were without jobs. We were in the throes of one of the greatest industrial depressions we had ever known. There was a grave danger that the mere operation of the law of supply and demand would force a drastic rearrangement of wages which would seriously depress our standard of living and radically alter our whole economic structure. The Nation fought its way through this period of unemployment, and today the demand for labor practically equals the supply. We are back at normal in our employment. But we have made the startling discovery that normal in America means that, approximately a million and a half workmen are detached from any payroll.

"Here we have two problems to meet—to prevent a recurrence of the employment depression which threw between five and six million men in idleness and to reduce the number of our workmen who are daily without means of livelihood.

"We have a powerful agency in meeting both of these problems in the United States Employment Service, which, fully organized and equipped, would have its finger at all times upon the pulse of the labor supply and demand of the country. The past year this service, with its co-operating agencies, proved its effectiveness. It listed between 2,500,000 workers seeking employment, and placed nearly 1,500,000 of them in jobs without expense to the worker or employer.

"The lesson of the past year seems to be not so much a problem of an actual dearth of employment, but rather one of inability of the American workmen to adjust themselves to changing circumstances. I would urge upon every idle workman that when there is inactivity in his trade he use every effort to adapt himself to some other line of work. Manifestly, the skilled workman can, if he will, do work of some other kind, but my experience has been that too often when he is forced upon him he rejects the thought of other employment for one or more of several reasons: He may not be able to secure as high wages in other employment; he may be under the impression that the secondary employment will lose him prestige in his primary occupation.

with the Switchmen's Union of North America, a rival of the trainmen, to work as another unit. This split, really in effect for over a year, had its beginning in 1918 in Lee's refusal to stand back of the now almost forgotten Plumb plan.

In the American Federation of Labor, the most important move was the drive launched at the Cincinnati convention for an amendment to the Constitution abrogating the power of Federal and State Supreme Courts to nullify acts of Congress or Legislatures by holding them to be unconstitutional.

The Secretary, after reviewing the work of the conciliation service, said:

"The limitations of appropriations have made it impossible for me to work out some plans which I hope I may have the opportunity to work out during my term of office. I believe with the creation of an organization such as I have in mind and with an appropriation of approximately $1,000,000 per year, this gradually to be increased with the growth of industry, practically every labor controversy can be adjusted and nearly every strike can be avoided.

"When the conciliation service began its work, 70 per cent. of the disputes in which its intervention was sought had already reached the strike stage. Recently conditions have so improved and the services of the department have been so generally recognized that less than 30 per cent. of the cases before the service have reached the point where work was suspended.

"The success of the conciliation methods of the department is adequately demonstrated by the record of disputes in which the good offices of the department, through commissioners of conciliation, have been used, from the beginning of the present administration, March 4, 1921, to June 30, 1922, a period of sixteen months. In that time a few more than 500 cases of strikes and threatened strikes and lockouts have been acted upon by department officials. Three hundred and forty-five cases were satisfactorily adjusted by the commissioners of conciliation, fifty-nine were adjusted by the commissioners of conciliation in co-operation with local officials and agencies, and thirty-nine cases were pending or in the process of adjustment. The period of industrial readjustment through which the country has been passing made the settlement of industrial disputes more difficult, but despite that fact nearly 90 per cent. of the controversies in which the department used its good offices were equitably and satisfactorily adjusted. Without doubt these settlements did much to aid in the stabilizing of the generally disturbed industrial situation. Nearly a million and a half workers were involved in the disputes under consideration."

THE HERRIN MINE KILLINGS.

The Special Grand Jury of Williamson County, Illinois, which investigated the massacre of coal miners in Herrin, Illinois, made its final report Sept. 23, 1922. It returned 214 indictments against seventy-four men: for murder, forty-four; for conspiracy to murder, fifty-eight; for holding, fifty-eight; and for assault with intent to murder, fifty-four.

The trials began on November 13. It took one month and the examination of 220 talesmen to secure a jury, which was filled on December 8. The opening speeches were made December 13, and the trial was in progress as this Almanac went to press.

The miners' union has raised a fund which will be used for the defense of union men who have been indicted. The union refused to co-operate in any way with the Grand Jury.

Of the seventy-four men under indictment, fifty-five were at once arrested and admitted to bail furnished in a blanket bail bond by prominent citizens of the locality of the State where the massacre took place.

TEXT OF THE REPORT.

The text of the Grand Jury's report follows:

"We, the special Grand Jury of Williamson County, organized to make an investigation of the crimes committed in and about the strip mine near and in about Herrin on Wednesday and Thursday, June 21 and 22, 1922, and heedful of the instructions given by Your Honor to make a thorough investigation of the facts and circumstances, with a view of fixing the responsibility of the killing of some twenty-four persons and the wounding of many others, beg to report that we have examined approximately 300 witnesses, and from their testimony learned these conditions:

"About the middle of June of this year, after suspension of the coal industry as the result of a strike of the United Mine Workers of America, the Southern Illinois Coal Company decided to operate a strip mine owned by it and located about midway between Marion and Herrin. The miners apparently raised no objections to the mining of coal by the use of steam shovels, but when the company began to ship there was bitter resentment on the part of the miners.

"The coal company aggravated this resentment by employing armed guards and closing the public established highways traversing the mine property and treating as trespassers citizens attempting to use the accustomed highways.

"The flaunting of arms in a community devoted almost exclusively to mining was conducive to strife. It was a challenge certain to be accepted, and for four or five days preceding the tragedy it was known by the authorities that a conflict was inevitable.

"The State Administration showed it undoubtedly realized the acute situation by sending to Williamson County Colonel Hunter of the Adjutant General's staff. This representative of the State testified that he recognized upon his arrival in Marion the imminence of a conflict, and immediately asked the Adjutant General to send State troops to protect the property and conserve the peace. This request Colonel Hunter renewed several times before the actual conflict, and was invariably asked by the Adjutant General of Illinois if the Sheriff of Williamson County had asked for troops.

"The Adjutant General denied his authority to order them into Williamson County except upon the Sheriff's request, which, as Your Honor knows, is not the law.

COUNTY SHERIFF A UNION MAN.

"Melvin Thaxton, the Sheriff of Williamson County, is the holder of a card in the miners' union and a candidate for County Treasurer at the forthcoming election.

"Either because of loyalty to the union or from fear for his candidacy the Sheriff would make no demands for troops nor did he take adequate measures to preserve the peace.

"From the evidence heard, the attack of June 21 upon the men employed at the strip mine was the result of a conspiracy which had been several days in the perfecting, the object of which was the closing of the strip mine. Sheriff Thaxton could not have been unaware of the developments of this plan.

"On Monday, June 19, State Senator W. A. Sneed, District President of the United Mine Workers of this district, received from John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, a telegram as follows:

William Sneed, President Sub-District 10, District 13, United Mine Workers of America, Herrin, Ill.:

Your wire 18th. Steam Shovel Men's Union was suspended from affiliation with American Federation of Labor some years ago. It was ordered suspended from the mining department of the A. F. of L. at the Atlantic City convention.

We now find that this outlaw organization is permitting its members to act as strikebreakers at numerous pits in Ohio. This organization is furnishing steam shovel engineers to work under armed guards under no agreement which exists by and between this organization and the mining department or any branch of the A. F. of L. permitting them to work under such circumstances.

We have through representatives officially taken this question up with the officers of the Steam Shovel Men's Union and have failed to secure any satisfaction.

Representatives of our organization are justified in treating this crowd as an outlaw organization and in viewing its members in the same light as they do any other common strikebreaker.

JOHN L. LEWIS.

"A copy of this telegram was posted and read in various places. Following the publication of the telegram from President Lewis preparations for an attack upon the mine were made. The hardware in all the cities of Williamson County were searched for firearms. The weapons were either taken by force or upon a verbal assurance that the local would pay for them.

"The men working at the strip mine were evidently ignorant of being strikebreakers. The men operating the steam shovel were affiliated with a union, even though unrecognized by the A. F. of L.

"The guards were told they were to protect valuable machinery and did not wake to the real situation until noon of June 21, when bullets were flying in the mine in such volume as to compel them to take refuge in the office and to seek safety under the steel railroad cars on the strip mine property.

"Superintendent McDowell telephoned a number of times to Colonel Hunter for protection and was invariably informed by the latter that the Sheriff could not be found. Finally Colonel Hunter suggested a flag of truce, which was displayed by the mine defenders, but caused no abatement of the fire.

"In the evening of June 21, upon the return to Marion of Sheriff Thaxton, a conference was held between the Sheriff, Colonel Hunter and officers of the miners' union, at which it was stated that the officials of the coal company were willing to discontinue the operation of the strip mine and the union officials were willing that the workmen employed there should be permitted to depart in safety. The substance of this agreement was transmitted to Superintendent McDowell at the strip mine.

ATTACK ON THE MINE.

"Nevertheless at the break of day the following morning firing began in a severe volume, the attacking party having crept up in the cover of the darkness. They were checked sufficiently to permit of a parley, and after a time a spokesman for the strip mine workers asked to speak to the leader.

"A long range conversation was held and it was agreed by the spokesman of the attacking party that safe conduct would be accorded the men if they laid down their arms and marched out with hands up.

"This was done and from behind the earth embankments created by the shovel operators came a great number of unarmed men and more from the surrounding hills until the forty-seven surrendering men were surrounded by the many hundreds of men mostly armed.

"The captive men were marched down the road toward Herrin in double file. After they had marched about one mile Superintendent McDowell, being crippled and unable to keep up with the procession, was taken by members of the mob and shot to death. The remainder of the captives were marched on the public road and were stopped at the power house of the Interurban railroad, about three miles from Herrin. Here a change in the leadership took place and the man who had guaranteed the safety of the men who had surrendered was deposed and another leader installed.

"The new commander ordered the captive men to march into the woods adjacent to and around the power house. Here the new leaders directed that only those in the crowd who had guns should follow into the woods, and those who were unarmed should remain without.

"The surrendered men were then marched some 200 yards back of the power house to the vicinity of a barbed wire fence, where they were told they would be given a chance to run for their lives under fire.

"The firing began immediately, and thirteen of the forty-seven non-union men were killed and most of the others severely wounded.

"The mob pursued those who had escaped and two were hung to trees, six were tied together with a rope about their necks and marched through the streets of Herrin to an adjacent cemetery, where they were shot by the mob and the throats of three were cut. One of six survived.

ATROCITIES AND CRUELITIES.

"The atrocities and cruelties of the murders are beyond the power of words to describe. A mob is always cowardly, but the savagery of this mob in its relentless brutality is almost unbelievable. The indignities heaped upon the dead did not end until the bodies were interred in unknown graves.

"On the first day of attack upon the mine two union miners were killed by answering shots from the men in the strip mine and another so seriously injured as to die subsequently from his wounds.

"It has been difficult for this Grand Jury to determine who fired the shots from the strip mine which caused the deaths of the union miners. When asked to present evidence to the Grand Jury which would tend to establish the responsibility, counsel for the miners' union announced that they would lend no aid to the Grand Jury.

"The Grand Jury has made no attempt to determine the equities between the operators and the miners in the strike controversy. It has had but the sole thought of bringing to the bar of justice the persons who committed the crimes which have brought such universal criticism upon the people of Williamson County.

"Without discrimination, we feel keenly the horror of the tragedy. We protest, however, against the intimation that all the people of Williamson County are lawless and un-American. The development of the mining industry in Williamson County and the surrounding counties has tremendously increased the population within the last decade.

"All of the adjoining counties contributed their quota of marauders, and the entire shame of the inhuman murders should not rest upon Williamson County alone.

"It is true the electorate of the county is responsible for those of its supine, weak and cowardly officials who permitted the disorders to grow from the desultory rioting into a hideous massacre. Those evils can be corrected by the great majority of the population who believe in law and order asserting themselves and no longer consenting to be intimidated by a disorderly minority.

PUBLIC OFFICIALS CULPABLE.

"The Adjutant General's office and the Sheriff's office alternated in passing responsibility, with neither taking decisive action to prevent disorders and protect property.

"The ease with which firearms were obtained causes the Grand Jury to believe that legislation should be enacted to regulate or prohibit the manufacture or indiscriminate sale of firearms.

"We condemn the laxity of the local police in the various cities wherein stores were looted for firearms without interference by them.

"We commend the State's Attorney of Williamson County, Delos Duty, for his courage and fidelity to his oath of office, and we express our gratitude to the Attorney General of Illinois, and his efficient assistants, who have greatly facilitated the great task confronting the Grand Jury.

"In concluding this report the Grand Jury begs leave to state that it has indicted some forty persons for murder, fifty-eight for conspiracy to commit murder, and your jury asks leave for a recess of thirty days for the purpose of completing its labors.

"The Grand Jury is deeply grateful to the many representative law abiding citizens of Williamson County for their assistance and encouragement in its efforts to enforce the law fearlessly and impartially."

BRITISH LABOR PARTY'S PLATFORM.

The British Labor Party won 142 seats in the British Parliamentary election of November 15; the poll returning 384 Conservatives, 142 Laborites, 60 Independent Liberals, 57 Lloyd George Liberals, and 12 others. Its parliamentary leader, J. Ramsay MacDonald, is leader of the opposition in the House of Commons.

The National Executive of the Labor Party on October 25 issued the following manifesto, which sets out the official policy of Labor for the general election. The manifesto is signed by all the members of the Labor Party Executive Committee:

The Coalition has been destroyed and a Conservative Government has been formed to carry out a policy of naked reaction. Labor is appealing to the men and women of the country on a policy of international peace and national reconstruction. Revision of the peace treaties, which have caused greater international wrongs than they removed, is the first step to peace.

German reparations must be brought within Germany's capacity to pay.

Turkey's relations with Europe and the freedom of the straits can only be dealt with in an international conference attended by representatives of all countries concerned.

Labor is working for an all-inclusive League of Nations, with power to deal with international disputes by methods of judicial arbitration and conciliation. Through the League of Nations an agreement can be reached for a limitation of armaments with general disarmament as the goal.

Labor advocates the recognition of the real independence of Egypt and self-government for India.

Labor demands the prompt and cordial acceptance of the new Constitution of the Irish Free State, and supports every effort to make Ireland united, prosperous and contented.

Labor recognizes the urgent need of lifting from the trade and industry of the country the deadweight burden of the national debt. It therefore proposes the creation of a war debt redemption fund by a special graduated levy on fortunes exceeding £5,000.

Labor will not penalize thrift, but will require some restitution from the profiteers out of the huge fortunes made in the war.

To secure the necessary annual revenue Labor advocates a system of taxation which will distribute the burden fairly according to "ability to pay."

It proposes an increase of the death duties on large estates and of the super-tax on large incomes. Incomes below £250 a year would be exempt from taxation, and there would be a reduction in the tax on all incomes under £500 a year, with a steeper graduation of the scale above that limit.

Taxation of land values will secure to the community socially created wealth now diverted to private hands.

Labor is in principle opposed to indirect taxation. It stands for an untaxed breakfast table and wishes to free trade and industry from all burdensome imposts, whether customs, excise, or stamp duties.

Labor attaches the utmost importance to economy in the public administration. But we do not believe in starving the public services. Least of all do we countenance the notion of economies at the expense of the poor for the benefit of the rich. Reduced expenditure on the children's education and health, the safety of the workers, and the well-being of mothers and babies is the costliest kind of waste. Any reduction of public servants' salaries paid to local authorities we believe an equitable reduction of rates in all the severely pressed districts can be secured.

Unemployment and low wages caused largely by the policy of the Liberal and Unionist Government have brought distress to the bulk of the working people. Labor's policy is to provide work or maintenance for the unemployed by reopening trade with foreign countries, by the national organization of production, and by a large program of necessary and useful public works.

The plight of agriculture can only be dealt with by a bold policy of reorganization. Those who produce the nation's food must not go hungry. Labor proposes to require the landlords to sacrifice rents rather than to ask the farm workers to accept starvation wages. We advocate the restoration of the Agricultural Wages Board to enforce an adequate national wage standard. We propose also the establishment of representative Councils of Agriculture to promote all-round improvement in the use of the land, the reduction of transport charges, the development of co-operative methods and the fostering of rural industries.

Revision of the game laws, improved school facilities, more and better cottages, increased hospital accommodation, and fuller opportunities of recreation are included in Labor's rural policy.

Labor is resolved to change as speedily as possible by constructive measures the social and economic system which confers unfair privileges on the few and undeserved hardship on the many.

The working of this system has brought unemployment and reduced wages to the workers, suffering and starvation to their families, loss of opportunities for full mental and physical development to their children, anxiety and worry to the salaried and professional workers and small traders. Labor means to bring about a more equitable distribution of the wealth produced by the common effort of the workers by hand and brain.

Our industrial policy involves the prompt nationalization of mines as recommended by the Sankey Commission, and the nationalization of railways, with an increased share of control for the workers, an improved Workmen's Compensation Act, and other measures for the protection of the workpeople.

We oppose all attempts to interfere with the Trade Boards.

Our social program includes a national scheme of housing which will end the scandal of a homeless population and replace the slums by decent homes.

More generous provision for the old-age pensioners has been one of Labor's constant demands, and is one we shall continue to press. We shall also urge the removal of the present unjust deductions from old-age pensioners where friendly society or trade union benefits or small savings exist, whereby thrift is at present penalized.

We stand for the complete supersession of the Poor Law and the institution of a system of pensions for widowed mothers.

Labor will strive to stop the continual attempts now being made to cut off or cut down the ex-service men's pensions. It demands the conversion of conditional into permanent pensions, and it will resist all attempts to transfer the mentally or physically infirm to the Poor Law. In our view the rule to be applied by the Pensions Ministry throughout its administration should be "Fit for service, fit for pension."

The Labor Party has always declared its opposition to measures which increase the power of the wealthier classes to frustrate the people's will. The Parliament Act must stand, and there must be no restoration of the Lords' veto.

Our policy is to remove all existing disabilities affecting women as citizens, voters and workers. Adult suffrage, reform of Parliamentary procedure, and control of Ministers by the House of Commons are included in our program to make the people's will effective by constitutional means.

In accordance with these democratic principles Labor must stand for the control of the liquor traffic according to the people's will.

The task of Government is to raise the standard of life and labor for those whose work of hand and brain increases the nation's wealth. Parliaments have in the past been too much concerned to protect the privileges and extend the power of the rich. Labor wants to increase the happiness and prosperity of the poor by better housing, better schooling, better living, better health, more leisure, more freedom, more opportunities for enjoying the good things of life.

We shall defend the school as we defend the home and we aim at providing the rising generation with full protection from harmful and degrading moral and social conditions.

Labor's program is the best bulwark against violent upheaval and class wars. Democratic government can be made effective in this country without bloodshed or violence. Labor's policy is to bring about a more equitable distribution of the nation's wealth by constitutional means. This is neither Bolshevism nor Communism, but common sense and justice.

This is Labor's alternative to reaction and revolution.

An analysis of the popular vote in the election shows that 13,643,000 votes were cast out of a possible 20,000,000, or approximately 68 per cent. Before the advent of Woman Suffrage the total electorate was 12,000,000 in round numbers, which was increased by approximately 8,000,000 women's votes.

The popular vote by parties was as follows: Conservatives, 5,378,634; Labor, 4,232,739; Asquithian Liberals, 2,614,761; Georgian Liberals, 1,572,204; all others, 343,870. These figures are for the contested seats only, which numbered 547, as 68 seats were uncontested, with an electoral poll of about 500,000. Thus the Conservatives are really a minority Government.

The yearly average index numbers for "all articles combined" in the above table includes also, round steak, chuck roast, plate beef, hams, cheese, bread, corn, rice, coffee, and tea. Figures since 1913 are based on 100 as the 1913 index number.

Scientific Progress in 1922.

(Compiled by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C. Gilbert Grosvenor, President.)

ARCHAEOLOGY AND PALEONTOLOGY.

Nell M. Judd, Director of the National Geographic Society's Pueblo Bonito Expedition, continued his work in the exploration of prehistoric Pueblo Bonito, in Chaco Canyon, northwestern New Mexico, during the year 1922. About thirty-five secular rooms and five kivas, or ceremonial chambers, were added to the 1921 series of previously unexplored habitations, leaving approximately one-half of Pueblo Bonito yet to be excavated. A considerable collection of valuable antiquities was forwarded to the United States National Museum, and entirely unexpected data was gathered in relation to the culture sequence at this vast aboriginal village. In the 1921 World Almanac it was predicted that exploration of Pueblo Bonito would disclose evidence of immigration from other centres of ancient human activity. Such evidence has now been obtained and it bids fair to alter existing beliefs as to the commingling of prehistoric Pueblo peoples in that section of the southwest where their characteristic arts reached their highest form. The work shows that the ancient village was erected on a slight elevation, which has since been buried by shifting sand and the silt deposited by wandering flood waters during the uncounted centuries that have passed since abandonment of the stone-walled town.

The Field Museum of Natural History of Chicago sent an archaeological expedition to Panama and an ethnological one to the Malay Peninsula. The former is attempting to trace the relationship between the Mayas and the Incas and the latter to study the origin and follow the migrations of the Malay and Negrite races. Another expedition under the auspices of the same institution sought fossil specimens in the Santa Cruz beds of Patagonia, in the Pampean formation of northern Argentina and amid the cave deposits of Brazil.

The American Museum of Natural History of New York put expeditions into the field in search of fossils in Snake Creek beds in Nebraska, in the Siwalik Hills of India, and in eastern Asia.

Excavations undertaken by the French on the site of ancient Carthage reveal three cities within twenty feet of the surface, the oldest that of Hannibal, the second that of the Caesars.

The Los Angeles Museum of History, Art and Science has assembled a complete skeleton of the sabre-toothed tiger which roamed the earth about 500,000 years ago. The bones were found in the La Brea pits in the city of Los Angeles.

Scientists of the Bishop Museum, Honolulu, who have been attempting, in conjunction with Yale University, to solve the mystery of the origin of the Hawaiian race, conducted work on the island of Guam to ascertain whether the Polynesian civilization there was antecedent to the Polynesian migration to Hawaii and, if so, what other racial influences submerged the Polynesian culture now extinct in Guam, which fact forms the basis for the belief that the settlement of that island was prior to the migration to Hawaii. Evidences of the primitive Polynesian civilization were found in the similarity of war implements unearthed in Guam to those used subsequently by the Polynesians in Hawaii. Skulls found in Guam also bear a marked resemblance to those of Hawaiians.

In an effort to unearth the history of the great mammalian families which were cradled in Asia and eventually spread to the ends of the earth, and of whose beginnings little is known but that told by the few discovered fossils of India, China and Burma, the Chinese Geological Survey is engaged in a study of the fossil history of China and Mongolia, with the aid of Prof. C. P. Berkey of Columbia University and Walter Granger, of the American Museum of Natural History. At the same time the Geological Survey of India co-operated with Barnum Brown in the Siwalik Hills, in Bugti, and in Burma.

The Jewish Palestine Exploration Society undertook the work of excavating the site of the Acropolis of Tiberias and that of the Obelisk of Absalom on the Mount of Olives. It also was authorized to make soundings near the source of the Siloa, in the vicinity of the ruins of the Wall of Nehemiah.

Prof. W. F. Hovey, of the University of South Dakota, excavated a number of mounds which point to the conclusion that the prehistoric mound-builders of the Mississippi Valley included that State within their domain.

Excavations at Civita Lavina, the site of ancient Lanuvium, Italy, brought to light a fine Roman theatre.

One of the galleons of the Spanish Armada was discovered in the mud of Tobermory Bay, Scotland.

In excavations in Bologna, Italy, parts of an old Roman arena were discovered.

The base of what is believed to have been a statue of Plististratus the Tyrant was found in Greece with the name of Endolios, the sculptor, still legible.

Dr. J. A. Mason, University of Chicago, located the ruins of what is thought to have been a great city on the Magdalena River, in Colombia.

On a brick dug up at Nippur is recorded the first loan definitely secured by collateral of which the world has knowledge. It was for thirty bushels of dates and pledged the borrower's field and fief estate.

A cave in the open veldt on the Zeerust Railway near Koster, South Africa, was discovered containing vast numbers of mummified birds and animals.

Harold J. Cook discovered a small molar tooth belonging to an anthropoid primate in the Pliocene beds of Snake Creek, Nebraska. It is evidently that of a primate hitherto unknown to paleontologists.

Excavations were continued by the Metropolitan Museum of Art's expedition to Egypt on the pyramid Amenemhat I., copying pictures in the ruins at Thebes was continued, and the tomb of Queen Aashait was further studied. She was small, stout and wore bobbed hair.

In Bone Cave, at the Broken Hill Mine, Rhodesia, a skull of pre-human type was found which seems to represent the transitional stage between the erect ape-man Pithecanthropus, discovered in Java, and the Neanderthal man. Other bones were also discovered, making one of the finest paleontological finds yet recorded.

Parts of a new Sauropod Dinosaur skeleton were found in the Ojo Alamo formations of New Mexico.

Excavations were carried on by the Italian Government at Rome, Ostia, and Pompeii. The latter particularly have yielded much valuable material.

The remains of a giant prehistoric armadillo of the tertiary period were unearthed forty-five feet under ground in the course of city works excavations in Rosario, Brazil.

Dr. William H. Holmes advanced the idea that Hawaii culture is the outgrowth of Buddhist missionaries who, he thinks, reached American shores a thousand years before Columbus, and many years before Ericsson.

A Harvard expedition excavated the tombs of a series of Ethiopian queens. Some had their attendants buried with them. In one case 388 retainers appear to have been buried thus.

A fossil fish of Devonian times, perhaps four hundred million years old, was studied at the Field Museum. It came from the bottom of the primeval ocean where Leroy, New York, now stands. The brain, nerve canals, arterial canals and ear structure were well preserved.

ASTRONOMY.

Prof. A. A. Michelson, of Chicago University, in addition to his work on measuring stars, spent a part of the year testing some phases of the Einstein theory. In order to determine the matter of the deflection of the rays of light by the sun, Prof. Michelson is proposing to build a steel vacuum tube a mile long and a foot in diameter, and to dispatch two rays of light in opposite directions, the one in the direction of the earth's rotation and the other opposite thereto. If they arrive at their respective goals in identically the same length of time the Einstein theory will have been shown to lack foundation in one of its vital aspects. Prof. Michelson also worked on the problem of the closer determination of the velocity of light. He hopes to measure this eventually with an accuracy down to one part in a million, in other words down to a fraction of a mile per second. He is now working on the immediate task of reducing the measurement of its velocity down to an error of not more than two miles per second. This will be of aid in triangulation work, the determination of distances between points, etc.

Approximately 2,000 hitherto unknown nebulae were discovered by Donald H. Menzel at the Harvard University at Arequipa, Peru. Of the 800 brightest, approximately a third appear to be spirals.

The 300,000 photographic plates made by the Harvard Astronomical Observatories over a period of a third of a century are now being used to determine the distance of the stars they record. This is done by studies of their spectra. With the nearer stars, where parallax measurements are possible, the two methods check up admirably.

The Australian expedition for studying the total eclipse of the sun on Sept. 20 had fine weather and got splendid sets of photographs. The expeditions that chose Christmas Island as a base for observations failed, for, although they had travelled half way round the earth for the six minutes of totality, the clouds obscured the phenomena. The necessary work has not yet been done to determine whether the Einstein theory was supported or shown untenable by the eclipse.

Prof. W. W. Campbell, of Lick Observatory, succeeded in measuring the amount of curvature in a ray of light passing through a gravitational field through the study of a series of photographs of stars near the limb of the sun. His work is said to bear out the eclipse observations of 1919 and to confirm the Einstein theory. The bending of light waves in gravitational fields, the distortion of the oval orbits of the sun's planets and the shifting of the spectral lines toward the red end of the spectrum in the case of light coming from stars of appreciable mass were the things Einstein predicted would be found to take place if his theory were sound. Campbell has shown that the first takes place; others have proved that the second holds good in the case of Mercury, and work now being done tends to show that the spectral lines do shift toward the red in light coming from stars known to possess mass. Einstein is said to be drifting back toward the corpuscular as opposed to the wave theory of light.

Dr. Harlow Shapley, the new director of the Harvard Observatory, suggests that the changes in climate in the earth resulting now in glacial ages well down in the temperate zones and tropical ages in the polar regions were due to the passage of the solar system through dense dust clouds known as "coal sacks," such as exist in the constellation of Orion. This resulted in part of the heat of the sun being cut off. At other times it has passed through sections of space free from dust which let the sunlight through in all its intensity.

Dr. Hartmann, of La Plata Observatory, Argentina, announced the discovery of a new planet between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter. It is about fifteen and one-half miles in diameter.

After many years of drilling it was announced that the core of the Canon Diablo Meteor probably had been found. It has been estimated that the meteor may have been 1,500 feet in diameter. It is supposed to have displaced 1,000,000 tons of sandstone, thrown out 200,000 tons and uplifted 300,000,000 tons. The fragments found show 92% iron and nearly 8% nickel, with platinum and iridium present to the extent of  $\frac{1}{4}$  ounce per ton.

Prof. C. G. Abbott, of the Astrophysical Observatory of the Smithsonian Institution, announced that he had developed a solar stove, consisting of a parabolic cylindrical mirror with a polished aluminum surface, which focuses the sun's rays on a tube of mineral oil, which in turn communicates the heat to two ovens in an iron reservoir containing two sealed ovens of the fireless cooker type. Dr. Abbott expressed the belief that in the fluctuations of the temperature of the sun, our weather is cooler when the sun is hotter, and hotter when the sun is cooler, this being due to a bombardment of electrons when the sun is hottest, which produces a cloud screen for the earth.

Prof. J. S. Plaskett announced the measurement of a spectroscopic binary star in which he found one of these celestial twins to be 75 times as heavy and 15,000 times as bright, and the other 63 times as heavy and 12,000 times as bright as our sun. They burn with a heat of about 30,000° Fahrenheit.

Ohio Wesleyan University is planning to install a 61-inch reflecting telescope to be used in teaching more than for research.

Lowell Observatory reported a huge white spot on Mars, covering 300,000 square miles of Martian territory.

BIOLOGY.

The American Museum of Natural History had expeditions in Ecuador, South Australia, Peru, Eastern Brazil, British Guiana, the Dominican Republic, and elsewhere, studying animal life in its various phases and collecting specimens.

The Danish Deep Sea Expedition investigated numerous biological problems incident to marine life in the open sea in tropical American waters. It found that the common eel spends its "sea periods" in West Indian waters. One species returns to American streams and the other crosses the Atlantic and visits the streams of the European west coast.

The Field Museum of Natural History sent zoological and botanical expeditions to the mountains of Peru and an expedition to study the aboriginal tribes of the Island of Hainan, China.

Through the support of the Mexican Government and the National Geographic Society, the California Academy of Science, the San Diego Museum of Natural History, the Scripps Institution for Biological Research, and the Pacific Division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science united their forces and sent an expedition to the west coast of Mexico to study the problem of the southern fur seal, the elephant seal, and the sea otter, until lately thought to be extinct, but recently found to exist in small numbers. Steps are being taken looking to a treaty between Mexico and the United States protecting these small, struggling herds.

Prof. W. J. V. Osterhout, of the department of botany, Harvard University, has found that plants resist electrical currents when normal and do not when dead. Their resistance to electrical currents goes down in the same ratio as a wound approaches to a mortal nature. Ultimately Dr. Osterhout believes it may be possible to predict certain aspects of the behavior of living matter, immensely complicated as it is, just as now we predict the course of the tides of the oceans.

Rollo H. Beck, of the American Museum of Natural History, headed the Whitney South Sea Expedition for the collection of botanical and zoological material in a five-year cruise among the South Sea Islands.

Dr. E. C. Rosenow, of Rochester, Minn., announced that he had perfected a serum which, injected into human beings in the early stages of sleeping sickness, has produced a cure.

Dr. Pozerski, of the Pasteur Institute, has built a curious apparatus with which he can produce the same rhythmic oscillations as are encountered on ships at sea. With it he has found that guinea pigs and hens are immune and that 30 per cent. of the dogs developed attacks of seasickness. Dr. Pozerski is using the instrument in his researches for a cure of this malady.

The study of rickets at Johns Hopkins University resulted in the discovery of a fourth type of vitamin (Vitamin D). Investigations in the treatment of the same disease at Columbia University indicated that sunlight may produce vitamins directly in the human blood. Whether it produces new ones or merely increases the activities of those already in existence is not definitely known, but X-ray photographs and blood analyses corroborate the assertion that sunlight produces the same effect on the impaired bones as cod liver oil, the vitamin content of which is a specific for rickets. The Department of Agriculture discovered vitamin in meats.

Dr. Serge Voronoff announced that his laboratory experiments indicated that it is possible to transplant all the vital organs of a chimpanzee to human beings. He plans to present a full report to the world on all of the transplantations as made to date, to tell of their consequences.

Plans are being developed by Scandinavian scientific societies for the establishment of a tropical station for biological research in the Dutch East Indies. The probable site of the station will be in the Kei Islands, where what is really deep water fauna is found at comparatively small depths of from 200 to 300 metres.

The International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation agreed to provide the League of Nations with a fund for five years maintenance of an international epidemiologic intelligence service. It also made a three-year appropriation to put into effect a scheme for the international exchange of public health personnel.

The United States Department of Agriculture announced the completion of a series of experiments, begun in 1917, demonstrating that citrus fruits can be stored like apples, ripening off of the tree. After a curing process of three weeks, during which time the temperature of the fruit is maintained at about 70°, it is put into cold storage. The sugar content does not increase appreciably during storage but the acid content does decrease markedly.

It was announced that Dr. Philip Rantien had succeeded in isolating the germ of pernicious anaemia and in developing an antitoxin and serum therefor.

CHEMISTRY.

A new light alloy named "silumin" has made its appearance in Europe. It contains 14 per cent. silicon and 86 per cent. aluminum. It is about 10 per cent. lighter than usual alloys of aluminum, zinc and copper, and 25 per cent. stronger than those alloys, and has double the elongation properties they possess.

It was announced that Germany had discovered a substitute for coal, made by combining several chemicals with native minerals, which has heat producing qualities equal to those of anthracite.

The claim is made that the substitute costs only one-half as much as coal.

An instrument was perfected capable of measuring currents of electricity flowing from ore bodies where they are generated by the chemical action of water, air and minerals on the ore—a sort of electrical divining rod.

Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz succeeded in producing a bolt of artificial lightning in which he got a discharge of 10,000 amperes at over 100,000 volts, that is, a horsepower of over 1,000,000. A piece of small tree exposed to the discharge was mechanically torn to pieces. A piece of wire struck by the flash vanished into dust.

It was announced that the transmutation of metals has finally been accomplished through treatment of tungsten in heat of from 50,000 to 60,000°. Dr. Gerald L. Wendt and C. E. Irion, working at the University of Chicago, were able to change that element into helium.

Princeton University announced that Prof. E. Newton Harvey succeeded in producing a continuous cold light. The substance, which glows without producing heat, comes from a small crustacean about the size of a flea. It is non-luminous if kept away from oxygen. With a flask of the substance one may read a newspaper three or four feet away.

Georges Urbain, professor in the Sorbonne, announced that he had succeeded in isolating a new element which he called "ceitium." He was assisted in his researches by Frederick Webb, a graduate of the Harvard School of Applied Chemistry.

The United States Bureau of Mines announced that it had worked out a new method of refining copper ores. The finely ground ore is leached by the use of hot sulphur dioxide gas in the new process.

At a meeting of the American Chemical Society it was announced that a new food is produced from seaweed kelp which contains iodine, both in organic and inorganic combination, this food being valuable in the treatment of goitre.

Dr. H. B. Russell of London succeeded in restoring the heart beat of a patient after it had ceased for more than an hour. He accomplished this by the injection of a stimulant, the massaging of the heart with the hands inside the pericardium and the final injection of adrenalin. At the end of an hour the man began to breathe, and lived again.

Announcement was made of the formation of a syndicate for the development and perfection of a process of coloring motion pictures in their natural tints, invented by Daniel Comstock, former member of the faculty of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In this process the negative is developed just as in an ordinary film, and then is passed through adjoining chemical baths and processes for fixing the colors in tints natural to the objects shown on the film. It is said that the cost of treating the film is negligible.

ENGINEERING.

Important results were obtained in the direction of transmitting motion pictures by radio. Many applications for patents have been filed in the Patent Office.

An instrument designed to guide aircraft when the ordinary magnetic compass is unreliable won the Magellanic premium awarded annually by the American Philosophical Society. The award was made jointly to Paul R. Heyl and Lyman J. Briggs of the United States Bureau of Standards. It is known as the "earth inductor" compass.

An instrument known as the "superphone" has been perfected by the Signal Corps of the Army. It is based on the "wired wireless" or "line radio" invented ten years ago by Major-General George O. Squier. The invention consists of a small portable set of instruments, which may be installed in any office or residence in a few minutes and connected directly with existing telephone lines. High frequency alternating currents are employed.

The General Electric Company demonstrated before a group of engineers the possibility of communication between moving trains. The representatives of four big eastern railroads and a party of radio experts and engineers witnessed the test of conversations being carried on between a moving trolley on the Schenectady Railroad and a substation three miles away, the trolley wire being the carrier of the message. The message is carried by another current of different frequency superimposed on the one used for driving the vehicle. During its journey over the trolley wire this carrier current, properly modulated by speech, is drawn off by special apparatus, and used to operate a telephone instrument. At any point along the line, with the proper apparatus the message may be picked off the wire and carried a short distance through the air to a conveniently located telephone.

It was reported that a new daylight motion picture projection machine has been developed. It reverses the present plan of picture projection, the light being reflected behind the screen instead of from the rear of the theatre.

The United States Government conducted experiments with a searchlight possessing 1,100,000 candle-power. The light has been seen at a distance of 100 miles from New York. Sometimes, at great heights, its rays are reflected by half-formed clouds of irregular shape in which the moisture is still so attenuated that the stars shine through, sometimes the under side of a cloud stops and reflects the whole beam.

Herr Hentzen, student flyer of the Hanover (Germany) Technical School, established the world's record for sustained flight in a motorless airplane (glider). He stayed up more than three hours and was able to rise more than 1,000 feet above the starting point.

An aeronautical lighthouse, with a searchlight said to give a flash visible at a distance of 200 miles, was being set up on Mt. Africa, nine miles from Dijon, where it will be permanently used as a guiding light for the great airways to the east and south of Europe.

Spanish engineers have been considering the matter of an undersea tunnel beneath the Straits of Gibraltar. The Federal Government approved a plan to span San Francisco Bay with a combined tube, bridge, trestle and fill.

Plans were afoot to secure legislation for the construction of a Boulder Canyon Dam with which to regulate the waters of the Colorado River and to prevent the yearly floods that do such damage in the Imperial Valley of California. Under the proposals that will go before Congress, the water of the Colorado River will be used for power purposes as well as irrigation.

The Queenston-Chippewa Power Canal for the utilization of the surplus water of Niagara Falls neared completion. The water brought through this channel without a fall will have a head of 395 feet.

The United States Navy Department announced the perfection of an instrument which is able to detect the echo of a sound passing from shipboard to the bottom of the sea, where it is reflected back to the ship. This very greatly simplifies the task of sounding the depths of the ocean.

The Western Maryland Railway decided to increase the capacity of its Port Covington grain elevator to 5,800,000 bushels, making it the largest in the world.

Work progressed during the year in the construction of the trans-Zambesi Railway which will ultimately figure in the Cape-to-Cairo route.

The President ordered work to proceed on the Wilson Dam in the Muscle Shoals project. This work was undertaken through the availability of $600,000 from an unexpended fund.

The Westinghouse Electrical Manufacturing Company tested out a large gyro-stabilizer designed to eliminate seasickness by preventing the rolling of ships. The stabilizer weighs 120 tons and will be installed on the Shipping Board steamer Hawkeye State. It is said that the stabilizer can be used also to roll ships, this being effective in moving stranded vessels from shoals.

Plans were in the making for the transmission of a large volume of electric energy from Norway and Sweden to Denmark, the cables being laid under the Kattegat.

The British Government granted a concession for the hydro-electric development of the River Jordan.

A device for checking up the operation of airplanes, showing both the action of the plane and the movements the pilot made in the control of his machine, has been worked out under Government auspices. A trio of recording devices makes up the system, the record being made on a photographic film.

Construction work was begun in Detroit on what is said to be the longest and largest single-span suspension bridge in the world. It is being built under the joint authority of the Dominion Parliament and the United States Congress. The bridge's span is to be 1,803 feet, 203 feet longer than the Williamsburg Bridge. The lower deck will contain four electrified railway tracks, the upper two roadways carrying six lanes of traffic, two sidewalks and two trolley tracks.

Japan is undertaking to build a submarine tunnel four miles long under the Moji-Shimonoseki Channel. It is estimated that the work will cost 18,000,000 yen and will not be completed before 1929.

Work was started on the Delaware River bridge connecting Philadelphia and Camden. The bridge is expected to cost $28,000,000.

The United States Navy Department succeeded in perfecting an airplane catapult with which it can launch a service-type airplane, carrying a pilot and passenger, from the deck of a battleship.

Ground for the Jersey City land shaft of the Hudson River vehicular tunnel was broken May 31.

A new link of approximately 45 miles in the International Railway of Central America was opened on March 17. This part of the line extends from Cojutepeque to San Salvador, giving Salvador direct railway connection with La Unión.

San Francisco started work on the Hetch Hetchy water supply project, which next to those of New York and Boston, will be the largest in America. It will carry 460,000,000 gallons of mountain water to the San Francisco metropolitan area every day. This water will pass through huge wheels installed in electric power plants, and yield 200,000 horsepower of electricity before arriving at the Golden Gate.

A new locomotive capable of delivering more power for its weight than any other engine in the world and producing more energy from every ton of coal was tried out on the New York Central lines. It has a "booster" which turns the trailing wheels into driving wheels, thus adding 26 per cent. to the drawbar pull in starting on all grades. The locomotive weighs 167 tons.

GEOGRAPHY.

North America—Most of the expeditions on the North American Continent during the past year had archaeological researches as their object. The work done by Nell M. Judd in the National Geographic Society's investigations of Chaco Canyon, and that by Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, representing the Smithsonian Institution, in the Mesa Verde National Park, yielded much material. The expedition of the National Geographic Society is described under Archaeology. Dr. Fewkes undertook his work on a large mound in the neighborhood of Mummy Lake. Here he found a rectangular building about 70 feet square and one story high, accurately oriented to the cardinal points, with a circular tower midway in the western wall, and a circular tower midway in the western wall.

Popocatepetl, the great volcano south of Mexico City, was in eruption on Dec. 12, 1921. It entered a period of great activity in January.

Three earthquakes were experienced at Elsinore and Monroe, Utah, Sept. 29 and Oct. 1, 1921, caused by the slipping of the blocks of the earth's crust on the great Sevier fault, largest in the known world, damaging buildings and causing thousands of tons of rock to tumble from cliffs bordering nearby canyons. The Chicago Weather Bureau reported an earthquake whose centre of disturbance was 2,865 miles southwest of Chicago, Oct. 15, 1921. Severe earthquake shocks, centring in the state of Vera Cruz, were reported from Mexico from Nov. 1 to 4, 1921. Shocks were reported in Kingston, Jamaica, and Guatemala City, Nov. 25, 1921.

The University of California announced that Dr. Andrew C. Lawson has discovered a method by which earthquakes may be foretold. The discovery is based on observations made at Lick Observatory on Mount Hamilton and the stations on both sides of the great San Andreas rift, along which occurred the earthquake of April, 1906.

Rockwood, Tenn., reported an earthquake of considerable intensity on Dec. 15, 1921. Georgetown and Fordham Universities reported shocks at a distance of 2,500 miles south of Washington on Dec. 18, 1921. Panama experienced an earthquake lasting about a minute, but doing no damage, on Jan. 2, 1922. Five seismic disturbances occurred on Jan. 2, 9, while a "strong machine" at Berkeley, California, was set in motion for the first time in many years. Two craft arriving in San Francisco Feb. 1 reported having felt earthquakes some miles off the north California coast. Their masters believed their ships had grounded, so sharp were the shocks.

The wireless operator at Kenai on Feb. 9 reported clouds of steam rising from Mount Redoubt on Cook Inlet.

Granada, on the northwest shore of Lake Nicaragua, reported that part of its cathedral and other buildings were damaged by an earthquake on Feb. 15.

The steamship Hollywood reported having encountered, 240 miles northeast of New Caledonia, from Jan. 5 to 7, immense areas of volcanic dust, at some places extending several feet below the surface and so dense as to give the water a slushy consistency. The ashes had a yellowish tint. Black sand was observed arising in columns from the crater of Mount Jefferson, near Madras, Oregon, on March 9.

Southern California reported earthquake shocks on March 10 which at San Luis Obispo were severe enough to break an oil pipe line. Several earth shocks were recorded on the seismograph at St. Louis University on March 22. These shocks were also felt in Western Tennessee and in the vicinity of Hickman, Kentucky.

The volcano Chaparrastique in Southeastern Salvador was reported in eruption on March 11. The volcano Santa Maria was reported active eruption on July 2, covering the Chuva and Colomo regions with ashes and doing great damage to the surrounding country.

South America—An expedition was sent to Peru by the Royal Society to study the adaptation of man to life at or above the altitude of 14,000 feet. The advances of Peru for this type of investigation are that, being near the Equator, the effects of altitude are less complicated by those of cold than in higher latitudes; the Central Railway of Peru, the highest standard-gauge railway in the world, ascends the Andes to an altitude of 15,885 feet; a mining population lives and works in localities situated above 14,000 feet. It is said that the porters of the town of Cerro de Pasco, in the Andes, raise ore 600 feet from the mines and carry many loads of 160 pounds a day. There is probably no other population which carries on such heavy work in so rare an atmosphere.

Dr. Henry H. Rusby, Dean of the College of Pharmacy at Columbia University, was compelled by sickness to relinquish his leadership of the Mulford biological expedition in the Amazon Basin. To the date of his departure collections included 25,000 insects, 12,000 botanical specimens, and large numbers of fishes and reptiles.

The following earthquakes were reported from South American points during the year ending Oct. 1, 1921. Four sharp shocks felt in Lima, Peru, Nov. 2, 1921, were thought to centre near Ica; on Nov. 14, a shock whose centre was estimated as only 60 miles distant; the seismographs of the Lima Geographical Society registered a violent earthquake at a point estimated to be in Northern Peru on Dec. 18. A strong earth shock occurred March 1 in the western part of the Province of Mendoza, Argentina.

Europe—After playing a quiescent role since 1906, during which time a main cone grew to a height of about 230 feet, Vesuvius became active again, causing the cone to collapse. Since that time a new cone has formed, but lava flows thirty feet wide are reported from fissures in its side. Mt. Etna was in eruption in March and for some time thereafter, with streams of lava flowing from all sides of its crater.

Earth shocks of such violence that the people abandoned their houses occurred in San Lorenzo, Nuoro, Italy, Dec. 1921. Four violent earthquake shocks occurred in the vicinity of Terni, about 50 miles from Rome, May 27. A long series of earth shocks occurred in northern Serbia, beginning on March 23. A number of hot springs came up through earth fissures caused thereby.

Earthquake shocks experienced in the city of Massae Carrara, on the Tuscan coast of Italy, were of such intensity as to cause the people to spend the night of October 25, 1921 in the open fields.

A landslide destroyed the cathedral, the post office and many dwellings in the town of San Fratello, Sicily, Jan. 9, 1922. The landslide was believed due to heavy rainfalls. The city hall and two churches were wrecked and 500 people made homeless by landslides in Corato in May. The city is situated over an underground lake and cave-ins are frequent. The Government plans to drain this.

Asia—The expedition led by Gen. C. G. Bruce in a second attempt to climb Mt. Everest failed to reach the summit of the world's highest mountain. Geoffrey Bruce and George Finch succeeded in reaching an altitude of 27,300 feet, leaving only 1,800 feet to be scaled. The previous highest point reached by a mountain climber was 24,583 feet, made by the Duke of Abruzzi in 1910.

An expedition led by Professor Gregory undertook to determine exactly where the Himalayas end. To the north of Assam a range extends at right angles to the Himalayan range, curving to the south and west. To the east of this range another continues in the general direction of the Himalayas, and extends eastward into China. To determine which of these is the main range and therefore the eastern extension of the Himalayas is the object of the expedition.

Tokio experienced its worst earthquake in twenty years on Dec. 9, 1921. Many houses were damaged, a number of people were injured and the water mains of the city broken.

Frederick McCormick reported having witnessed a great eruption of the volcano Karimskaya, in Kamchatka, which has 66 volcanoes. He viewed it from Semlaebik. "Above a mountain ridge which lay between we could see, without the aid of glasses, the expulsion of showers of rocks, many of which must have been larger than ships, as they flew through the sky in giant parabolas." It was reported that the temperature of the water in Kronotsk Bay was raised 5½ degrees by the eruption. Mt. Assama-Yama, 90 miles northwest of Tokio, erupted large quantities of smoke and ash, with a loud report, on April 21. An earthquake followed, which did some damage in Tokio, killing several natives, slightly damaging the American Embassy and breaking some of the exhibits at the Peace Exposition. In Yokohama the Chinese quarter was largely destroyed and the water works disrupted. Eight earthquake shocks were registered in Formosa during the early half of September. The culminating one destroyed several buildings.

Africa—The joint Anglo-French commission for the delimitation of the Darfur-Wadal boundary was engaged in settling the boundary issue between the kingdom of Darfur which belongs to the British Empire and that of Wadal which belongs to France.

An account of the expedition organized by Prince William of Sweden for zoological research in the region of Kirunga volcanoes, north of Lake Kivu, was published. The expedition passed through the Kenya colony and Uganda. Near Lake Kivu it was found that the eruption of a new volcano in December, 1912, had destroyed most of the vegetation but that new growth was coming back in many spots. About 1,000 mammals, 1,700 birds, and several hundreds of reptiles were carried back to Stockholm.

Polar—Donald B. MacMillan and his party returned from the Frozen North, Sept. 7, bringing back much data and many specimens. He found Hecla Strait frozen solid, evidence that the ice never leaves Fox Channel, and that existing maps of Baffin Island are incorrect. Also he found traces of the Norsemen, who apparently had visited the Baffin Bay country, probably from Greenland, in the eleventh century.

The Shackleton-Rowett expedition returned to South Africa without finding any new lands in the Weddell Sea regions of the Antarctic, which it had undertaken to explore. Sir Ernest Shackleton, the commander, died during the cruise and was buried on the sub-Antarctic island of South Georgia.

Knud Rasmussen reported that his expedition had successfully wintered on Danish Island in Lyon Inlet, Melville Peninsula, and was planning a sledge expedition for the autumn of 1922, beyond the Barren Lands and along the Northwest Passage to Bering Sea and back.

Roald Amundsen postponed his projected airplane flight across the North Pole, owing to the bad weather and heavy ice prevailing in the region he would have to traverse in his ship, the Maud, in order to reach a point for starting his airplane trip.

Oceanica—The following more or less severe earthquake shocks were reported from the islands of the Pacific: severe shocks in Guam on Dec. 16, and 17, 1921; five persons were killed and many injured by a severe quake that shook the city of Cebu and vicinity on Feb. 28, 1922, shaking down concrete walls and corrugated roofs of a number of buildings. Melbourne, Australia, reported a violent quake on April 10. A series of earthquakes, lasting forty days in the Taupo thermal district, New Zealand, began on May 10.

GEOLOGY.

A geological expedition to study the gem producing areas of Brazil, the gold and iron producing areas of Peru and Bolivia, and the nitrate regions of Chili was continued in the field by the Field Museum of Chicago.

A proclamation by President Harding set aside a 593-acre tract in the Nevada National Forest as the Lehman National Caves Monument. Located at the base of Mt. Wheeler, this cave, at an altitude of 7,200 feet, has remarkable stalagmitic and stalactitic formations.

The Aussee Sandling, a mountain 5,000 feet high not far from Vienna, was in the process of crumbling, over 3½ miles of territory being involved. Large masses of rock and forest were reported moving down into the valleys. The explanation offered was that the heavy rains of last year caused the disintegration of the chalky limestone core and the consequent movement of the superimposed strata.

A Norwegian expedition to Nova Zembla found traces of land vegetation and fresh water fish dating from Devonian times. Twelve ocean level marks subsequent to the glacial epoch were found.

Fossil plants found in abundance in the Fort Union section of North Dakota show that what is now a treeless plain was alternately a hardwood and conifer forest and a sub-tropical jungle. Fig trees and fan palms grew profusely at one time and hardwoods and conifers at another.

The Germans undertook to extract gold from the waters of the River Eder.

Rock salt deposits were discovered near Whycomagh, Cape Breton.

Radioactive deposits were found in the Congo region of Africa, including two new minerals, which have been named "curite" and "kasotite." The crystals of these are soluble in nitric acid, thereby permitting the extraction of the radium salts without the usual calcination processes.

Drillings were carried on in Kilauwa volcano, Hawaii, to determine the heat and steam pressure inside, to ascertain what chemical and other changes take place in lava flows of known date, and to disclose the possibilities of utilizing the volcano's energy as a source of power.

PHOTOGRAPHIC FILM

The Pallo Photo Phone, now being developed by C. A. Hoxie, radio engineer, was shown to the public for the first time on Oct. 18, 1922, by the General Electric Company at its works in Schenectady, N. Y., the occasion being the visit of Thomas A. Edison to its 523 acres of factories on the Mohawk River.

The Pallo Photo Phone is a contrivance for recording sound upon a photographic film so that the sound may be reproduced in ordinary telephones, loud speakers, and in other ways. Mr. Edison saw it work. He saw two ordinary drums full of film, as in a motion picture projecting machine, with a horn nearby. A man speaks into the horn, his voice is recorded, not by a stylus on a wax plate as in a phonograph but by a dancing beam of light reflected by a mirror onto the photographic film. The film is developed, run through the machine again and out comes the voice, perfect, with delicate overtones and without the slightest "scratch."

As a motion picture and the voice of the actor or actors can be photographed on the same strip of film simultaneously there may possibly come of it the much sought after "talking movie," in which voice and movement are perfectly synchronized.

Louis T. Robinson of the general engineering laboratory describes it thus:

"The record is made by causing the sound waves to produce vibrations on an exceedingly minute and very delicate mirror. A beam of light reflected by this mirror strikes a photographic film which is kept in continuous motion. The film when developed shows a band of white with delicate markings on the edges which correspond to the sound which has been reproduced.

"On account of the exceedingly small size of the mirror, its low inertia, etc., it is possible by this means to produce a sound record which includes the very delicate 'overtones' which give quality to speech and musical sounds. This has not been so successfully accomplished by any other method of recording sound waves.

"The reproduction of the sound from the film is accomplished by moving the film in front of an exceedingly delicate electrical device which produces an electromotive force which varies with the amount of light that falls upon it.

"By an ingenious combination of vacuum tubes there has been produced an apparatus which responds to variation in the light falling on it with a speed which is so high that it can only be compared with the speed of light itself, or with the speed of propagation of wireless waves in space.

"Therefore, when this film is moved continuously in front of such a device the device produces an electric current which corresponds very accurately to the original sound wave. This electric current may be used to actuate a telephone or loud speaker. It was actually used recently to operate the radio transmitting station WGY of the General Electric Company."

Aviation Progress and Records in 1922.

Marvellous achievements and advance in aviation in its various branches marked 1922. New inventions, new records and new departures featured the art of flying from the standpoint of military, naval, commercial and sport aviation. In every department great progress was made both in America and abroad. The development of the motorless glider from the initial planes making flights of two or three minutes to elaborate monoplanes and biplanes capable of sustained flights ranging from two to three hours was accomplished within the year.

New speed, duration and weight-carrying records were established and military and naval air manoeuvres demonstrated the constantly growing place of importance of the airplane in offensive and defensive warfare. If progress keeps step with predictions, during the next twelve months aviation may be expected to assume a position of the greatest importance in the life of nations throughout the world. The part that airplanes will play in future warfare has been stressed by military authorities of all countries. Rear Admiral W. W. Fullam, in a recent address, stated emphatically that, in his opinion, aircraft would win the next war.

Tests in theoretical bombing of Washington were repulsed by defensive airplane fleets, and in somewhat similar trials the British airplanes scored decisively over the navy. Based on this showing, Premier Lloyd George announced in the House of Commons the Government's decision to provide an aerial force of some 500 machines at a cost of some £2,000,000 per annum. It has been stated that a majority of these planes will be all-metal, varying in size, speed and carrying capacity. All nations are considering carefully the possibilities and prospects of aviation for both warlike and peaceful purposes.

Secretary of War Weeks stated that as a result of a two months' investigation by Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, Assistant Chief of Air Service, it was shown that European powers were spending more money and developing types of planes in advance of the United States. Demonstrations during the closing months of the year, however, appeared to indicate that the balance of plane superiority was shifting to this country. A campaign of aviation education has been proposed in Japan where it is said the plane forces are but three to a hundred as compared to English and American aerial equipment.

The commercial aviation reports from England indicate that the Government is considering the development of high power planes capable of carrying a hundred passengers. Cruising speed in excess of a mile a minute is stated to be entirely feasible and proposed routes would include frequent flights to America, Australia and India. As the result of the marvellous speed developed by American planes in the Pulitzer Trophy race at Detroit in October, Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, upon his return to Washington, said, that in view of his world record speed flight over a kilometre course at the rate of 224.48 miles per hour, flying at the rate of 300 miles per hour within five years was not improbable. A twenty-eight-hour mail service, between New York and San Francisco and three hours between New York and Chicago, were also predictions likely to be realized in the near future, according to Second Assistant Postmaster General Paul Henderson in a talk before the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce in September.

Among the latest developments reported during the closing months of 1922 were an automatically controlled plane, demonstrated in England, which by the aid of a new devised stabilizer, flew 200 miles without being actuated by a human agency. A somewhat similar plane tested at Washington which flew ninety miles in Army Air Service experiments was declared to be more dependable than the human aviator, being especially steady in "bumpy" air currents.

A new dirigible observation balloon was also successfully tested at Dayton, O., late in October.

French aeronauts reported the building of a tailless plane which has developed high speed. Dr. George H. Maderling, designer of the Hanover motorless glider that established a three-hour flight record, predicted that under certain wind and weather conditions, flights of several hundred miles and altitude ascensions to extreme heights were not impossible. Brig. Gen. Mitchell announced that the United States had produced four types of plane capable of a sustained speed in excess of 200 miles per hour.

The French Army tested out on Oct. 26 an armored aerial dreadnought that mounted a 75-millimetre field gun; it was manufactured by the Schelder Steel Works.

Senator Wadsworth introduced in the present Congress a bill which provides for the creation of a Bureau of Civil Aeronautics in the Department of Commerce to encourage and regulate the operation of civil aircraft. It would be the duty of the commissioner of this bureau to safeguard life and property by the proper inspection and certification of commercial aircraft and the licensing of pilots. The bill provides for the establishment of rules and regulations governing the air; encouraging the laying out of new air routes, fields, and stations; investigation of the causes of accidents, and the survey and promotion of the industry so that it may be best fitted to serve the Nation. It prohibits the lunacies of dangerous trick flying.

All the leading governmental and civil agencies connected with aviation have indorsed this bill and urged that it be passed. The Senate passed it on Feb. 12. Then it went to the House, where it has been resting in the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, of which Representative Samuel E. Winslow of Massachusetts is Chairman.

Great Britain and France enacted codes immediately after the armistice.

UNITED STATES NATIONAL AIRPLANE RACES.

Held at Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich., Oct. 12-13-14, 1922. The United States National Airplane Races were the competition feature of the season, seven events being held with special trophies, prizes and purses. Entrants were drawn from all parts of the nation, and the United States Army and Navy were strongly represented, the service entries winning a majority of the contests.

The Pulitzer Trophy Race was the most important event, two world records, one for 100 kilometres and the other for 200 kilometres, being created during the race. It was the third competition for the Pulitzer Trophy, the deed of gift which reads: "The Pulitzer Trophy, donated by Messrs. Ralph Pulitzer, Joseph Pulitzer, Jr., and Herbert Pulitzer to the Aero Club of America, shall be perpetual and shall be competed for annually by airplanes under rules prepared each year by the Contest Committee of the Aero Club of America, and shall be awarded each year to the Aero Club represented by the pilot of the winning airplane, and this club shall be entitled to the possession of the trophy until one month prior to the next succeeding contest, at which time the trophy shall be returned to the Aero Club of America. The Contest Committee of the Aero Club of America, with the consent of the Board of Governors, has the privilege of conducting each annual contest for the Pulitzer Trophy, or of assigning this privilege, under sanction, to any other club or organization."

"Gold, silver and bronze plaques will be given by the donors to the pilot winning first, second and third places in every contest for the Pulitzer Trophy."

The winners have been:

1920—Lieut. C. C. Moseley, Verville-Packard airplane.

1921—Bert Acosta, Curtiss navy racer.

The results of United States National Airplane Races were as follows, the names of those who finished only being given:

LIBERTY ENGINE BUILDERS' TROPHY.

Other entrants were: Labrousse, of Belgium, landed at Steinamanger, Hungary; Armbruster, of Switzerland, landed at Kirschschlag, Austria; Westover, of the United States, landed at St. Gotthard, Hungary.

Eighteen competitors, representing six nations, started. DeMuyter was awarded first prize and trophy on distance, and Capt. H. E. Honeywell, of St. Louis, who finished second, the duration prize.

WORLD'S RECORDS RECOGNIZED BY INTERNATIONAL AVIATION FEDERATION, Corrected to Nov. 1, 1922.

Class A (Free Balloons)—

No. 1. Duration—H. Kaulen (Dec. 13-17, 1913) 87 hours.

No. 2. Distance—Berliner (Feb. 8-10, 1914), 3,052 kilometres (1,896.86 miles).

No. 3. Altitude—Suring & Berson (June 31, 1901), 10,800 metres (35,434.8 feet).

Class B—Dirigibles (Airships)—

No. 1. Duration—Castracane & Castruccio (June 25, 1913), 15 hours.

No. 2. Distance—Castracane & Castruccio (July 30, 1913), 810 kilometres (493.31 miles).

No. 3. Altitude—Cohen (June 18, 1912), 3,080 metres (10,105.5 feet).

No. 4. Maximum Speed—Castracane & Castruccio (July 30, 1913), 64 kilometres, 800 metres per hour (40.26 miles per hour).

Class C—Aeroplanes—

No. 1. Duration—Ed. Stinson & Lloyd Bertaud at Roosevelt Field (Dec. 30, 1921), J. L. 6 monoplane, 26th. 19m. 35s.

No. 2. Distance—L. Bousoutrot and Jean Bernard, over the course from Villeneuve to La Marmogne. (June 3-4, 1920), Gollath-Farman airplane with two 260 h. p. Salmson motors.

No. 3. Altitude—Lieut. MacReady, at Dayton, Ohio (Sept. 28, 1921), Lepere biplane, Liberty motor, 400 h. p., 10,518 metres (34,509.5 feet).

No. 4. Speed for the Following Recognized Distances: 100 kilometres (62.137 miles)—Lieut. R. L. Maughan, at Detroit, Mich., Oct. 14, 1922, Curtiss High Speed Pursuit plane with 375 h. p. Curtiss D-12 motor, 18m. 6.78s., equalling 205.31 miles per hour, or 330.4 kilometres per hour.

200 kilometres (124.274 miles)—Lieut. R. L. Maughan, at Detroit, Mich., Oct. 14, 1922, Curtiss High Speed Pursuit plane with 375 h. p. Curtiss

D-12 motor, 36m. 12.17s., equalling 205.94 miles per hour, or 331.46 kilometres per hour.

500 kilometres (310.685 miles)—No record.

1,000 kilometres (621.37 miles)—Lucien Bousoutrot and Jean Bernard, over the course from Villeneuve to La Marmogne (June 3-4, 1920), Gollath-Farman airplane with two 260 h. p. Salmson motors, 10h. 19m. 46s.

1,500 kilometres (745.04 miles)—Lucien Bousoutrot and Jean Bernard, over the course from Villeneuve to La Marmogne (June 3-4, 1920), Gollath-Farman airplane with two 260 h. p. Salmson motors, 16h. 42m. 8s.

2,000 kilometres (1,242.74 miles)—No record.

No. 4. Maximum Straightaway Speed—Timed over a 1 kilometre course, during which contestant shall make two complete trips in each direction, the average speed for four trips to constitute time—Brigadier Gen. William Mitchell, at Detroit, Mich., Oct. 18, 1922, Curtiss High Speed Pursuit plane with 375 h. p. Curtiss D-12 motor. Time of flights: 9.17; 10.95; 9.25; 10.76 seconds. Average, 224.48 miles per hour, or 361.28 kilometres per hour. (Subject to I. A. F. ratification.)

No. 5. Records Carrying Useful Load:

Duration—Useful load carried, 1,500 kilos (3,306.9 lbs). Capt. C. T. R. Hill, at Crickewood, England (June 4, 1920), Handley-Page (W-8) airplane with two 450 h. p. Napier Lion motors, 1h. 20m.

Distance—No record.

Altitude—Useful load carried, 250 kilos (551.1 lbs).—Jean Le Boucher, at Bourget (July 6, 1921), Breguet Rateau airplane, 280 h. p. Renault motor 6,782 metres (22,251.7 feet).

Altitude—Useful load carried, 1,500 kilos (3,306.9 lbs).—Capt. C. T. R. Hill, at Crickewood, England (May 4, 1920), Handley-Page (W-8) airplane with two 450 h. p. Napier Lion motors, 4,267 metres (14,000 feet).

SPEED TESTS.

Speed records over measured courses were broken several times during 1922, although it is not certain that all times will be recognized by the I. A. F., due to lack of official timers, observers and other technicalities. The best times were made late in the season. They follow:

DURATION, DISTANCE, AND ALTITUDE FLIGHTS.

A number of long duration flights, both over restricted territory, cross-country, and cross-water, featured the season of 1922. Several world's records were broken and rebroken and other flights would have qualified in this category had the necessary technical recording details been arranged in advance. All claims for aviation records have to be filed with the International Aviation Federation and rigid rules observed. Every claim is carefully investigated and passed upon solely on the basis of these regulations. As a result it is frequently months after the performance that these claims receive official recognition. The details of the more prominent flights, regardless of their ultimate status from a record standpoint, follow:

Dec. 30-31, 1921—Edward Stinson and Lloyd Bertaud flew continuously for 26h. 12m. 35s. over Roosevelt Field, New York, in a Larsen all-metal plane driven by a 185 h.p. Bavarian Motor Works engine. The flight ended when oil in the lubrication tanks froze in wet weather. Accepted as world's record by I. A. F.

Oct. 5-6, 1922—Lieuts. J. A. Macready and O. G. Kelly, U. S. A. S., flew continuously for 35h. 18m. 30s. over Rockwell Field, Coronado, Cal., exceeding by close to nine hours the flight of Stinson and Bertaud. Macready and Kelly intended to try for a transcontinental flight when they took off and little preparation was made for recording a duration flight over restricted territory when fog prevented the cross-country flight. They used the army monoplane T-2, motored by a 400 h.p. Liberty engine.

Oct. 13-14, 1922—Lieut. Bossoutrot and M. Drouhin flew continuously for 34h. 14m. 7 1-5s. around Paris, France, with start and finish at La Bourget airport, under supervision of Aero Club of France. They used a Farman Goliath plane with two 300 h.p. Renault engines and appeared to comply with all I. A. F. record requirements. The plane travelled approximately 3,200 miles at an altitude ranging from 600 to 5,000 feet, the latter height being reached as the gas tanks lightened.

Nov. 3-4, 1922—Lieuts. J. A. Macready and O. G. Kelly flew from San Diego, Cal., to Indianapolis, Ind., 27h. 52s., approximate time, without stop in an endeavor to establish a non-stop transcontinental flight. They were forced to land when the engine burned out. The flight was made in the Army monoplane T-2 with a 400 h.p. Liberty engine. In an endeavor to keep the engine going the aviators poured soup, coffee, and milk, their food supplies, into the engine to replace the water leaking out when the cylinder jackets cracked under the strain of continuous engine operation in storms and rapidly changing temperatures. Unofficial charts showed approximately 2,200 miles covered or five-sevenths of the distance between San Diego and New York. The plane carried at the start 725 gallons of gasoline, 30 gallons of oil and 20½ gallons of water.

Sept. 4-5, 1922—Lieut. J. H. Doolittle, U. S. A. S., flew from Pablo Beach, Fla., to Rockwell Field, San Diego, Cal., in 21h. 20m. actual flying time and 22h. 35m. lapsed time with one stop at Kelly Field, Tex., to replenish fuel tanks. He used a special De Havilland plane and was estimated to have covered approximately 2,275 miles.

Calbraith P. Rodgers, flying a Wright Model B, started from New York City, on Sept. 17, 1911, and landed at Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 5, 1911. His longest single flight was 133 miles.

Robert G. Fowler flew across the continent from West to East, landing at Jacksonville, Fla., on Feb. 17, 1912. He was 122 days on the way.

The late Lieut. W. D. Coney, Army Air Service, negotiated a flight similar to the one recently completed by Lieut. Doolittle, his total flying time being 22h. 27m., but it took him several days to accomplish his journey.

The complete record of non-stop duration flights of record proportions since the early days of aviation follows:

Nov. 12, 1906—Santos-Dumont, 21s.
Oct. 26, 1907—Henry Farman, 52s.
Jan. 13, 1908—Henry Farman, 1m. 28s.
Sept. 21, 1908—Wilbur Wright, 1h. 31m. 25s.
Dec. 31, 1908—Wilbur Wright, 2h. 30m. 23s.
Aug. 27, 1909—Henry Farman, 3h. 4m. 56s.
Nov. 3, 1909—Henry Farman, 4h. 17m. 53s.
July 10, 1910—Ollieslaegers, 5h. 3m. 5s.
Oct. 28, 1910—Tabuteau, 6h.
Dec. 18, 1910—Henry Farman, 8h. 12m. 23s.
Sept. 1, 1911—Maurice Farman, 11h. 1m. 20s.
Sept. 1, 1912—Fourny, 13h. 17m. 57s.
Feb. 4, 1914—Langer, 14h. 7m.
Apr. 24, 1914—Poulet, 16h. 28m. 56s.
June 24, 1914—Basset, 13h. 10m.
June 28, 1914—Landmann, 21h. 50m.
July 10, 1914—Boehm, 24h. 14m.
June 4, 1920—Bossoutrot and Bernard, 24h. 19m.
Dec. 30-31, 1921—Bertaud and Stinson, 26h. 19m. 35s.
Oct. 7-8, 1922—Macready and Kelly, 35h. 16m. 30s.
Oct. 14-15, 1922—Bossoutrot and Drouhin, 34h. 14m. 7 1-5s.

ALTITUDE FLIGHTS.

Oct. 23—Etampes, France, Moutoufer, 32,866 feet. New French record, but some 1,700 feet short of world's record of 34,509 feet made by Lieut. J. A. Macready at Dayton, Ohio, Sept. 28, 1921.

PARACHUTE JUMP.

June 12—Capt. A. W. Stevens made a parachute jump over Dayton, Ohio, from an airplane at an approximate height of 24,206 feet. His equipment consisted of a double parachute 28- and 18-foot spread respectively. The smaller parachute, for emergency use only, was not opened. An oxygen tank was also strapped to the jumper. From the time Capt. Stevens jumped from the plane until he landed five miles beyond Jamestown, Ohio, the drift amounted to some thirty miles and the time consumed in the drop in the four and one-half mile jump was more than twenty minutes.

NOTES ON THE ABOVE TABLE.

Temporary service from Elko to Ely, Nevada, was begun Oct. 19, 1921. East day service on the Elko-Ely route was begun Feb. 15, 1922.

Trips defaulted, 341; trips uncompleted, 211; fog or storm trips, 2,433; clear-weather trips, 5,454; forced landings, 760 (of which 281 were due to mechanical causes); total miles travelled, including ferry and test, 1,727,265; per cent. of performance, 94.39.

Time in flight, 19,036 H., 53 M.; cost per hour, $63.83; cost per mile, $0.7035.

Gasoline used, 502,631; cost of gasoline, $149,027; cost of repairs and accessories, $226,735; cost of pilots, $174,407; cost of mechanics and helpers, $172,892.

Length of New York-San Francisco route—2,680 miles.

Number of airplanes in service—80.

There were no fatal accidents, it is stated, in the last year.

The report of the Royal Dutch Air Service Lines on operation up to August 1st, 1922, is as follows:

From January 1st to August 1st on the line Amsterdam-Paris 332 flights were made, 272 passengers, 10.6 tons of merchandise and 300 lbs. of mail were transported.

On the line Amsterdam-London from April 18th until August 1st 230 passengers, 30.2 tons of merchandise and 1.1 tons of mail were transported.

Thus on 593 flights, covering a total of about 112,700 miles, 502 passengers, 40.8 tons of merchandise and 1.2 tons of mail were transported from January 1st to August 1st, 1922.

MOTORLESS GLIDERS IN CONTEST.

The rapid development of the motorless glider or sailplane attracted international attention in 1922. There were several glider meets abroad and new duration records were made and broken frequently. A number of prominent aviators took part in the tests and also in constructing the gliders. The leading record flights follow:

No description of the Moneyrolle plane has been received in this country up to press time, but Hentzen's Greif and Maertens's Vampire have been described in cable despatches from The World correspondent as follows: Both Maertens's Vampire and Hentzen's Greif were built at the expense of a group of students at the Hanover Technical High School interested in the science of aerial navigation and of the Hanover Society for Aerial Navigation. They embody the result of wide experience, unceasing study and experiments gathered under the leadership of Prof. Bril and put to practical use by the constructing engineers of the Hanover railway car factory under the supervision of Hentzen.

Hentzen's machine, the Greif, his latest creation, may be described as a monoplane, a fuselage of wood occupying the centre between the two wings, with which it is connected by a number of levers that enable the pilot to make his machine ascend or drop, the wings being movable. These consist of stout linen of light weight stretched over wooden frames. The span of both wings, inclusive of the fuselage, measures not quite twelve yards. The area of both wings is about fifteen square yards.

The steering apparatus, very much like that of an ordinary airplane, but much lighter in weight, extends behind from two rods about three metres long. The other details of construction are kept strictly secret.

Maertens's Vampire is a little heavier than Hentzen's Greif. Prof. Bril of the Hanover Technical High School states that the flights of Maertens and Hentzen had proved conclusively that sailing through the air without motors was possible if the atmospheric conditions permitted it, which in Germany they did at least on 200 days of the year.

CROSS-WATER FLIGHTS.

Several long distance continent to continent flights over ocean stretches featured aviation in 1922. Among those attempted were the hydro-plane flights of Lieut. Walter Hinton from New York to Rio de Janeiro; Capts. Sacadura and Coutinho from Lisbon, Portugal, to Pernambuco, Brazil, and Major W. T. Blake, the English aviator's proposed round-the-world flight.

Capt. Sacadura and Coutinho, the Portuguese aviators, arose from the water near Lisbon on March 30 and alighted at Las Palmas, Canary Islands, the same day, a distance of about 700 miles. Unfavorable weather delayed departure until April 5, when the 800-mile flight to St. Vincent, Cape Verde Islands, was made the same day. Further delay for proper weather conditions retarded flight until April 18, when the flight was resumed from Porto Praya, Cape Verde Islands, to St. Paul Rocks, in mid-Atlantic, a distance of 900 miles. The jump was made in one day but the plane was badly damaged in alighting. The aviators then went to the island of Fernando Noronha, off the South American coast, where another plane was secured. To complete the trip record the aviators on May 11 flew back from Fernando Noronha to and around St. Paul Rocks. On the return trip motor trouble caused a descent and the second plane was wrecked. The aviators were rescued by the steamship Paris City and returned to Fernando Noronha. A third plane was secured and the flight resumed on June 5, arriving at Pernambuco the same day after a 275-mile flight. On June 17 they completed their trip at Rio de Janeiro.

Lieut. Walter Hinton started his New York to Brazil flight on Aug. 17. Some 8,500 miles will be covered by intermittent stages. Hinton drove the Sampaolo Correia II., a powerful seaplane, and after several stops at Atlantic seaports, including St. Petersburg, Fla., hopped off for Key West on Sept. 4. Arriving at Port-au-Prince, Haiti, there was a delay of several weeks while new engines were installed. On Oct. 7, Lieut. Hinton resumed flight. Details of the later portions of the trip are shown in the following table.

On Nov. 20 the plane reached South America, twenty-five miles from Georgetown, British Guiana. The flight, dependent upon favorable weather, was being continued when The Almanac went to press. Major W. T. Blake arose from Croydon, England, on May 24, in his attempted 30,000-mile flight around the world. After a number of minor accidents and delays the aviators reached Sibi, British Beluchistan, near Quetta, on July 25. Later the trip was temporarily abandoned.

AMONG THE BOOKS OF 1922.

(By E. W. Osborn.)

It may occur to some future historian of America to write of 1922 as the year of the Literary Deluge. Certainly there has been in the months just past a flow of books calculated to distract the reviewers and conceivably to bewilder the readers of the nation. The flood was due to a degree, undoubtedly, to troubles in the printing and binding trades which caused the holding back of many books announced for the preceding season. The effects were visible too of the stemming of the tides of publication during the war years.

Fiction easily and naturally cuts the far larger figure on the book lists of 1922. The writing of a novel, once a good deal of a feat, has become a thing commonplace. An added wonder of the world is the number of people who can tell a story in writing at least readably well. In this field the year brought forth numerous notable books, but none that fairly may be said to loom like a Woolworth structure in type.

An interesting feature of the year's literary record is the number of books of earlier seasons which linger in the current reading lists. This is shown not alone in the tables of best sellers quoted herewith. It appears in the continued call for such works as "Ambassador Morgenthau's Story," the demand for which has received fresh stimulation within a recent period by the publication of its author's new book, "All in a Lifetime." These two volumes furnish pages of American history and character which it is well for any student of our national system and its workings upon the world and the individual to have in hand.

RICH OUTPUT OF BIOGRAPHY.

In biography and autobiography the publication seasons of 1922 have been rich. Some presentations besides the Morgenthau work have been "My Memories of Eighty Years," by Chauncey M. Depew; "Hugo Münsterberg: His Life and Work," by the great psychologist's daughter Margaret; "E. H. Harriman," by George Kennan; "The Life of Clara Barton," by William E. Barton; "My Boyhood," by John Burroughs; "Prime Ministers and Presidents," by Charles H. Sherrill; "The Life of Elizabeth Cady Stanton," by Harriot Stanton Blatch and Theodore Stanton; "Letters of James Gibbons Huneker," edited by Josephine Huneker; "The Life of Sir William Harcourt," by A. G. Gardiner; "Madame de Staël: Her Trials and Triumphs," by Lieut. Col. A. C. P. Haggard; "William Dean Howells," by Delmar Gross Cooke; "The Story of a Varied Life," by W. S. Rainsford; "My Life and Work," by Henry Ford; "My Experiences at Scotland Yard," by Sir Basil Thomson; "Rossetti and His Circle," by Max Beerbohm; "George Washington," by William Roscoe Thayer; "The Real Lincoln," by Jesse W. Welk; "Glances of Authors," by Caroline Ticknor; "The Wandering Years," by Katherine Tynan, an autobiographical story covering the Irish revolution; "David Lubin: A Study in Practical Idealism," by Olivia Rossetti Agresti; "Gambetta and the Foundation of the Third Republic," by Harold Stannard; "The Maturity of James Whitcomb Riley," by Marcus Dickey; "From Seven to Seventy," the autobiography of Edward Simmons, the American artist; "Memories of a Hostess," a chronicle of eminent friendships, from the diaries of the late Mrs. James T. Fields; "Jefferson Davis: His Life and Personality," by Morris Shaft; "The Home Life of Swinton," by Clara Watts Dunton; "Pasteur and His Work," by Dr. L. Despour; and "Lives of Westinghouse: of Elmer F. Westinghouse," by Henry G. Prout and Waldo H. Dunn; and "Life of Cardinal Gibbons," by Allen Sinclair Will.

Demanding rather special attention in the line of biography are the two volumes of the letters of Franklin K. Lane, with their marvels of self-revelation; "Mr. Lloyd George," by E. T. Raymond; "The Life and Letters of Walter H. Page," by Burton J. Hendrick; and "Woodrow Wilson and World Settlement," a voluminous work, including many documents of vital importance, prepared by Ray Stannard Baker.

Hailed as biography out of the ordinary, also, is the study of Napoleon III., called "The Second Empire," by Philip Guedalla. And closely allied to biography were such books of the year as "Pomp of Power," a book by an unnamed author on "inside" men of the late critical hour; "Painted Windows," by the "Gentleman with a Mustache"; "The Mirrors of Downing Street," and who is said to be Harold Begbie; and "Eminent Europeans," the just-published work of Eugene S. Bagger. Books of specialized interest referring to matters and people of the stage and the concert room include "The Print of My Remembrance," by August Thomás; "My Years on the Stage," by John Drew; Pierre V. R. Key's life of Caruso, memory records of Calvé and Tetrazzini, and the gossipy "My Life and Some Letters" of Mrs. Pat Campbell.

As the publication year drew toward a close, there appeared from the tireless pen of H. G. Wells a volume of 450-odd pages called "A Short History of the World," thought profitable to read as a sort of introduction to that "Outline of History" which maintains a persistent place among serious best-sellers. Incidentally, it may be noted that the year past has brought a four-volume "Outline of Science," edited by Prof. J. Arthur Thomson, to pay tribute to the titular popularity of the "Outline" idea.

ON QUESTIONS OF THE DAY.

Lothrop Stoddard's "The Revolt Against Civilization," pointing out the "menace of the underman," has become one of the bitterly discussed books of the year, its fame supplementing that of the same author's "The Rising Tide of Color." Other books of 1922 dealing with crises of the times include "The Crisis in the Churches," by Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks; "Railroads and Government," by Frank Hatch Dixon; "Europe—Whither Bound?" by Stephen Graham; "Senescence: the Last Half of Life," by G. Stanley Hall; "New Churches for Old," by John Haynes Holmes; "Neighbors Henceforth," by Owen Wister; "International Relations," by the late Lord Bryce; "Washington and the Riddle of Peace," reflections upon the Disarmament Conference by H. G. Wells; "America Faces the Future," by Durant Drake; "The New Constitutions of Europe," by Howard Lee McBain and Lindsay Rogers; "The Threefold Commonwealth," by Rudolph Steiner; "The New Idealism," by May Sinclair; "Industry and Human Welfare," by William L. Cheney; "Socialism and the Average Man," by William H. Dougherty, Jr.; these and books uncounted, impossible to list here, on the problems of Russia, Asia, Europe in general, the League of Nations. If it were possible to settle the troubles of the world by the making of many books, the job would be already at a stage calling for a date of completion.

As this far from complete summary of the year in letters is being compiled there appear the four volumes of John Buchan's "The History of the Great War," constituting the most elaborate work in its line which has as yet come from the presses anywhere.

Useful books on our Government and the judiciary, new to readers of 1922, include "The Supreme Court in United States History," by Charles Warren; "The Constitution of the United States: Its Sources and Its Application," by Thomas James Norton, and "International Law," chiefly as interpreted and applied by the United States, by Charles Cheney Hyde; "Our Republic," by S. E. Forman.

A catalogue of the year's travel books would read something like a gazetteer of the known world. The earth has been covered literally from pole to pole, and has been girdled at every degree of latitude. Illustrating the extremes of research, there are Stefansson's "Northward Course of Empire" and H. G. Ponting's "The Great White South." Frederick O'Brien has added gratefully to the number of his charming books of the South Seas.

The poetic event of the year was the publication in America, December 1, of the "Last Poems" of A. E. Housman, a volume following more than a quarter of a century after that immortal creation in verse, "The Shipwrecked Lad." The English edition was a few weeks earlier than the American, and those readers gloated justifiably who were able to get copies. In this country the offerings by poets well known and hitherto unknown were generous in number and hopeful in quality. What they proved principally was that the poetic spirit is abroad with us and that the foundation of another magazine of verse, Caprice, was not without a reason in rhyme.

Scientific books of 1922 were enough to form a large circulating library by themselves. It is encouraging to note the number of them which were devoted to a popularizing on lines of accuracy and sanity of various brands of the mystery in laboratory or observation tower. Psychoanalysis, a pseudo-science became during the year a fertile feeder to writers given to the exploitation of novel themes. Close upon its prints followed the Coué system of healing as a breeder of letters, with books by its original practitioner and his quickly developed interpreters.

The year's output of books on sports has been marked chiefly by the volumed counsels of the vaunted champions of tennis and golf. Of treatises on indoor games the balance inclined heavily toward further illumination of means and methods in auction bridge. There will be no excuse for us hereafter if we do not as a nation speak of these things by the book.

FICTION'S HIGH LIGHTS.

Coming at last to the year's fiction, which, as we have said, ranks numerically first, we pause an instant to remark with pride upon the continued appearance on best-seller lists of the novel "Maria Chapdelaine." To that offering of a preceding season, the book crop of 1922 brought only one equal in point of pure literary beauty, Walter de la Mare's "Memoirs of a Midget"—although the "Abbe Pierre" of Jay William Hudson drew near to the quality of these two masterpieces.

On points alone, "Main Street" retains a place in the best-seller ranks as the year's calculations end. Really, Mr. Lewis's first great success has been succeeded by his second, the speeding "Babbitt." The new book is generally conceded to be far better and stronger than the other. It is true too that whereas A. S. M. Hutchinson's "If Winter Comes" appears at the top of the Bookman's list, it is really his "This Freedom" which holds the major attention of American readers as 1922 swings into line.

However, it is not with best-sellers in special that we have to do here but with the fiction in general of a season which was fiction's own as judged by the array of solid bindings. And here we find our own bewilderments. Having other work to do even thus early in a new year, we cannot go into the business of a wholesale cataloguing of last year's novels. Two books of the spring seem to us best to have represented two of the extremes in American fiction writing of the times. These books are Mrs. Wharton's "The Glimpses of the Moon," and F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Beautiful and the Damned." About Henry Sidnor Harrison's "Saint Teresa" we might write with more evident reservation, although we liked that too after getting over the first shock of having a saint beat a man up and almost stab him to death at her own fireside. We disposed of that matter finally as one of the reactions upon Mr. Harrison's creative spirit of a late ruthless war. However, we are getting off our appointed track in writing like this. We are here on the present occasion not to review the novels of the year in a technical sense but merely to permit them—a few of them—to march past.

To the thing in hand, therefore, and let us see what we can recall of stories the late reading of which does not, in memory suggest the misspent moments of a year now dead. Without trouble we bring to mind "Broken Barriers," another of Meredith Nicholson's telling tales of American life. This book stood high on the passing list. Along the parade with it we catch on the march such books of all fictional sorts as Jackson Gregory's "The Everlasting Whisper," a California tale of the whirlwind quality; "Sleeping Fire," not one of Gertrude Atherton's best; "The Van Roon," by J. C. Sneath; "The Covered Wagon," a tale of pioneer America, by Emerson Hough; "Adrienne Toner," the story of an unfortunate Anglo-American wedding, by Anne Douglas Sedgwick; "Bennett Mallin," Elsie Singmaster's latest story of life in a distinctive American circle; "Indelible," a first novel by Elliott H. Paul; "The Head of the House of Coombe," companion to "Robin," by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett; "Lucretia Lombard," by Kathleen Norris; "Gentle Julia," by Booth Tarkington; "Merton of the Movies," by Harry Leon Wilson; "One Man in His Time," by Ellen Glasgow; "Joanna Godden," by Shella Kaye-Smith; "Barbara Justice," by Diana Patrick; "Lilla Chenoweth," by Lee Wilson Dodd; "Simon Called Peter," by Robert Keable; "Linda Lee, Inc.," by Louis Joseph Vance; "Big Peter," a British melodrama, by Archibald Marshall; "Dancers in the Dark," a runner-up to "The Beautiful and the Damned," by Dorothy Spears; "Mr. Prohack," Arnold Bennett's story showing how sudden riches need not mean distress; "Crome Yellow," by Aldous Huxley; "The Kingfisher," by Phyllis Kaituma; "Blithright," by T. S. Stripling; "Way of Revelation," by Wilfrid Ewart; "Oh, Susanna," a novel of seafaring, by Meade Minnegerode; "The Secret Places of the Heart," by H. G. Wells; "Life and Death of Harriet Frean," by May Sinclair; "The Rustle of Silk," by Cosmo Hamilton; "The Great Prince Shan," by E. Phillips Oppenheim; "Intrusion," by Beatrice Kean Seymour; "Playing With Soul," by the Countess de Chambrun; "The Tale of Triona," by W. J. Locke; "Pippin," by Archibald Marshall; "Spinster of This Parish," by W. B. Maxwell; "Cappy Ricks Retires," by Peter B. Kyne; "The Cathedral," by Hugh Walpole; "The Three Lovers," by Frank Swinnerton; "The Judge," by Rebecca West; "The Just Steward," by Richard Dehan; "December Love," by Robert Hichens; "Spellbinders," by Margaret Culkin Banning; "On Tiptoe," by Stewart Edward White; "The Mother of All Living," by Robert Keable; "The Red Knight," by Francis Brett Young; "Valley Waters," by Charles D. Stewart; "The Driver," by Garet Garrett; "Flelding Sargent," by Elsa Barker; "Black Pawl," by Ben Ames Williams; "Command," by William McFee; "Certain People of Importance," by Kathleen Norris; "Babel," by John Cournos; "Heartbeat," by Stacy Aumonier; "Captain Blood," by Rafael Sabatini; "Peregrine's Progress," by Jeffery Farnol; "The Man Who Lived in a Shoe," by Henry James Forman; "The Evil Shepherd," by E. Phillips Oppenheim; "A Vagrant Tune," by Bryan T. Holland; "Captain Sazarac," by Charles Tenney Jackson; "In the Days of Poor Richard," by Irving Bacheller; "A More Honorable Man," by Arthur Somers Roche; "Anne Severn and the Fieldings," by May Sinclair; "Old Crow," by Alice Brown; "The Red Tremaynes," by Eden Philpotts; "Escape," by Jeffery E. Jeffery; "One of Ours," by Willa Cather; "The Room," by G. B. Stern; "Tutor's Lane," by Wilmarth Lewis; "The Love Story of Allette Brunton," by Gilbert Frankau; "The Wind Bloweth," by Donn Byrne; "Fool's Hill," by Leona Dalrymple; "Her Unwelcome Husband," by W. L. George; "Flowing Gold," by Rex Beach; "The Vehement Flame," by Margaret Deland; "Martin Pippin in the Apple Orchard," by Eleanor Farjeon; "Judith of the Godless Valley," by Honoré Willst; "Rough-Hewn," by Dorothy Canfield; "1492," by Mary Johnston; "Joseph Greer and His Daughter," by Henry Kitchell Webster; "Still Life," and "The Things We Are," by John Middleton Murray; "The Breaking Point," by Mary Roberts Rinehart; "One Thing Is Certain," by Sophie Kerr.

Glancing over the year's fiction in the large, we become aware of an inclination to break away from novels of the "Moon-Calf" type. A healthful sign this, as we look at things. Ben Hecht's "Gargoyles" appears also to belong to an order doomed to the discard—a work fulfilling none of the promise of his "Erik Dorn." Mystery stories, persistently dear to the hearts of the general readers, came forth in multitude in 1922. The success of "Captain Sazarac" and "Captain Blood" indicated a renewed interest in good and ruddy tales of piracy.

The year past revealed a still further advance in the movement to establish books of the play firmly in the lists of current literature. Two good results are quite possible from this movement. Knowledge of the dramatic way of telling a story may be extended usefully among the readers of the land; writers of plays may be moved to practise a greater clarity and precision of style. To make a hit at once in the library and on the stage would seem to be an object worth working for.

We have neglected to mention in this review the books of humor which came from the presses of last year. There were lots of them. Most of the lot held laughter for a moment. We recall no classic of comicality among them. Absent from our reckoning too are the innumerable handbooks of trades and professions, and the multiplied guides to such novelty outfits as those of the radio system. To give place and title to these and to the whole run of publications for this and that would require the pages upon pages of a cumulative index. If we knew of any subject which had not its share in the literature of 1922, we should feature it gladly in fullface print.

THE BEST SELLERS OF 1922.

The final table of best-selling books in the American trade, in 1922, has been prepared by the Bookman, now under the editorship of John Farrar, from month-to-month reports made to the magazine. The list, comprising ten titles each in fiction and in general literature, is as follows:

FICTION.

"If Winter Comes," by A. S. M. Hutchinson.
"Helen of the Old House," by Harold Bell Wright.
"Her Father's Daughter," by Gene Stratton-Porter.
"The Last Man," by Zane Grey.
"Brass," by Charles G. Norris.
"Head of the House of Coombe," by Frances Hodgson Burnett.
"Main Street," by Sinclair Lewis.
"Gentle Julia," by Booth Tarkington.
"Marie Chapdelaine," by Louis Hemon.
"Robin," by Frances Hodgson Burnett.

GENERAL.

"Outline of History," by H. G. Wells.
"Queen Victoria," by Lytton Strachey.
"The Mirror of Washington," Anonymous.
"The Americanization of Edward Bok," by Edward Bok.
"Story of Mankind," by Hendrik Van Loon.

"The Mirrors of Downing Street," Anonymous.
 "The Mind in the Making," by James Harvey Robinson.

"Woodrow Wilson as I Knew Him," by Joseph P. Tumulty.

"Painted Windows," Anonymous.

"Outwitting Our Nerves," by Jackson and Salisbury.
 Not all the books here named are of last year's publication. Some of them have been carried over from the preceding season. Nor if the lists were to be revised in accord with the returns merely of the last quarter of 1922, would they stand as given herewith. Reading times change and best-sellers change with them. It may be added that during the year these novels also made brief appearances among the best sellers: "Pride of Palomar," by Peter B. Kyae; "This Freedom," by A. S. M. Hutchinson; "The Breaking Point," by Mary Roberts Rinehart; "The Country Beyond," by J. O. Curwood; "The Brimming Cup," by Dorothy Canfield; "Three Soldiers," by John Dos Passos; "The Girls," by Edna Ferber; "Saint Teresa," by H. S. Harrison; "Cythera," by Joseph Hergesheimer; "The Vehement Flame," by Margaret Deland; "Alice Adams," by Booth Tarkington; "Glimpses of the Moon," by Edith Wharton; "Certain People of Importance," by Kathleen Norris and "Babbitt," by Sinclair Lewis. Also brief appearances on the general list were made by "Margot Asquith," "The Outline of Science" and "The Conquest of Fear."

ART OUTLOOK OF THE YEAR.

By Henry Tyrrell.

AMERICA is absorbing as never before the historic art treasures of the world. At the same time the practical development of native arts and crafts in all directions goes forward to meet and remould tradition, in the light of new accessions from abroad. New York, as metropolis and entrepot of the country, becomes more and more each year the modern centre, in all that term implies, for present and future artistic activity.

From every quarter of the globe the heirlooms of antique art are being shipped by dealers to enrich our museums and private galleries, which latter already are conceded to surpass in resources, if not in actual accumulations, the famous individual collections of the Old World. And, as instanced notably by the great Morgan collections, these privately gathered riches of art gravitate eventually to the public museums.

Meanwhile, aided by the ever-increasing volume of press and other pictorial publicity, this varied pageant of art passes before the eyes of millions—artists, amateurs, students, commercial designers, merchants, salespeople and laymen in general, sit once raising the standard of taste and supplying the means to gratify it. Art and industry join hands. The result of this association is a dawning period of progress and cultural development along modern democratic lines, in which every individual plays either an active or a passive part, and the master artists of the future are born.

To the celebrated art collection of Joseph E. Widener at Lynnewood Hall, Philadelphia, have been added during the past year three of the major works of Rembrandt—namely, the two famous portraits of a man and a woman from the imperial Russian collection of Prince Yousouf, at a reputed valuation of $750,000; and the third (final) version of the "Descent from the Cross," a price stated, not unpleasingly, to be $500,000. This gives thirteen pure Rembrandts to the Widener collection, which already contained "The Mill," one of the Magisterial landscape paintings of the world; "The Circumcision," from the English collection of Lord Spencer of Althorpe; "St. Paul," from the Lord Winbourne collection; the superb "Saskia," and Rembrandt's own self-portrait, from the Rothschild collection.

This Rembrandt aggregation represents the high standard maintained throughout all the historic schools represented at Lynnewood Hall, which so eminent an authority as Dr. Wilhelm R. Valentiner has called "an absolutely new type of art collections, developed in America by our private collectors—a type which undoubtedly foreshadows the great collective small number of works of art, but each individual piece of the very highest order in its kind, all chosen for liking as well as for quality, therefore harmonious, and arranged in settings that not only give them beautiful display but enhance their aesthetic and educational value by significant groupings and contrasts.

The opportunities now afforded for forming such a collection are quite unprecedented, as Europe cannot compete with America when heirlooms and masterpieces get into the market. The bankrupt Old World is parting with treasures once held as "priceless," and it is only the New World that has the ultimate price.

Gainsborough's "Blue Boy" ($640,000) and Sir Joshua Reynolds's "Mrs. Siddons as the Tragic Muse," from the Duke of Westminster's Grosvenor House collection, and Raeburn's "Sir Walter Scott" ($45,000) from the Burdett-Coutts sale at Christie's, are three more English pictures which have joined the innumerable caravan of European art setting toward America. The "Blue Boy" now gives added distinction to the private galleries of Henry E. Huntington, at his California residence.

These are war-time and post-war prices, but they have set a standard which is not likely to recede, and which undoubtedly has a stimulating effect on the valuation of assured American classics. Stuart, for example, has mounted as high as $75,000, while Homer, Inness and Fuller have sold latterly at from $40,000 to $55,000, and perhaps a dozen contemporaneous Americans might be named who regularly fetch from $15,000 to $30,000, which compares favorably with the French Barbizon and modern impressionist painters.

The Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh, which holds its 22d annual exhibition in April, has its advisory committees in Paris and London. This international salon is a fixture of first-class importance. The Carnegie routine events rank with those of the Metropolitan and Brooklyn Museums, the National Academy, New York, the Pennsylvania Academy, Philadelphia, the Corcoran Gallery, Washington, and the Chicago Art Institute.

The special art collections, classes and lecture courses at the principal universities, such as Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Cornell and Princeton, are significant developments of the last decade. The Metropolitan Museum, with an average popular attendance of over 1,100,000 annually, has a wide system of extension work, as well as continuous free lecture courses, from October to May, for members, students, industrial designers, salespeople, children, and the public generally. The still wider scope of the Brooklyn Institute and Museum, embracing music, drama and the sciences, also apportion in its schedules a liberal allowance to the arts.

The New York University, in co-operation with the Art-in-Trades Club, offers this year a novel and progressive course in interior decoration, illustrated with special loan exhibitions, and drawing upon the Metropolitan Museum's rich resources in the way of furniture, textiles, silverware, and all the decorative arts and crafts.

The Art Centre of New York, occupying its own commodious building and exhibition galleries, and now in its second year of prosperous existence, consists of a mutually co-operative organization of seven societies, as follows: American Institute of Graphic Arts, Art Alliance of America, New York Society of Craftsmen, Pictorial Photographers of America, Society of Illustrators, Art Directors Club, and the Stowaways. Its purpose is to advance the native decorative crafts and the industrial and graphic arts by bringing together all sorts and conditions of art workers for profitable publicity leading to the direct contact of art producers and art buyers.

The New York art season, at full tide, with its average of 260 public art shows of various kinds simultaneously, is a spectacle not to be matched anywhere else in the world, unless possibly in Paris.

The ultimate meaning and moral of all this activity is the application of art to business, in which America bids fair to lead the world. With its inherent grandeur of architecture in commercial and public buildings, the liberal art patronage of some of its leading merchants, and the slow but unmistakable movement toward civic beautification, New York is marked for the nation's centre of art.

And withal, the great West—Middle, North and South—is in some ways outdoing the East. Take, for instance, the attendance of 58,473 persons in the first fortnight of the recent annual exhibition at the Art Institute of Chicago. All through the country there is direct and tangible evidence of the growth of art interest in the many exhibitions and sales of paintings, particularly American paintings, at the provincial museums and commercial galleries.

When the people who work find out for themselves that art is not a special privilege for the few, and that it pays to give thought to quality and embellishment even in the humblest everyday articles of utility and trade, the artistic future of the Nation is assured.

MUSIC AND OPERA IN 1921-22.

By Deems Taylor.

A few figures will probably give the best idea of the enormous—one might say appalling—quantity of music that is heard in New York in a given year. Roughly speaking, the musical season of 1921-22 began on Sunday, Sept. 23, 1921, and ended on Sunday, May 21, 1922. During that period there were announced in the columns of The World just 997 musical events (this figure includes only such as took place on Manhattan Island; there were probably 200 additional in Brooklyn and the Bronx). Of these, twenty-three were ballet performances, 167 were orchestral concerts, 241 were operatic performances, and 567 were concerts and recitals. These were all public performances for which an admission was charged. If one included free concerts and recitals of a more or less private nature, one could safely raise the total figure to 1,200 or 1,500.

It is therefore obviously impossible in a survey such as this to give more than the briefest summary of the more important happenings of the 1921-22

OPERA.

First, both in actual number of separate presentations and in public interest, comes grand opera. Four opera companies were heard in New York last season, and there were only a few weeks when one or another of them was not giving performances.

The San Carlo Opera Company, under the management of Fortunio Gallo, played a four weeks' engagement at the Manhattan Opera House, beginning Sept. 26, 1921. The company is primarily a traveling one, without extravagant pretensions, but it gave creditable performances of the standard Italian repertoire at popular prices.

The Metropolitan Opera House opened its doors on Nov. 14 with Verdi's "La Traviata," Amelita Galli-Curci, the Italian coloratura soprano, singing the title role, and incidentally making her debut as a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company. The death of Enrico Caruso had deprived the Metropolitan of its greatest star, and there was considerable curiosity, and some misgiving, as to how the management would repair the loss.

Two of the Metropolitan's new singers, however, soon answered the question. Maria Jeritza, the Viennese soprano, who made her first appearance in Korngold's opera, "Die Tote Stadt," sprang into instant favor, made a sensational success in "Tosca," and was thereafter firmly established as a popular idol. Feodor Chaliapin, the great Russian basso, made an almost equally profound impression, although he appeared in only one role throughout the season, the name part in Moussorgsky's "Boris Godunoff."

The company gave 221 performances, of which 166 took place at the Metropolitan Opera House and ten at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, the remainder being given in Philadelphia, Pa., and Atlanta, Ga. Thirty-seven operas were presented, including four novelties and three revivals. The novelties were Erich Korngold's "Die Tote Stadt," in German, Edouard Lalo's "Le Roi d'Ys," and N. Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Snyegurochka," in French, and Mozart's "Così fan tutte," in Italian. The last two were the most interesting. The revivals, none of which was of great musical importance, were Massenet's "La Navarraise," in French, and Verdi's "Ernani" and Catalani's "Loreley," in Italian.

The new productions were generally well mounted and sung. Especially notable were Joseph Urban's scenery for "Ernani," "Le Roi d'Ys," and "Così fan tutte," and Boris Anisfeld's gorgeous settings for "Snyegurochka." Louis Hasselmann, an excellent French conductor, formerly with the Chicago Opera Company, joined the company for the second half of the season, replacing Albert Wolf, who resigned to become the head of the Opera Comique in Paris.

Titta Rufo, the Italian baritone, made his first appearance as a member of the Metropolitan, and achieved fair success. Considerable discussion was aroused by the announcement that Geraldine Farrar, the American soprano, was to leave the company at the end of the season. Many of her admirers felt that she was being forced out, but it is probable that financial reasons played a large part in her failure to sign a new contract.

The Chicago Opera Company, under Mary Garden's direction, played a season of five weeks at the Manhattan Opera House, opening on Jan. 23, 1922, with Saint-Saëns's "Samson et Dalila." The company gave excellent performances of an extensive repertoire, including Debussy's "Pelléas et Mélisande," Strauss's "Salome," and John Alden Carpenter's ballet-pantomime, "The Birthday of the Infanta." On Feb. 14 the Chicago Company gave the first New York performance of Serge Prokofiev's "The Love for Three Oranges," an opera with a fantastic and amusing libretto, but which proved rather a disappointment musically. Boris Anisfeld's colorful settings were noteworthy.

Lucien Muratore, the great French tenor, was stricken with appendicitis immediately after his first New York appearance, and did not return to the company until Feb. 23, when he appeared with Miss Garden in Fevrier's "Monna Vanna." The season as a whole was not a profitable one, and this fact, coupled with the impending sale of the Manhattan Opera House to a fraternal organization, caused the directors of the Chicago Company to announce that the current season would be their last in New York for several years.

Early in May, 1922, the Russian Grand Opera Company, an organization that had been touring the Orient, gave a season of four weeks at the New Amsterdam Theatre. The personnel and scenic equipment of the company were mediocre, but the performances gave New York opera-goers a chance to hear several Russian operas that had never before been presented here, notably Dargomizsky's "Roussalka," Rimsky-Korsakoff's "The Tsar's Bride," and Chalkovsky's "Cherevichky."

THE ORCHESTRAS.

The orchestral season was an exceptionally heavy one. The National Symphony Orchestra, founded two years previously, was merged with the Philharmonic, the latter giving 75 subscription concerts under four conductors—Josef Stransky, Willem Mengelberg, Artur Bodanzky, and Henry Hoby. The New York Symphony Orchestra, under Walter Damrosch, with Albert Coates, as guest conductor, gave 50 concerts; the Boston Symphony, under Pierre Monteux, and the Philadelphia Orchestra, under Leopold Stokowsky, gave ten New York concerts each.

The Harvard University Orchestra, a student organization, and the Cleveland Orchestra, under Nikolai Sokoloff, each gave a concert in Carnegie Hall; Pablo Casals, the cellist, conducted the New York Symphony Orchestra in two concerts, and Willem van Hoogstraten, a young Dutch conductor of exceptional ability, twice conducted the Philharmonic. He was later chosen as one of the conductors of the Stadium concerts given during the summer of 1922.

Richard Strauss, the famous German composer, visited America for the first time since 1905, and conducted the Philadelphia and Philharmonic Orchestras in ten concerts at Carnegie Hall, the Metropolitan Opera House, and the Hippodrome. The programs of these concerts were largely made up of Strauss's own orchestral works. The Society of the Friends of Music, directed by Artur Bodanzky, likewise gave ten concerts with an orchestra recruited from the players at the Metropolitan Opera House.

There were several notable performances, the most interesting of all being a concert given on Feb. 23 for the benefit of the American Academy at Rome, at which an orchestra of 300 players, made up of members of the New York Symphony, Philadelphia, and Philharmonic organizations, played an extensive program under the direction of four different conductors. The Philharmonic, under Willem Mengelberg's direction, gave five consecutive performances of Gustav Mahler's Third Symphony.

Thirty-six new works were played during the season, the most interesting being Karol Szymanowski's second symphony and Charles M. Loeffler's setting of three Irish poems (Boston Symphony). Ravel's "La Valse" (Philharmonic), Vaughan-Williams's Fantasy on a Theme by Thomas Tallis (New York Symphony) and Arnold Schoenberg's Five Orchestral Pieces (Philadelphia). Vincent d'Indy, the French composer, twice conducted the New York Symphony Orchestra in performances of his new symphonic poem, "On the Shores of the Seas."

SINGERS AND PLAYERS.

The recital season was marked by the return of several famous singers and by the appearance of several interesting new ones. The vocal event of the year, probably, was the reappearance of Emma Calvé, the French contralto, in her 57th year, who gave several recitals and concerts with tremendous success, her great voice being still in almost perfect condition. Edmond Clément, the French tenor, and Elena Gerhardt, the German Lieder singer, were also heard for the first time in several years.

Among the notable new singers were Edith Bennet, Maria Ivogun and Clare Dux, sopranos; Amy Ellerman, contralto; George Meader and Vladimir Rossing, tenors; John Barclay, baritone. Nina Koshets and Feodor Chaliapin, both Russians, had been heard in New York before, but were virtually newcomers, and were notably successful in concert.

Other well known singers who gave New York recitals last season were Eva Gauthier, Sophie Braslau, Marguerite d'Alvarez, Ernestine Seeman-Helbig, Reinhold Weirathauer, Emilio de Gogorza and John McCormack. Mr. McCormack was taken seriously ill with septic sore throat in the spring and was obliged to cancel all his later engagements. For a time it was feared that he had lost his voice, but he recovered completely.

Many new violinists appeared, among them Bronislaw Huberman (his first New York visit since his appearance twenty-five years ago as a boy prodigy), Ferenc Vecsey, Emil Telmányi, Miron Pollak and Erpa Rubenstein. The last-named, a girl of sixteen, made the most notable debut of the season, appearing several times with orchestras, and giving three successful New York recitals. Most of the players whose fame is already established were heard during the season, notably Jascha Heifetz, who returned from a world tour, Erika Morini, Paul Kochanski, and Fritz Kreisler.

Four new pianists of the first rank loomed upon the musical horizon. These were Elly Ney, Artur Schnabel, Alexander Siloti and Mira Hess. The last named, an English woman, was possibly the most successful. Alfredo Casella, the Italian modernist composer, also gave several piano recitals, and Serge Prokofiev, composer of "The Love for Three Oranges," played twice at Aeolian Hall. Other recitals included those by Harold Bauer, Ernest Schelling, Josef Hofmann, Sergei Rachmaninoff, Ossip Gabrilowitch, Wilhelm Bachaus, Ignaz Friedman, Percy Grainger and Leo Ornstein.

A new cellist, Felix Salmond, an Englishman, made his New York debut last season, with immediate success. He seems to deserve the adjective "great." No other new cellists of exceptional worth were discovered, but there was fine playing by several of the established artists, particularly Pablo Casals, Hans Kindler and Cornelius Van Vleet.

OTHER MUSIC.

In the field of chamber music the Flonzaley, the Letz and the London Quartets gave their usual series of concerts, with a successful debut by the Chicago String Quartet. Other concerts were given by the New York Chamber Music Society and the Chamber Music Art Society, two organizations that combine stringed and wind instruments.

There was considerable good choral music. The Oratorio Society, vastly improved in quality under its new conductor, Albert Stoessel, gave a good "a cappella" concert and an excellent performance of Bach's St. Matthew Passion music. The Schola Cantorum, under Kurt Schuler, performed Bach's B minor mass and gave an interesting concert of Italian music that included first American performances of Pizzetti's Lamont and Malpiero's St. Francis of Assisi. The Schumann Club, directed by Percy Rector Stephens, gave two farewell concerts and disbanded, after eight seasons. A fine concert of unaccompanied music was given by the St. Olaf Choir of Northfield, Minn., in the Metropolitan Opera House on January 17. The magnificent Mendelssohn Choir of Toronto gave concerts in Carnegie Hall on April 4 and 5, 1922, the first a program of unaccompanied music, the second offering, with the Philharmonic Orchestra, the first New York performance of Vaughan-Williams's Sea symphony.

There were several other organizations that cannot be strictly classed as either vocal or instrumental. Among them are the Beethoven Society, with a volunteer membership of famous artists, which gave a series of concerts; the Society of the Friends of Music, which produced choral as well as orchestral works, and the International Composers' Guild, which gave a valuable series of concerts of modern and ultra-modern music at the Greenwich Village Theatre.

AMERICAN RELIEF AID FOR RUSSIAN FAMINE VICTIMS.

Prepared for The World Almanac by the American Relief Administration, Herbert Hoover, Chairman, 42 Broadway, New York City.

The American Relief Administration, a private charitable organization, has, since 1919, carried on child-feeding or general relief work in twenty-three European countries, the most extensive operations having been in the following: Austria, Armenia, Czechoslovakia, Constantinople, Free City of Danzig, Finland, Hungary, Jugo-Slavia, Estonia, Lithuania, Latvia, Northern France, Poland, Roumania, and Russia, and with the American Friends Service Committee in Germany. In Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland, the American Relief Administration turned over its relief work to organizations in these countries subsidized by their Governments. Prior to June, 1922, the American Relief Administration had withdrawn its work from all the other countries excepting Russia and Turkey.

During the early summer of 1921, reports began to appear in the press of a severe drought in the great grain producing region of Russia along the Volga River. By the first of July it was obvious that this region was threatened with one of the worst famines in history.

During July, Maxim Gorky, in behalf of the Russian people and with the approval of the Soviet Government, appealed to the world for aid. The American Relief Administration, through its Chairman, Herbert Hoover, answered this appeal and offered its service and that of co-operating organizations to combat the famine, with the proviso that Americans held as prisoners in Russia should be released. On Aug. 20, 1921, an agreement between the American Relief Administration and Soviet Russia was signed at Riga, with practically the same stipulations that had been agreed to by the Governments of the countries in which other American Relief Administration missions have operated.

The Soviet Government agreed to bear all costs of discharging, storage, handling, and transportation within Russia, and from the ports in countries adjacent to Russia through which relief supplies were to be imported, as well as all local costs of administration, preparation and distribution. On its part the American Relief Administration, in accordance with its fundamental policy, agreed to distribute relief without regard to race, religion or social or political status and to permit none of its personnel to engage in commercial or political activity.

EXTENT OF THE FAMINE.

The first areas affected by the drought comprised the provinces along the Volga and Kama Rivers in Eastern European Russia: Astrakhan, Tsaritsyn, the Kirghiz Republic, German Communes, Saratov, Simbirsk, the Tartar Republic, of which Kazan is the capital, the Mahrli and Chuvasch oblasti, Ufa, Orenburg and the Bashkir Republic. The effects of a similar drought in the southern Ukraine were not greatly felt until the spring of 1922, when the famine region was extended to include Odessa, Nikolayevsk, Ekaterinoslav, Zaporosh, Donetz, and the Crimea. As a natural result of the food shortage throughout Russia, a number of larger cities, particularly Petrograd and Moscow, were affected.

Subsequently, in the summer of 1922 it was found necessary to extend the relief work on a smaller scale into the provinces of Perm, Viatka, Votskaya, Nizhni-Novgorod, and Penza.

Headquarters of the American Relief Administration were established in Moscow in September, 1921, and feeding was immediately started on an initial program of 1,000,000 children, which was reached on the first of January, 1922, and extended until on Aug. 1, 1922, the American Relief Administration was feeding approximately 10,500,000 destitute individuals in the famine areas along the Volga River, in the Ukraine and Crimea, and in the cities of Petrograd and Moscow. Of this number 4,200,000 were children.

AT A COST OF $60,000,000.

The total resources of the American Relief Administration for Russian relief have amounted to approximately $60,000,000. These resources have been derived as follows:

The Congress of the United States, on Dec. 24, 1921, authorized the use of $20,000,000 still remaining with the United States Grain Corporation for the purchase of corn, seed grain and preserved milk for Russian relief; it also authorized the use of $4,000,000 worth of surplus United States Army medical supplies. The Soviet Government gave the American Relief Administration $11,433,000 for the purchase of seed; the American Red Cross allocated $3,600,000 toward the American Relief Administration medical program; the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee donated approximately $5,000,000 for general relief. The balance has been contributed by co-operating organizations or directly from the American public.

Between Jan. 1 and Aug. 1, 1922, the American Relief Administration shipped into Russia a total of over 750,000 tons of American food, seed, medical supplies and clothing.

In addition to its relief program the American Relief Administration undertook the largest single medical relief program that has ever been carried out. This program included the rehabilitation of hospitals and ambulatories throughout the famine regions with medicines and equipment, the sanitation of towns and cities and the inoculation against typhoid, paratyphoid, smallpox and cholera, of hundreds of thousands of persons.

To enable persons in other countries to send food to their relatives and friends in Russia, the American Relief Administration established a food remittance system whereby any one might send the sum of $10, or multiples thereof, to the New York, London or European offices of the American Relief Administration for which a standard package of scientifically selected foodstuffs was delivered to the designated beneficiary anywhere in Russia. Up to Nov. 1, 1922, over 440,000 persons had purchased food remittances to the total value of over $9,400,000.

Because the lack of clothing is almost as acute as the lack of food, the American Relief Administration in October, 1922, set up a clothing remittance system similar to the food remittance plan. For $20 a clothing package is delivered in Russia.

According to the official figures of the Soviet Government the Russian harvest of 1922 was sufficient, if efficiently and evenly distributed, to feed the adult population. There are, however, still a great number of orphans and refugees who are in need. It is estimated that the total number of 3,000,000 children will be in need of food during the winter and spring 1922-23. The American Relief Administration has sufficient resources to care for 2,000,000 of these children.

In addition to its Russian program, the American Relief Administration, with specially donated funds, has given extensive relief to Russian refugees in Constantinople and to intellectuals in Poland and Austria.

APPRECIATION FROM RUSSIA.

Maxim Gorky wrote Herbert Hoover this letter, thanking America for the past year's work of the American Relief Administration in Russia:

"BERLIN, July 30, 1922.

"Prof. Geron Davis informs me that you kindly consented to send individual packages to scientists and men of letters in Moscow and Petrograd. Needless to say your generous assistance is worthy of the greatest praise. Nevertheless, permit me to express my feelings of gratitude to all citizens of the United States of America and complete satisfaction with the humanitarian work of the American Relief Administration, of which you are Chairman. In the past year you have saved from death three and one-half million children, five and one-half million adults, fifteen thousand students, and have now added two hundred or more Russians of the learned professions. I am informed that this charity cost America fifty-nine million dollars, figures which are sufficiently eloquent.

"In all the history of human suffering I know of nothing more trying to the souls of men than the events through which the Russian people are passing, and in the history of practical humanitarianism I know of no accomplishment which in terms of magnitude and generosity can be compared to the relief that you have actually accomplished. It seems to me very important that such great generosity developed during these past years of universal cruelty—cruelty which is ruining Europe, following as it does the terrible war which shook the foundations of European culture. It is not only the physical help which is valuable but the spiritual succor to the minds of mankind which are tormented by the events of the past years and sick, due to cruelty and hate.

"The generosity of the American people rescuates the dream of fraternity among peoples at a time when humanity greatly needs charity and compassion. Your help will be inscribed in history as a unique, gigantic accomplishment worthy of the greatest glory and will long remain in the memory of millions of Russian children whom you saved from death. I believe that the recollection of American self-sacrifice in saving children will make these same children better, more generous men and women. Permit me, with all my heart, esteemed Mr. Hoover, to wish you and your assistants continued good health and stout hearts."

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS.

The American Red Cross operates under its charter by act of Congress of Jan. 5, 1905, "to furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded, or armies in time of war in accordance with the conventions of Geneva, to act in matters of voluntary relief and in accord with the military and naval authorities as a medium of co-ordination between the American people and their army and navy, to continue and carry on a system of national and international relief in time of peace and to apply the same in mitigating the suffering caused by pestilence, famine, fire, floods and other great national calamities, and to devise and carry on measures for preventing the same."

Warren G. Harding is President of the American Red Cross and John Barton Payne is Chairman of the Central Committee, the governing body composed of nineteen persons, six of whom represent the Federal Government. National Headquarters is located at Washington, D. C., and from it the activities of 2,679 chapters are directed through six divisional headquarters. From National Headquarters also relief operations in foreign countries are directed.

The annual report of the American Red Cross is audited by the War Department and transmitted to Congress through that department. The report for the last fiscal year shows that 2,679 Red Cross chapters were assisting disabled World War veterans and their families, in addition to which the National Organization maintained 641 Red Cross workers in Government hospitals to assist Veterans Bureau patients. Members of the army and navy were served by the Red Cross at 272 points and stations.

During the year the Red Cross administered emergency relief and assisted in the rehabilitation of victims in seventy-two disasters. Public health nurses were maintained by 1,656 chapters, health centres by 295, other health activities by 626, first aid classes by 272, disease and classes by 224, home hygiene and care of the sick classes by 223, recreation work by 205. Youngsters gave a variety of services; production was carried on in 1,302 chapters, while by 742 chapters Red Cross home service was extended to assist the civilian population. The following shows the expenditures by the national organization (exclusive of chapters) of the Red Cross during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1922, and budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923:

From April 1, 1914, to July 1, 1917, the period before the United States entered the war, the expenditures abroad were $2,237,000.

Revenue of National Headquarters during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, were $4,906,365.11, or $7,569,462.08 less than expenditures. There having been at the beginning of the fiscal year a balance of $33,507,789.93, there was on June 30, 1922, a balance of $28,938,807.85. There having been budgeted for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, $3,739,872.47 and $12,617,204.90 set aside for continuing certain specified activities, there remained June 30, 1922, unallocated funds totalling $3,841,229.94, in addition to which there were total endowments and a general reserve totalling $7,712,262.63. The foregoing figures do not include chapter revenues and expenditures.

The membership of the American Red Cross at the end of the last fiscal year was 4,000,000.

NEAR EAST RELIEF.

Near East Relief operates under its charter by act of Congress of Aug. 6, 1919, "to provide relief and to assist in the repatriation, rehabilitation, and reestablishment of suffering and dependent people of the Near East and adjacent areas to provide for the care of orphans and widows and to promote the social, economic and industrial welfare of those who have been rendered destitute, or dependent directly or indirectly, by the vicissitudes of war, the eruption of men, or other causes beyond their control." The field of operation is Constantinople, and the adjoining territory in European Turkey, Thrace, Anatolia, Armenia, Cilicia, Kurdistan, Syria, Palestine, Mesopotamia, Persia and Transcaucasia, including Russian Armenia and Georgia. The administrative centres abroad are at Constantinople, Beirut, Tiflis and Bagdad. Annual report is made to Congress.

The organization is endorsed by President Harding and Congress, by the National Information Bureau; by the Churches, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish; by civic, commercial, industrial, fraternal, educational and social organizations, by American and foreign officials in Europe, Turkey and other countries of the Near East.

The Central Headquarters of Near East Relief are at 151 Fifth Ave., New York City. In every state of the Union there is a branch office, and most of the larger states have a State Director. European headquarters are at Geneva.

The officers of Near East Relief are: James I. Barton, Chairman; John H. Finley, Vice Chairman;

Charles V. Vickrey, General Secretary; Cleveland H. Dodge, Treasurer; and Frank L. Polk, General Counsel. The Executive Committee are: Edwin M. Burkeley, Chairman; James I. Barton, Cleveland H. Dodge, Abram J. Ellery, Harold A. Hatch, William B. Miller, Henry Morgenstern, George A. Plimpton, Walter George Smith, Charles V. Vickrey, and Stanley White.

This organization succeeded the Armenian and Syrian Relief Committee originally established in 1915 following an appeal for American relief to victims of massacres coming from Henry Morgenthau, then United States Ambassador to Turkey.

Near East Relief has saved at least 1,000,000 women and children from starvation. Approximately 300 American workers compose its present overseas staff, with hundreds of native helpers. It maintains 38 hospitals and 79 clinics, 85,101 patients were recorded in the last monthly report. It supports 124 orphanages, 64,107 children are wholly dependent, 36,000 others partially dependent. In addition, Near East Relief has a constructive program of training for self-support. Industries of various types adapted to the vocational training of men, women and children being conducted at most relief stations, and in connection with the orphanages. At Rodosto 5,000 refugees were established on farm lands, agricultural development of 16,000 acres organized in the Caucasus. The total value of Near East Relief operations to date approximates $77,000,000.

The Auditor's Report, covering the period ending Dec. 31, 1921, as submitted in the report made to Congress, shows that up to then the near-east relief contributions had been $51,361,866; that relief payments had been made amounting $49,200,409; that relief appropriations had been made in addition of $2,077,578, to be cared for by the incoming contributions.

In addition the Near East Relief received four previous to 1921 through the United States Relief Administration valued at $12,800,000, and it values the buildings, land, transportation, equipment, services, food and other supplies contributed in the Near East at $5,000,000. Cost and other supplies received since this report to Congress was printed bring the amount up to the $73,000,000 mentioned above.

When the Smyrna disaster occurred Near East Relief food and supplies accumulated for regular orphanage work were rushed from Constantinople warehouses to the scene, and personnel conducted evacuation service, feeding, medical and personal care, at the centres sought by fleeing refugees before and after the fire. Later, under the direction of President Harding's Co-ordinating Committee, Will H. Hays, Chairman; Archibald B. Roosevelt, Executive Secretary, the work was carried on to meet the appalling emergency which rapidly spread through Eastern Thrace to Greece.

In appointing this committee, which consists of the Governors of the several States and over 100 citizens of prominence throughout the United States, President Harding in his telegram to each, said: "More than half a million suffering human beings, the majority women and children, are dependent on the benevolence of America. The Red Cross and Near East Relief committees, working in harmony and supported by all benevolent organizations, are responding to the call. The Co-ordinating Committee is helping develop the money raising campaign and bringing into concerted action all the forces possible."

SHEPPARD-TOWNER MATERNITY ACT.

The Sheppard-Towner Act "for the promotion of the welfare and hygiene of maternity and infancy and for other purposes," passed by the Senate by a vote of 68 to 7, and by the House by a vote of 270 to 39, was signed by the President and became a law on Nov. 23, 1921.

The act provided for the current fiscal year (1922) $10,000 for each State accepting the provisions of the act, and an additional sum of $1,000,000. Of this additional amount, not more than $50,000 was to be used for federal administration, and the remainder was to be apportioned to the States and granted, if matched dollar for dollar by State appropriations, $5,000 to each State, the remainder to be apportioned on the basis of population.

After the fiscal year 1921-22, the authorized annual expenditure was $5,000 apportioned to each State and to be matched dollar for dollar, an additional $5,000 plus a prorated amount of the remaining $710,000 of the additional $1,000,000, after a maximum of $50,000 has been deducted for Federal administration.

The Federal board was changed from a Board Advisory to the Children's Bureau to the Federal Board of Maternity and Infant Hygiene, composed of the chief of the Children's Bureau, the Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service, and the Commissioner of Education. The board is given authority to approve or disapprove the plans submitted by the State, and to withhold further certification of the Federal funds to a State if the money is not properly expended.

Local administration in the States is in the Child Hygiene or Child Welfare Division of the State agency of health, or, where such a division does not exist, the agency designated by the State.

The board has laid down no plan of work which a State must follow, nor has it made approval of plans contingent on complying with certain conditions, each plan being considered on its merits.

The bill was the direct outgrowth of the series of investigations on maternal and infant mortality made by the Federal Children's Bureau during the nine years of its existence. These investigations, besides dealing with the social, economic, industrial and civic conditions surrounding mothers and infants, reveal a morbidity and a mortality which, authorities agree, are to a great extent preventable. In 1915 the infant mortality rate in the United States birth registration area was 100 per thousand births and the maternal mortality rate 6.1. In 1920 the infant mortality rate had fallen to 85.8, but the maternal death rate was 9. The total number of maternal deaths in the death registration area in 1920 was 16,776.

The States that are not in the birth registration area are: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia.

Up to date 42 States have accepted the terms of the act—all except Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, Louisiana, and Washington. Twelve of these acceptances (New Hampshire, Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Minnesota, Oregon and New Mexico) are by State Legislatures and the remaining 30 by Governors pending the next regular session of the Legislature.

The New York Legislature, though refusing to accept the act on the ground of paternalism, increased by $130,000 its previous child hygiene appropriation of $30,000 and created a division of maternity and infancy.

Payments have been made up to Oct. 30, 1922, to 41 States from 1922 funds, and to 38 States from 1923 funds. Of the 41 States that have received payments from 1922 funds, 22 matched their full allotment, 5 matched part of their allotment, and 10 accepted the $5,000 granted outright without matching. Of the 38 States that have received payments from 1923 funds, 13 matched their full allotment, 15 matched part of their allotment, and 10 accepted the $5,000 granted outright without matching.

The maximum amounts available to the States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, were: Granted by the Federal Government if matched by the State, apportionment based on population, $237,500; to it is added a grant outright of $5,000 to each State, $242,500; grand total $477,500.

The maximum amounts available to the States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, are:

The State of Massachusetts, by order of the Legislature, attached the constitutional validity of the law in a petition to the Supreme Court on Sept. 8, 1922.

IRISH FREE STATE.

The Anglo-Irish Treaty which is the first step toward the establishment of the Irish Free State was signed at London by the plenipotentiaries of Dail Eireann and the British Cabinet early on the morning of Dec. 6, 1921. (See the WORLD ALMANAC for 1922 for the full text of the treaty.) It was ratified in principle by the British Parliament ten days later and was subsequently converted into an act (the Irish Free State Agreement Act), passing its final reading on March 31, 1922, and receiving the royal assent on the same day.

After a prolonged debate in the Chamber of Deputies (Dail Eireann) it was ratified, Jan. 7, 1922, on behalf of the Irish Republican Government, by vote of 64 to 57. In this debate Arthur Griffith, chief of the delegation that had helped frame the compact, took no part, leaving the matter of its defense entirely in the hands of Michael Collins whose ability as a parliamentarian was until then scarcely known. He managed to secure its ratification on the plea that the treaty was not a final, terminating agreement but a first measure toward peace and to be entirely superseded by another document—the Constitution.

"It gives Ireland," he declared, "not that ultimate freedom that all nations hope for, but freedom to achieve that end."

The opposition to the treaty was led by President Eamon De Valera, who characterized it as a "surrender of sovereign rights in return for a vague promise." He made several unsuccessful attempts to have the treaty placed on the table in order that he might introduce a new motion for a substitute agreement which was referred to in the debates as "Document No. 2." The treaty was passed, however, without alteration and two days later, Jan. 9, De Valera resigned as President of the republic. A motion to re-elect him, introduced in the Chamber immediately on receipt of his resignation, failed of acceptance by two votes.

On Jan. 10, 1922, Arthur Griffith, the founder of Sinn Fein, and Vice President since 1919, was elected President to succeed De Valera, receiving the support of a large portion of "De Valera's minority," in consequence of his having pledged to "carry on the republic" as a government separate and distinct from the Provisional Free State Government as provided for in the treaty.

Griffith chose as his Cabinet: Michael Collins, Minister of Finance; George Gavon Duffy, Minister for Foreign Affairs; Eamon Duggan, Minister for Home Affairs; William Cosgrave, Minister for Local Government; Kevin O'Higgins, Minister for Economic Affairs; Richard Mulcahy, Minister for Defense; Ernest Blythe, Minister for Trade and Commerce; Michael Hayes, Minister for Education; Joseph McGrath, Minister of Labor; and J. J. Walsh, Postmaster General.

Exercising his prerogatives as President, Griffith appointed Michael Collins as Chairman of the Provisional Government which was to take over the management of the British regime in Ireland. Thus appointed, Collins convoked the Parliament for Southern Ireland which had been provided in the Government of Ireland Act (Westminster) of 1920 but which had never sat owing to the refusal of the Irish to recognize Britain's right to create it. The membership of this Parliament corresponded to that of Dail Eireann with the exception that two Unionist members, elected to represent Trinity College, Dublin, were included also. It convened on Jan. 14, "De Valera's minority" abstaining, and ratified in its turn the Anglo-Irish Treaty. The vote taken was unanimously in favor of ratification.

Two days later then (Jan. 16) Michael Collins with his staff of assistants accepted the "surrender" of Dublin Castle. A slight hitch in the ceremonies was caused by Collins's refusal to take the oath of Privy Counsellor to His Majesty, George V., but administrative powers were handed over on his affirming that he intended to do his utmost to put the treaty into effect and would take the oath after a popular election on the question of the treaty should have released him of his oath to the republic. This irregularity was set right by the Lord Lieutenant's explaining that Collins was "governing by courtesy" and as his own deputy, not the King's. Finally, on Jan. 19, the Post Office was handed over to Irish control.

In the meanwhile, on Jan. 12, a general amnesty was granted by royal warrant to all prisoners held on charges of having participated in the Irish uprising. More than a thousand were involved, all of whom were released within a few hours of the issuance of the warrant. On Jan. 13, the first detachment of "Black and Tans" was withdrawn from Ireland and three days later the first contingent of military.

On Jan. 15, De Valera, as President of the military and political organization of Sinn Fein, convoked the Executive Council and succeeded in putting through his demand that the Ard Fheis (Supreme Assembly) meet on Feb. 7 to discuss the split that had occurred in the party as a result of the divergent attitudes taken with reference to the treaty.

NEGOTIATIONS OVER THE BOUNDARY.

The Craig-Collins pact was entered into on Jan. 21, following an accidental meeting on a railroad train between Michael Collins and Sir James Craig, Premier of the Belfast Parliament. In this it was agreed: (1) That the Boundary Commission provided for in the treaty to re-arrange the line of demarcation between the North and the South should be altered so as to be made up of one representative for each of the two Parliaments; (2) that the boycott of Ulster in the South should be discontinued, in return for which the Northern Government should protect Catholics as against pogroms and unfair discrimination in industry; (3) that both Governments should unite to facilitate the settlement of the railroad strike that had been threatening for several months; (4) that both Governments should endeavor to find a more suitable federal agency for dealing with problems affecting all Ireland than is provided by the Council of Ireland, the constitution of which was included in the Government of Ireland Act of 1920; (5) that a further meeting should be held to discuss the question of an amnesty to be granted to political prisoners taken since the truce of July 11, 1921, and not, therefore, released under the general amnesty of Jan. 12.

At a second meeting between Craig and Collins in Dublin on Feb. 2, Collins demanded that Counties Tyrone and Fermanagh which were over 60 per cent. Sinn Fein be ceded to the Free State along with large portions of other counties and the City of Derry. Craig declared that the North was prepared to submit to the Boundary Commission only questions dealing with the "rectification in detail" of the boundary which was to remain substantially where it was. The conference broke down and Craig went straightforth to London where he was received by the Prime Minister on Feb. 3.

Two days after this, Collins was in London with Duggan and Griffith, both signatories of the treaty, to bear witness to guarantees made by the British Premier as to the interpretation to be put upon the words of the compact regarding the function of the Boundary Commission. Lloyd George admitted the contention of the Free State delegation. He also admitted having guaranteed before the peace negotiations were opened in July, 1921, that he would protect the territorial integrity of the North as it then was, or being forced to an agreement, that he would not consent to the further reduction of the Northern Parliament's jurisdiction without first consulting Belfast. He justified his breach of this promise by saying that a moment had arrived when the Irish delegation was prepared to sign the treaty and he could not morally take a chance on deferring the acceptance of the pact several days with the expectancy that that moment would ever again arrive. New plans were then formulated, Craig agreeing that a national policy and constitution be settled by the Parliamentary representatives of all Ireland. His agreement, however, was conditioned on an early election in the South and the return to Parliament of a substantial majority of the Free State.

The meeting of the Ard Fheis which had been called for Feb. 7 was postponed to Feb. 21 owing to the inability of Collins and Griffith to leave the London conference before that time. On the second day of its sitting, Feb. 22, a treaty of peace was arranged between the Free State advocates and the Republicans, and the Sinn Fein party thus kept together. It was agreed that the general election when it was held was to be on the issue not of the treaty, but of the Constitution, which was to be prepared beforehand, and that in no event was an election to be held before the expiration of three months. The agreement reached with Craig a few days before at London was thus held in abeyance.

The campaigning for the election had begun before the settlement of its date. The attack on the treaty was begun by De Valera in Cork on Sunday, Feb. 19. His chief argument was that by taking an oath of allegiance to the British Crown the Irish Deputies would in effect make British subjects of the entire Irish nation. Collins replied to this on the opening of the Free State campaign at Dublin on March 5, declaring that the Free State was a "stepping-stone to a republic" and that the oath would be binding only during the stepping-stone period. Labor entered the campaign on a nationalization-of-public-utilities platform. It re-ruined to take a stand on the treaty, promising to sit with the Government in Dail Eilreann in event of its defeat and as a Republican opposition in the Parliament of South Ireland in event of its popular acceptance.

Dail Eilreann, which adjourned after making Griffith President, met again on Feb. 28. A motion to rescind its previous acceptance of the treaty was introduced by De Valera and defeated. A motion then was put forward to make a new register of voters, the last registration having taken place before the outbreak of the World War. This motion was referred to the President, Griffith, who declared that a new register could not be made in time for the general election, which was set for May 22. The practical reason given by De Valera for wanting the voting lists revised was that nearly half of the Republican Army were under twenty-nine years of age and thus deprived of the franchise.

SPLIT IN THE FORCES.

Following the appointment of several brigades of the Irish Republican Army to do duty under the direction of the Provisional Free State Government, a split in the force became evident that extended to the smallest command. Men who were opposed to the treaty gradually segregated themselves from the others, who they claimed, were being used for political purposes. In the South extremely few brigades were willing to accept the commands of their superiors in the Provisional Government and brigades from the West and East were sent into the areas of the Southern commands to take over on behalf of the Provisional Government the barracks that had been vacated by the British military and the "Black and Tans." This process led during the first week in March to a concentration of the forces of both Republican and Free State troops in the city of Limerick and the posting of a proclamation by the Republican commander complaining against the Defense Minister's bringing the army into politics until after the election. For a while it appeared as though civil war would then and there break out but the crisis was averted by the Free State's withdrawing from Munster all but Munster brigades and leaving to the Republicans their portion of the barracks there.

On St. Patrick's Day, March 17, a new crisis was very nearly brought about by De Valera's "marching through blood" speech. This amounted to an attack on the "stepping-stone" argument by showing that ultimately the change from Free State to republic would have to be an unconstitutional one and one therefore that would necessitate the shedding of blood. But instead of shedding the blood of Britishers, he said, the Irish people of that future generation would have to fight against Irishmen sworn to uphold the Free State. Thus, he concluded, "the march to the republic would be through the blood of Irishmen."

On the same day President Griffith, by a Presidential proclamation, banned the Army Council Convention which had been called for March 26 to discuss ways and means of dealing with political partisanship among members of the General Staff. Attendance at the convention was declared punishable by court martial. When, on March 26, the convention met, therefore, the political split in the army organization was rendered irremediable. The work of the convention consisted in repudiating the authority of Dail Eilreann for having ratified the treaty and in setting up an alleged military dictatorship of the republic until the formation of a new Dail. Henceforth the troops of the dictatorship refused obedience to the General Staff and became known as "irregulars."

On March 25, the night before the "outlawed" army convention, a body of Republican soldiers of the Belfast City Brigade raided the Orange Hall in Dublin and threw the place open as a shelter for Catholic refugees from the North. The Craig-Collins pact had been repudiated in the North and consistent efforts were made to drive the Catholic population from their homes in Belfast. In attacks made on Catholic districts, 85 persons were killed and over 280 wounded during the month of February alone. In March the numbers had increased and several hundred Catholic families had sought refuge in the Free State. Of the persons killed, about one-sixth were Protestants, some of them casual passers-by, but most of them members of lynch parties. Two days after the seizure of the Orange Hall the Masonic Hall was also taken over for the same purpose and penniless refugees who could not be accommodated in the two "barracks" were billeted out on Unionist families of Dublin who by family ties or associations were connected with the Caranites of the North.

On March 30 a treaty of peace was signed at London by Michael Collins on the one hand and Sir James Craig on the other. The import of this was that it provided for the representation of Catholics on the police force of Belfast and for a special court of two judges, one Catholic and one Protestant, to try, without jury, persons charged with lynching. Previously, no jury could be found to convict on a charge of crime against Catholics. The treaty was broken, however, before any of these reforms could be put into effect. An effort on the part of the irregular forces in the South to re-establish the Ulster boycott, which had been removed by the original Craig-Collins pact of January 21, was pointed to by Craig as an indication of bad faith.

CIVIL WAR.

The irregulars celebrated the anniversary of the uprising of 1916 by seizing the Four Courts on April 14. This was occupied as the general headquarters of the irregular forces and hastily fortified. Efforts were made to secure its evacuation, and when it appeared that the Free State would employ regular troops to force out the men under Rory O'Connor and Liam Mellows, the Archbishop of Dublin interceded. Successive peace conferences were held. Labor called a strike in protest against a possible outbreak of civil war, and on April 24 not a single stroke of work was done throughout Ireland. The Archbishop's peace conference finally broke down on April 29, and on May Day additional irregular troops entered the city and occupied the Ballast House, the Kildare Street Club and the Sunlight House. These, with the Four Courts, form the four best strategic points in Dublin. In the meanwhile the irregulars throughout the country had been running up bills for supplies. These they paid after having engineered a series of raids on local branches of the Bank of Ireland and taking off whatever cash happened to be handy. They left in return eight drafts of the Provisional Government for the amounts taken.

Civil war broke out in Munster on May 3. The following day, however, a truce was signed covering four days and a "Committee of Ten," five Free Staters and five Republicans, were appointed by Dail Eilreann "to explore every possibility of agreement between the two sections of the army." Two days later the Ballast House was evacuated. This, however, was a political move to pacify labor, which was being gradually estranged from the Republican viewpoint by irregular tactics resulting in the throwing of men out of work. The truce was extended day by day until on May 20 the Collins-De Valera pact was signed. In accordance with this, the general election which had on the meanwhile been postponed to June 16, was to be held; a National Coalition panel representing both parties was to be put forward; the number of candidates of each division of Sinn Fein was to equal its representation in the extant Dail; that any other interest was free to contest the election against the National Coalition Party; that after the election the President's Cabinet was to include four Republicans, Ministers and five Free Staters. The initial consequence of the pact was that the election was not to be fought on the issue of the treaty or Constitution which was to be put into effect on the Government's own authority and without committing the nation during the five years of the Government's life. After that the question of Free State or republic was to be decided by the people.

The British Cabinet was frank in its demand for an explanation of this pact. It suspected the pact of being an open violation of the treaty. Collins, however, was able to show that without it there could be no hope for an election before the legal lapse of the treaty.

On June 5 the Coalition agreement was unanimously accepted by Dail Eilreann and De Valera managed to secure for it the support of the irregular army commanders, O'Connor and Mellows. Over the irregulars, it appears, De Valera never had any authority and their repudiation of the Dail's authority in March did not apparently receive his support.

Since the acceptance of the treaty in January a committee of experts in political science had been gathering frequently under the headship of Daniel Figgis to frame a Constitution. This was completed and on June 7 was brought to London and submitted "informally and confidentially" to the British Cabinet. The imprimatur of this body was secured and the text of the Constitution was made public. Two days later the polling took place. Of the Coalition candidates put forward, 88 were returned. Labor secured 15 seats. But individuals who had run as independent candidates on pro-treaty platforms defeated 15 of the anti-treaty candidates of the Coalition panel. The number of Free Staters in the new Dail was increased to 70 as against 33 Republicans. In view of this fact the election was interpreted as indicating the popular acceptance of the treaty.

Six days after the Irish election had taken place and before the returns had been completed, the assassination occurred in London of Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, military dictator of Northern Ireland. The assassination was attributed to Sinn Féin, though it was subsequently proved at the trial of the assassins that they had never belonged to any branch of the I. R. A. A serious threat to declare the treaty violated and send back the British armed forces into Ireland was made by the Cabinet and Collins to defend the position of the Provisional Free State Government, opened a general campaign against the irregular forces by attacking the Four Courts on June 28.

Collins was severely criticised for not convoking Dail Eireann before he had started civil war. His use of arms against the Four Courts was also objected to, it having been supposed that if at any time occasion arose to drive the irregulars out, a cordon could be thrown about the place and prevent the garrison's receiving its food supply.

By July 5, all men of military age were drafted into the regular forces and ordered mobilized. Two days thereafter, Cathal Brugha, commander of the irregulars, in occupation of the Grosvenor Hotel, died of wounds he had received in the fighting. With the fall of the Four Courts after an artillery siege of five days, Rory O'Connor and Liam Mellows were taken prisoner and sent to Mountjoy Prison. Waterford was bombarded on July 20 and taken the following day, a few hours after Limerick had fallen. The movement on Cork began on Aug. 10 and the city was taken without a fight on Aug. 11.

The day after the capture of Cork, Arthur Griffith died in Dublin and ten days after his chief had succumbed Michael Collins was killed in action near Cork (Aug. 22).

The transatlantic cables were cut by irregulars outside of Cork on Aug. 29.

The Provisional Free State Government, left without a head, was embarrassed next by a strike of postal employees who refused to accept a cut in wages which they considered disproportionate to the lowering of living costs. The strike continued from Sept. 7 to 30. It was met finally by the Government's agreeing to graduate the cut over a period of a year.

THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT.

On Sept. 9 Dail Eireann met and elected William Cosgrave President. Then resolving itself into the Parliament for Southern Ireland it elected the same man Chairman of the Provisional Free State Government. Since that date the distinction between the two positions and between the two assemblies has been lost. Cosgrave appointed as his Cabinet: Ernest Blythe, Minister for Local Government; Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister for Foreign Affairs; P. J. Hogan, Minister of Agriculture; Joseph McGrath, Minister for Trade and Commerce; Richard Mulcahy, Minister of Defence; J. J. Walsh, Postmaster General; Eoin MacNeill, Minister of Education, and Kevin O'Higgins, Minister for Home Affairs. The portfolios of Labor and Economic Affairs were given to the Minister for Trade and Commerce.

Throughout July, August, September and part of October civil war continued to be waged without respite. On Oct. 10 the Bishops and Archbishops took cognizance of this in a pastoral letter which declared all members of the irregular forces excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church, subject only to appeal to the Holy See at Rome.

On Oct. 14 several excerpts from correspondence of De Valera and other irregular leaders, all of which had been intercepted by the Provisional Government, were published in a "White Paper."

These prove generally that De Valera had no control over the irregular army council and was not therefore personally responsible for the acts of the irregulars up at least to the date of the intercepted letters.

On Oct. 25 Dail Eireann unanimously adopted the Constitution that had been presented to the people before the June election.

Owing to the change of Ministry and dissolution of Parliament in London, the Irish Constitution Bill was not brought before Parliament until Nov. 24. It was, however, promptly passed by the House of Commons and sent to the Lords, who passed it on Dec. 5.

NOW A COMMONWEALTH.

King George signed the proclamation constituting the Irish Free State on Dec. 6; Timothy M. Healy was sworn in as Governor General, and the Free State came legally into operation at 5 P. M., when the Dail convened as the Chambers of Deputies of the Irish Free State Parliament and the Irish flag of green, white and orange replaced the British Union Jack over the Viceroyal Lodge.

Prof. Hayes was re-elected as Speaker and William Cosgrave President of the Dail Cabinet, was elected without opposition President of the new Executive Council. President Cosgrave that night announced his list of thirty nominations for the Senate; the more prominent of them were: the Earl of Granard, the Earl of Wicklow, the Earl of Kerry, the Marquis of Headfort, Baron Glenavy, the Earl of Mayo, the Earl of Dunraven, Gen. Sir Bryan Mahon, Sir Horace Plunkett, Sir Thomas Edmonds, Murth FitzGerald of the Freeman's Journal, Henry Guinness, a governor of the Bank of Ireland; Dr. George Sigerson, professor of biology, University of Dublin; William Butler Yeats, poet; the Dowager Countess of Desart and Mrs. Wyse Power.

On the following day Deputy Sean Hailes was shot and killed and Deputy Speaker Pat. O'Malley wounded on their way to Parliament. In retaliation four Republican leaders were executed the next morning at Mountjoy Prison, the official report saying: "as reprisal for the assassination and as a solemn warning to those associated with them who are engaged in this assassination conspiracy against the Irish people's representatives." These men were Rory O'Connor, Liam Mellows, the two leaders of the Four Courts siege in the summer, Joseph McKelvey and Richard Barrett.

Previously Erskine Childers, perhaps the ablest of De Valera's lieutenants, who had been captured on Nov. 10, had been tried for the unlawful possession of a revolver, found guilty and after prolonged legal struggle was executed on Nov. 24. This followed the execution of four other irregulars on a similar charge a few days before.

Deputy Miss Mary McSwiney, who after her arrest carried on a hunger strike in Mountjoy Prison was released after the 24th day, on Nov. 27.

The Irish budget was submitted to the Dail Eireann on Oct. 6. It provided for expenditure for the fiscal year ending March 31, amounting to £37,709,586, which was equal to the total of the British revenue from the taxation of Ireland in 1920. The cost of the army was estimated at £7,245,000. As compensation for property that had been destroyed £10,000,000 was allowed; for education £4,000,000; for pensions, £1,800,000 and Post Office, £2,750,000.

Both Houses of the Ulster Parliament at Belfast voted unanimously on Dec. 7 to "contract out" of the Irish Free State.

NEW PRESIDENT OF POLAND ASSASSINATED.

Gabriel Narutowicz, who was elected President of Poland by the National Assembly in Warsaw on Dec. 9, 1922, and who had taken over the supreme authority from Marshal Pilsudski on the 14th, was assassinated on Dec. 16, while visiting an art exhibition in Warsaw.

When the election took place a pitched battle followed his unexpected choice, in which four were killed and over 100 injured. The opposition came mainly from the Nationalists representing the purely Polish population who asserted that he was elected by the votes of the Jews, Ukrainians, Germans and Russians, receiving only 186 Polish votes while 227 Polish votes were cast for Count Zamoyski (Mieczyslaw Rataj), newly elected speaker of the House is to act as President pending a new election by the National Assembly.

NEW PRESIDENT OF URUGUAY.

Jose Serrato, nominee of the Colorado Party, was elected President of Uruguay for the four year term beginning March 1, 1923, on Nov. 26, by a majority of 6,000 in a total vote of 238,000.

DEATHS AND INJURIES FROM ACCIDENTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Estimates as to the number of deaths from accidents in the United States in 1922 range from 75,000 to 95,000; and estimates as to the total of injuries by accidents vary from 2,000,000 to 12,000,000. There is no way of finding out the actual number either of deaths or of accidents. The United States Census Bureau's figures as to the deaths and causes thereof cover only the so-called registration area, which excludes many of the States. Even in the registration area, the figures are not complete, inasmuch as many death certificates give only the final, not the contributory, cause of death. The estimates of casualty and insurance companies are based, likewise, on official death certificates, and are open to the same objection. Industrial corporations and workmen's compensation boards get a little closer to the facts, but only as to industrial injuries and deaths.

RISE OF THE FASCISTI TO POWER IN ITALY.

By a swift, almost bloodless revolution, the Fascisti, headed by Benito Mussolini, seized the Italian Government on Oct. 30, 1922, ousting the Government headed by Premier Facta. The coup d'état followed the Congress of the Fascisti at Naples the week previous, when Mussolini on Oct. 26 declared:

"I take a solemn oath that either the Government of the country must be given peacefully to the Fascisti, or we will take it by force."

Having seized the Government, Premier Mussolini, who took the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, declared in the Italian Senate on Nov. 27, 1922: "People forget that liberty is a duty and not a right. I am not afraid of words. Therefore I proclaim myself the Prince of Reaction. But I will not follow an anti-proletariat policy; I will not oppress the proletariat, but will elevate them materially and spiritually—not because their number entitles them to special rights. No great nation can be created when workmen are obliged to suffer from a low standard of living."

There was much excitement all over Italy, especially in the ranks of the monarchists, who believed that Mussolini and his Fascisti intended to set aside the House of Savoy, then declare a republic. Mussolini, however, appeared before the King and later upon the balcony of the Quirinal, calling for cheers for the royal family, declaring that he and his followers wanted merely the reins of governmental authority to gain their ends for the good of Italy and had no purpose to upset the existing forms of government. He pledged his loyalty to the Crown, calling upon his followers to repeat his pledge.

His general outline of policy included the transfer of the Government railways, telephones, telegraphs, tobacco factories and other unprofitable governmental monopolies to private hands, and thus lift the enormous load of direct and indirect taxation from the people—which averaged one-fifth of their total income—enabling the practically bankrupt National Treasury to balance its budget.

The Chamber of Deputies on November 25, by a vote of 225 to 90 gave the Mussolini Government full powers for bureaucratic and fiscal reforms until Dec. 31, 1923. The Senate vote two days later was unanimous.

The municipal elections in Milan, which had been one of the centers of the strongest opposition to the Fascisti, were held on December 12; they resulted in the Fascisti winning by a majority of 21,567 over all others, the vote standing: National Bloc (Fascisti), 87,368; Socialists, 45,254; Maximalists, 17,259; Communists, 2,288.

Premier Mussolini made up his Cabinet thus: Premier, Minister of the Interior and Foreign Affairs, Benito Mussolini.

Minister of War, Gen. Armando Diaz (Monarchist, but no party affiliation).

Minister of Marine, Vice-Admiral Thaon di Revel (Monarchist, but no party affiliation).

Minister of Treasury, Prof. Luigi Einaudi (Nationalist).

Minister of Colonies, Luigi Fedoroni (Nationalist).

Minister Liberated Regions, Signor Giuriati (Fascista).

Minister of Justice, Aldo Oviglio Quirinal.

Minister of Education, Signor Gentile (Democrat).

Minister of Agriculture, Luigi Capitanio (Fascista).

Minister of Public Works, Signor Carnazza (Nationalist).

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, Signor di Cesara (Nationalist).

Minister of Social Welfare, Stefano Cavazzoni (Catholic).

Once the leader of the Italian Socialists, now the avowed enemy of everything that smacks of socialism in its red forms—syndicalism, sovietism, or communism—Benito Mussolini is the idol of the Italian working and middle classes, and as Premier has gripped Italy with a power that has hitherto been unknown in any Cabinet of modern times. Mussolini is almost six feet in height, with eyes slightly protuberant, but steady, with a firm, square jaw, and rigidly set lips. He is a veteran of the World War, and received more than 100 wounds. He is known as a "revolutionary socialist to the core." Yet his present "Fascisti movement" is one of extreme patriotism and imperialism, and its present purpose is the destruction of all forms of "red" socialism.

Fascista is an Italian word meaning a member of the "Fascio," which means a bundle of sticks. The word drew its origin from the old Roman legions, the bodyguards of the ancient Roman Consuls, who carried an axe with the handle surrounded by a bundle of sticks (fasces).

The emblem of the Fascisti in Italy is the black shirt, usually of silk, and a stout cane, although the military branch of the organization carry arms, principally revolvers. Khaki trousers of the military type usually complete the costume. (fasces.)

Mussolini, before the fatal days of August, 1914, was in constant collision with the Italian authorities. He led the Socialist outbreak before the war that required 300,000 troops to put down. But no sooner had the two Kaisers loosed their "dogs of war" than Mussolini's inherent, instinctive sense of right asserted itself. Mussolini was then editor of one of the powerful Socialist organs of Italy, the Milanesse Avanti, or Forward. Fascists in the Socialist party did their best to keep Italy from entering the struggle against German imperialism, and when Mussolini discovered their determination not to "see the light," he severed his connection with the Avanti and started an opposition paper, the Popolo d'Italia, with the avowed purpose of preaching intervention. He remained with this newspaper until his class was called to the colors, and he left for the front in August, 1915. There was nothing of the theorist in the man—he was eminently practical, and after the collapse of Russia and the introduction of Bolshevism, Mussolini's paper thundered daily against the "Red Terror," that threatened for time to lay strong hands upon the newly annexed provinces of Italy.

Three years ago, Italian workers, urged on by these conquered Slavs, under the influence of Bolshevism, were seizing factories and turning Italy into a second Russia (in 1919). In those days a man with a white collar who appeared on the streets in north Italian towns was almost certain to be set upon and badly beaten by communistic workmen.

Mussolini's action was swift. Ex-soldiers, out of jobs and looking for excitement, formed Mussolini's weapon. He organized, in January, 1919, a mere handful of these men, and swooped down upon the great industrial cities in defiance of the lax governmental authorities, and challenged the Communists to combat. Incidents like that at Bologna developed, where the Fascisti took entire charge of the city's industry for weeks.

The Fascisti adopted a system of swooping down suddenly upon towns and villages where communistic trouble was fermenting, and spread themselves all over it, flourishing clubs, revolvers and chanting their battle cry against Bolshevism.

After four months of guerrilla warfare, the Socialists and the Fascisti signed a truce, constituting a "court of last resort, whose judgment shall be final." This agreement was entered into on Aug. 15, 1921. It was kept with more or less friction until the seizure of the Facta Government.

In the meanwhile, the numbers and power of the Fascisti grew amazingly, and at present he has more than 2,000,000 followers. At the Naples Congress, in October, 1922, the organization had grown to the following proportions: 600,000 in the political group not under military discipline, 800,000 drawn from trade unions, which until recently had been socialistic, and 350,000 active combatants, armed, drilled and kept in a state of rigid military discipline, organized on the model of the legions of Rome. Signor Dino Grandi, a member of the Italian Parliament and Secretary of the Fascisti group in that body, puts their strength thus:

"We have 800,000 workmen in our ranks, organized into National Trade Unions, and engaged in their respective trades. We enroll 40,000 rural laborers, 55,000 sailors and longshoremen, 50,000 clerks, 200,000 factory operatives, 55,000 railway and tramway servants, 10,000 factory and post office employees, and 20,000 workers in other lines."

In addition, the Fascisti have associated with themselves the Nationalists, an organization which takes no part whatever in active fighting, but which comprises farmers and others in entire sympathy with the Fascisti movement.

The Fascisti, and the masses of Italy, were opposed to the system of elections giving proportional representation in the Chamber of Deputies as set up as a compromise three years before by Premier Nitti. The Socialist Deputies were too much in power in governmental affairs, according to the Fascisti, in their war upon the organization. The calling of the Fascisti Congress in October, 1922, was to find means of ousting this system.

Following Mussolini's success in Italy, the movement, or rather similar organizations are springing up all over Europe and threaten to engulf the Governments of Central Europe particularly. The menace is particularly strong in Bavaria, where there is a Fascista army of 60,000. There are also strong organizations active in Hungary, the Austrian Tyrol, Czechoslovakia, and the beginning of organizations in Mexico.

Big Problems of 1922-1923.

FOREIGN DEBTS OWED TO THE UNITED STATES.

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, in his annual report to Congress, made public Dec. 6, 1922, in regard to the inter-Allied debts due the United States Government said:

"The obligations of various foreign governments held by the Treasury on November 15, 1922, aggregated $10,045,282,026.60, principal amount, and may be classified as follows:

"(1) $9,386,311,178.10 representing loans made by the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, under the Liberty bond acts,

"(2) $574,876,884.95 received from the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy on account of sales of surplus war material under the act of July 9, 1918,

"(3) $84,093,963.55 received from the American Relief Administration on account of relief supplies furnished under the act of Feb. 25, 1919.

"In addition to the above, the United States Grain Corporation, the entire stock of which is owned by this Government, holds obligations of various foreign governments amounting to $56,858,802.49. It is expected that these obligations, which were acquired by the Grain Corporation on account of sales of flour for relief purposes under the act of March 30, 1920, will also be turned over to the Treasury Department for custody upon the completion of the pending liquidation of that corporation. Notes of the Polish Government amounting to about $24,000,000 are also held by the War Department and the United States Shipping Board. It is understood that these obligations were received on account of sales of surplus war material by the former and transportation services by the latter, and that the amounts may be subject to further adjustment.

"The balance of the credit which was granted to the Czechoslovak Republic to assist that Government in the repatriation of its troops from Siberia was $6,072,834.36 at the beginning of the fiscal year 1922. The movement of these troops was carried out by the War Department and the Shipping Board, and on May 29, 1922, the Czechoslovak Republic used $717,834.36 out of this credit to reimburse the Shipping Board for its services. The balance to the credit of that republic is now $5,355,000, and whatever may remain after all payments to the War Department have been completed will be withdrawn.

"It is not contemplated that any further advances will be made by the Treasury against the credits in favor of Greece.

"The following statement shows the amount of advances which have been repaid up to Nov. 15, 1922 (cents omitted):

"The $30,500,000 repaid by the British Government during the past year was on account of the obligations of that Government given for purchases of silver under the Pittman Act.

"The repayments made by the Governments of Belgium and Serbia and substantially all of those made by France during the past year represent the unused balances of the advances made by the Treasury to those Governments and turned over by them to the Commission for Relief in Belgium and to the American Relief Commission to be expended for relief purposes. These unused balances were returned to the Treasury to be applied as payments on account of the principal of the obligations of the respective Governments.

NO REPAYMENTS OF PRINCIPAL.

"No repayments of principal have been made on any of the obligations acquired under the acts of July 9, 1918, Feb. 25, 1919, or March 30, 1920.

"On page 58 of the Annual Report of the Secretary of the Treasury for the fiscal year 1920 reference was made to two special funds arising out of the liquidation of certain property of the Russian Government and held for Russia by the Secretary of the Treasury, aggregating $2,143,601.07. On Aug. 3, 1922, these funds were applied (1) to cancel the unpaid balance of the interest, amounting to $1,808,500, which became due on Russian obligations, May 15, 1918; and (2) as part payment of the unpaid balance of the interest due November 15, 1918. Most of the funds which the Treasury has received in payment of interest on Russian obligations represent the proceeds of liquidation of the financial affairs of the Russian Government in this country.

"The Treasury understands that no interest has been paid on the obligations held by the United States Grain Corporation, acquired under the act of March 30, 1920."

The Secretary of the Treasury quotes in full his statement of August 24, called out by the Lord Balfour note sent out by the British Government August 1, regarding the status of the obligations of foreign governments held by the United States, and particularly the origin of the indebtedness of the British Government to the United States. In part he said:

"A number of inquiries have been received, as a result of statements recently published, with respect to the exact status of the obligations of foreign governments held by the United States. Especial attention has been directed to the origin of the indebtedness of the British Government, amounting to about $4,135,000,000. It has been said that this liability was not incurred for the British Government, but for the other allies, and that the United States, in making the original arrangements, had insisted in substance that though the other allies were to use the money borrowed, it was only on British security that the United States was prepared to lend it. It is apparent from the inquiries which have reached the Treasury Department that it is supposed that this, in substance, is the explanation of the existing indebtedness of Great Britain.

"In answer to these inquiries it should be said that the obligations of foreign governments, in question, had their origin almost entirely in purchases made in the United States, and the advances by the United States Government were for the purpose of covering payments for these purchases by the Allies.

"The statement that the United States Government virtually insisted upon a guaranty by the British Government of amounts advanced to the other allies is evidently based upon a misapprehension. Instead of insisting upon a guaranty, or any transaction of that nature, the United States Government took the position that it would make advances to each Government to cover the purchases made by that Government and would not require any Government to give obligations for advances made to cover the purchases of any other Government. Thus, the advances to the British Government, evidenced by its obligations, were made to cover its own purchases, and advances were made to the other allies to cover their purchases.

"The respective borrowing nations each gave their own obligations for the money advanced by the United States and that no guaranty of the obligations of one borrowing nation was asked from any other nation."

OBLIGATIONS OF FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS HELD BY UNITED STATES.

The total obligations of foreign governments held by the United States, together with the interest accrued and remaining unpaid thereon as of the last interest period prior to or ending with Nov. 15, 1922, is shown in this table from the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, submitted to Congress. The table is the recapitulation of the four tables below which show how the several obligations were incurred (cents omitted):

AMERICAN BANKERS

The question of the Allied debts was the major topic of discussion at the 48th Annual Convention of the American Bankers' Association which opened with 12,000 delegates, in New York, on Oct. 3, 1922. Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., in welcoming the delegates that day, said, "Over a year ago the British realized that the Germans could, or would, never pay anything like the reparations total fixed in the Versailles Treaty. (a) No interest due on Nicaragua notes until maturity, as is also the case of certain Belgian obligations aggregating $2,284,151.40.

(b) Interest has been paid as it became due.

(c) Includes $61,000,000 of British obligations which were given for Pittman silver advances and for which an agreement for payment has been made.

(d) Great Britain paid $50,000,000 on Oct. 16, 1922, and $50,000,000 on Nov. 15, 1922, on account of interest on other than Pittman silver obligations.

KEENLY INTERESTED.

Belgian Government became similarly convinced, and now, in France, as I have talked there with many classes of representative Frenchmen, there has come to be the same recognition of the fact that Germany cannot pay the huge totals set forth.

"The French Government, however, has not unaturally taken the position that it could make no official acknowledgment of such a general fact until such time as a possible settlement was offered. The French thesis is that if Germany cannot pay what she has promised to pay, let her come forward and state just why she cannot, and what and when she can pay; when they receive such a proposition they will be prepared to act.

"Let us by investigation determine what, if any, of these debts are in any way uncollectable, and so should be written off in order to 'quit fooling ourselves.' Let us decide what others of these debtors are good in part, but must be given ample time to pay in—far longer, perhaps, than 25 years. Empirically, let us figure to see whether the payment of these debts (which inevitably must mean a great increase in our import and a heavy decrease in our export trade) is going to prove an asset or a liability for American business."

Thomas B. McAdams, of Richmond, President of the association, made the Allied debts the subject of his address, pointing out that the United States must co-operate wholeheartedly in ending international chaos, and declared that permanent prosperity for the United States can come if this country uses her "resources in brain and money to help to bring about a practical solution of the chaotic situation now threatening to destroy the economic life of Europe." He declared "the Allied nations must throw aside unnecessary prejudices and reach an agreement as to modifying reparation payments which will fairly care for the needs of France and at the same time not utterly demoralize the industrial life of Germany."

Essentials, in his opinion, were the further reduction of armaments, the balancing of the French budget, realization by France of the unlikelihood of new German military aggression and the preparation by all countries of a readjustment of reparations and interrelated debt, "upon a basis which fully recognizes the rights of the creditor and which will relieve the immediate burden of the debtor countries."

M'KENNA'S CONCLUSIONS.

The chief address of the convention was made on Oct. 4 by Reginald McKenna, formerly Chancellor of the British Exchequer and now Chairman of the London Joint City & Midland Bank, Ltd., of London, which was devoted to the same subject, speaking, he emphasized, solely from the standpoint of a banker, and with nothing to do with politics. He said in part:

"In their report to the Reparation Commission the Bankers' Committee which sat early this summer in Paris laid stress upon the need to resume normal trade conditions between countries and to stabilize exchanges, and they came to the conclusion that neither of these aims could be accomplished without a definite settlement of the reparation and other international debts. There will be general agreement that there is no matter of more deep concern to the world's trade at the present time than reparation payments and international debts."

"The inevitable conclusion is that these international debts are far too great for the capacity of any of the debtor countries except England. She alone in her accumulated foreign investments has adequate resources with which to discharge her liability to the United States. Of the others, France has the greatest resources, but they are, I believe, quite insufficient to meet her obligations. The whole subject requires a rational reconstruction by the creditors, who must keep steadily in view immediate effect of the payment of these debts of the general trade of the world."

"England has the ability to pay, and, I can unhesitatingly assert her determination to honor her bond in full. I believe I am justified in asking you to treat England's debt to the United States as certain to be provided for, and, if this be conceded, we shall be free to consider the question of the remaining international debts, as one in which America and England are equally concerned and in which both have the same interest as creditors."

"To sum up: The conclusion to which I am driven is that Germany can only pay now whatever she may have in foreign balances together with such amount as she can realize by the sale of her remaining foreign securities, that this payment is only possible if all other demands are postponed for a definite period long enough to insure the stabilization of the mark; and that future demands at the expiration of this period must be limited to the annual amount of Germany's exportable surplus at that time."

"Further, that England has the capacity to pay to the United States interest and sinking fund on her debt; but that the other debtors are none of them in a position to meet more than a small part of their external liabilities, and in the existing conditions of Europe a definite postponement of all the parties by them is desirable in the interest of all the parties. The actual amount which the other debtors could ultimately pay should, as in the case of Germany, be ascertained by inquiry into their exportable surplus at a full and frank conference between creditors and debtors."

"I have strictly confined myself to a consideration of the economic aspect of reparations and international debts, how they are payable, the general capacity of a debtor country to pay, and the effect of payment. If I have become convinced that an attempt to enforce payment beyond the debtor's ability is injurious to the international trade of the whole world, lowers wages, reduces profits and is a direct cause of unemployment, the conclusion is founded solely on economic grounds and is uninfluenced by any political considerations or any regard to the moral obligations of the debtors."

RESOLUTION OF THE CONVENTION.

The convention adopted this resolution:

"We call attention again to the seriousness of the foreign situation, especially of Europe, which is affecting detrimentally our own conditions and preventing even those industries in our country which are not dependent upon foreign trade from recovering fully from the depression which otherwise would be rapidly disappearing."

"There is no possibility of a healthy and normal situation in this country until the nations with whom we trade are able to pay us for what they import. As this can be done in the main only by the means of exports to us, we trust that the President will not hesitate to make use of the power granted him by the new tariff law to make such adjustments in the schedules as may be necessary from time to time for a restoration of our international commerce."

"We believe that the time has come for the Government of our country to formulate the principles on which it will be able to co-operate with other nations to bring about the needed rehabilitation of European countries and peace in the world."

"To this end we urge the Administration to consider the advisability of promptly making its representative upon the Reparation Commission an official of that body; we also recommend to Congress that there be granted to the Debt Funding Commission such further powers as will enable it to negotiate more effectively with the foreign nations now debtors of the United States."

WORLD WAR FOREIGN DEBT COMMISSION.

The World War Foreign Debt Commission was created by the act of Feb. 9, 1922, authorized to refund or convert, and to extend the time of payment of the principal and the interest, of any obligation of any foreign Government now held by the United States of America, or any obligation of any foreign Government hereafter received by the United States of America (including obligations held by the United States Grain Corporation, the War Department, the Navy Department, or the American Relief Administration), arising out of the World War, into bonds or other obligations of such foreign Government in substitution for the bonds or other obligations of such Government now or hereafter held by the United States of America, on such form and of such terms, conditions, date, or dates of maturity, and rate or rates of interest, and with such security, if any, as shall be deemed for the interests of the United States of America. The commission cannot extend the time of maturity of such bonds beyond June 15, 1947, or fix the rate of interest at less than 4½ per cent. per annum; nor can it exchange the bonds or other obligations of any foreign Government for those of any other foreign Government, or cancel any part of such indebtedness except through payment thereof.

The Secretary of the Treasury is chairman of the commission and the President appointed on Feb. 21, 1922, Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State; Herbert C. Hoover, Secretary of Commerce; Reed Smoot, United States Senator; and Theodore E. Burton, member of the House of Representatives, as the other members.

The commission organized April 18, 1922, and by resolution requested the Secretary of State to inform each of the Governments whose obligations, arising out of the World War, are held by the United States that the commission desires to receive any proposals or representations which the said Government may wish to make for the settlement or refunding of its obligations under the provisions of the act.

The Secretary of State so instructed the diplomatic representatives of this Government at the capitals of each of the foreign Governments indebted to the United States, with the exception of Armenia, Austria, Cuba, Greece, Liberia, Nicaragua, and Russia. This action was not taken in respect to the Governments above named, says the Secretary, for the following reasons:

"Armenia, Greece, and Russia: In none of these countries is there a Government recognized by the United States."

"Austria: Congress passed on April 6, 1922, a joint resolution giving the Secretary of the Treasury special authority to deal with the Austrian debt."

"Cuba: Interest and instalments of principal are being regularly paid and no refunding is required. "Liberia: An act authorizing a new loan, from the proceeds of which the existing loan will be repaid in full, has already been passed by the House of Representatives pursuant to request of the Department of State, and is now pending before the Senate. "Nicaragua: This debt is regarded as already in funded form.

In response to the invitation of this Government the following countries have designated representatives to negotiate with the commission: Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Finland, France, Great Britain, Hungary, Poland, Roumania, and Serbia."

In July, 1922, the French Government sent a special mission, headed by M. Jean V. Parmentier, director of the movement of funds of the French Treasury, to the United States, to discuss with the commission the French debt to this Government. M. Parmentier placed in the hands of the commission certain data relating to the financial and economic situation of France. He explained that the French Government did not consider it possible at the present time to enter into any definite engagements for a funding or settlement of its debt and desired to postpone for an indefinite period consideration of this matter, until the financial situation of France should become more clear, particularly as to reparation receipts from Germany. The commission's position on the subject was explained to M. Parmentier, and especially its desire that a funding of the French debt should take place in the near future. On Aug. 17, 1922, M. Parmentier informed the chairman of the commission that he had been keeping his Government informed of the progress made in the negotiations and that he had received a cable instructing him to return for a full discussion with his Government of the situation as it had developed.

BRITISH VIEW OF THE DEBTS.

Lord Balfour in the British Government note of August 1, said:

"Speaking in general terms, the war debts, exclusive of interest, due to Great Britain at the present moment amount in the aggregate to about £3,400,000,000, of which Germany owes £1,450,000,000; Russia, £550,000,000, and our allies £1,300,000,000. On the other hand, Great Britain owes the United States about a quarter of this sum, say £850,000,000, at par of exchange, together with interest accrued since 1919."

An authoritative British Government statement carried by the Associated Press on August 26, said, in part:

"It is true that with the exception of the sum of about $140,000,000 which was lent to the British Government to be immediately re-lent to Russia for the purpose of Russian dollar expenditures in United States, the whole proceeds of the United States Government's advances to Great Britain were applied toward meeting Great Britain's expenditures in the United States.

"Answering a question in the House of Commons, Oct. 20, 1921, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said: 'I think the simplest method of expressing the position is to say that after the entry of the United States into the war this country borrowed from the United States Government $4,277,000,000 (£876,- 000,000 at par), and that during the period in which the country was borrowing from the United States Government the British Government advanced to its Allies $279,000,000. If we had not had to meet any calls for assistance from our Allies it would have been unnecessary for us to ask the United States Government's assistance.'"

FRANCE LISTS WAR DEBTS.

In connection with the notification to the French Government that the American Debt Refunding Commission has been organized, the following balance sheet of French war debts in gold francs has been made public in Paris on May 3:

| Debtor.                                | Gold Francs.          |
|----------------------------------------|-----------------------|
| To the United States .....             | 13,750,000,000        |
| To Great Britain .....                 | 12,750,000,000        |
| Total .....                     | 26,500,000,000 |
| Creditor.                       |                       |
| From Italy .....                       | 1,000,000,000         |
| From Russia .....                      | 4,000,000,000         |
| From Belgium .....                     | 2,250,000,000         |
| From Jugo-Slavia .....                 | 500,000,000           |
| Other Allies, including Roumania ..... | 1,250,000,000         |
| Total .....                     | 9,000,000,000  |
| Reparations due from Germany .....     | 68,000,000,000        |

The statement continued: "It is not pretended that the whole 68,000,000,000 due in reparations ought to be included in the war debt balance sheet, but it is held that at least 25,000,000,000 gold francs already spent by France for the account of Germany in the reconstruction work of Northern France ought to be included. This would bring the credit side of the sheet to 34,000,000,000 gold francs, showing a balance in favor of France of 8,000,000,000 gold francs."

BUDGETS AND LAND ARMAMENTS.

President Harding transmitted to the Senate on Dec. 12, 1922, the following figures prepared by the Department of State giving the totals of the budgets of twelve European states for 1922, and the allocations therein for land armaments; the figures are given in dollars calculated at the present rate of exchange:

| COUNTRIES.           | Total Budget.   | For Land Armament. |
|----------------------|-----------------|--------------------|
|                      | Dollars. | Dollars.    |
| Austria .....        | 5,039,228       | 69,423             |
| Belgium .....        | 490,000,000     | 44,210,400         |

CENTRAL AMERICAN STATES' CONFERENCE.

A conference of the five Central American states and the United States opened in Washington on Dec. 4, 1922. The invitation was extended by Secretary of State Hughes. In his opening address he told the conference that the United States had "no ambition to gratify at your expense, no policy which runs contrary to your national aspirations and no purpose save to promote the interests of peace and to assist you in such manner as you may welcome and solve your problems to your own proper advantage."

The agenda of the conference as set forth in the invitation was:

First, the signing of a treaty binding the five states to make effective and to extend the treaty signed in Washington on Dec. 20, 1907, for the promotion of friendly relations and co-operation among the five nations.

Second, adoption of measures in line with the limitation of armament worked out at the Washington conference to limit the military burdens of the five states and to set an example to the rest of the world, and in particular to the nations of this hemisphere.

Third, formulation of plans for the setting up of a tribunal of inquiry to adjust points or controversies which may arise with regard to the purpose of the treaties and which cannot be settled through diplomatic channels.

The invitation was the outgrowth of a meeting of the Presidents of Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador on the U. S. S. Tacoma in Fonseca Bay, Aug. 20, 1922, for the discussion of measures for more peaceful relations between the countries and to discourage revolutionary activities. The treaty signed that day did not receive the assent of the Presidents of Guatemala and Costa Rica, although both countries resented their adherence to the treaty of 1907. The delegates to the conference were:

Costa Rica: Dr. Octavio Beeche, Minister of Costa Rica in the United States; Sr. Jose Andres Coronado, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Guatemala: Sr. Francisco Sanchez Latour, Minister of Guatemala in the United States; Sr. Marcial Prem, Counsellor of the Legation in Washington.

Honduras: Dr. Alberto Ucles, former Minister of Foreign Affairs; Dr. Salvador Cordova, former Consul in New York; Sr. Raul Toledo Lopez, former Charge d'Affaires of Honduras in France.

Nicaragua: Sr. Emiliano Chamorro, Minister of Nicaragua in the United States; Sr. Adolfo Cardenas, Minister of Finance; Dr. Maximo H. Zepeda, former Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Salvador: Sr. Dr. Francisco Martinez Suarez, President of the Supreme Court of Justice; Sr. Don J. Gustavo Guerrero, Minister to Spain and Italy.

United States: Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of State; Sumner Welles, American Commissioner in the Dominican Republic.

NATIONAL WEALTH.

In June, 1920, in a paper read before the Bankers' Institute, London, Edgar Crammond estimated the national wealth of chief countries as follows: United States, $350,000,000,000 to $400,000,000,000; United Kingdom, $120,000,000,000; France, $92,500,000,000; Germany, $83,000,000,000; Italy, $35,500,000,000; Belgium, $12,000,000,000; Japan, $23,500,000,000.

United Kingdom—The national or capital wealth of the British Empire was estimated officially, in 1917, in Parliament, by a Crown Minister, at $130,000,000,000, divided as follows: United Kingdom, $80,000,000,000; Canada, $10,000,000,000; Australia, $6,000,000,000; New Zealand, $1,500,000,000; South Africa, $3,000,000,000; India and Ceylon, $18,000,000,000.

National wealth of other nations—Argentina (1916), $13,865,000,000; Denmark (1900), $2,000,000,000; Germany (1908), $83,000,000,000; Russia in Europe, $60,000,000,000; Austria-Hungary, $55,000,000,000; Turkey, Bulgaria, $4,000,000,000.

Japan, $43,000,000,000.

The total, or national, wealth of the United States was estimated at $300,000,000,000 on Feb. 1, 1921 ($2,800 per capita), by the Government Loan Organization.

United States National wealth in previous years: (1850), $7,135,780,000; (1860), $16,159,616,000; (1870), $30,068,518,000; (1880), $43,642,000,000; (1890), $65,037,091,000; (1895), $77,000,000,000; (1900), $88,517,306,775.

GERMANY'S REPARATION PAYMENTS.

Andrew McFadyean, General Secretary of the Reparation Commission established under the Treaty of Versailles, issued for the Commission on Oct. 3, 1922, a "Statement of Germany's Obligations" under the heading of Reparations, etc., as of April 30, 1922. The tables, the principal ones, are presented herewith—were issued to give the economic public information as to Germany's payments under Part VIII. of that treaty, and the distribution of such payments between the Allied Powers. Emphasis was laid upon the fact that many of the figures are still entirely provisional, but it is expected that they will prove to be close approximations when definite determinations have been reached. Moreover, the figures of receipts and distribution do not always agree, as in the delivery of merchant shipping, owing to a divergence in the method of valuing the ships.

The first charge on Germany's payment was the cost of occupation as from the armistice, only the balance being available for reparation. These costs amounted to 2,131,904,000 gold marks (exclusive of the cost of the American Army which amounted to 1,010,614,000 gold marks), and in the event the sums actually received from Germany attributable to the costs of occupation were barely sufficient to meet this first charge. These costs were:

NOTE—The net cost of the American Army of Occupation at April 30, 1921, was 1,010,614,000 gold marks; for the year May 1, 1921, to April 30, 1922, it was 56,160,000 gold marks; grand total to April 30, 1922, 1,066,774,000. Therefore the grand total net cost of all the armies of occupation was 3,409,269,000 gold marks.

Costs incurred in the period up to April 30, 1921, are charged against liquid assets received between Nov. 11, 1918, and April 30, 1921; and in the following fiscal year are charged against deliveries in kind.

"On April 28, 1921," to quote the language of Secretary McFadyean, "the Commission notified the German Government of its finding that the total damage for which Germany was responsible amounted to 132 milliard gold marks; on May 5, 1921, the Commission notified the Schedule of Payments prescribing the time and manner for securing and discharging the entire obligation of Germany for reparation under Articles 231, 232 and 233 of the Treaty, the total obligation of Germany at this date being 132 milliards of gold marks, less (a) The amount already paid on account of Reparation, (b) sums which may from time to time be credited to Germany in respect of State properties in ceded territories, etc., and (c) any sums received from other enemy or ex-enemy Powers in respect of which the Commission may decide that credit be given to Germany, plus the amount of the Belgian debt to the Allies, the amounts of these deductions and additions to be determined later by the Commission."

"The Schedule prescribed the payment of a fixed annuity of two milliard gold marks and a variable annuity equivalent to 26% of the value of German exports. Further, the Schedule specifically provided for the payment within twenty-five days of one milliard of gold marks to represent the two first quarterly instalments of the fixed annuity.

"The third period opens with the request dated Dec. 14, 1921, from the German Government for a partial postponement of the payments prescribed by the Schedule. While considering this request the Commission, by a decision taken on Jan. 13, 1922, at Cannes, granted a provisional postponement of the Schedule instalments due on Jan. 15 and Feb. 15, replacing them by payments every ten days of 31 million gold marks, the first payment falling on Jan. 18."

"On March 21, the Commission granted Germany a partial moratorium for her schedule obligations for the year 1922, and decided that she should pay in that year 720 million gold marks in cash and effect deliveries in kind to the value of 1,450 million gold marks in cash, the obligations postponed being carried forward to the years following. This partial moratorium was provisional in the first instance, but subsequently confirmed on May 31, 1922, a date which falls outside the period covered by the accounts now published.

"At the same time a further accounting complication was introduced owing to the decision taken, at the wish of the Allied Governments concerned, as expressed in the Financial Agreement of March 11, 1922, that the costs of the Armies of Occupation as from May 1, 1921, should be repaid to each of the creditor Powers in so far as not already covered by the requisition of paper marks by the armies, out of the deliveries in kind actually received by them under the Schedule of Payments from May 1 to Dec. 31, 1921 and out of the deliveries for 1922 as arranged for that year by the moratorium of March 21, 1922. The effect is to produce retroactively a deficit in German reparation payments even before the period for which a partial moratorium was demanded."

The arrangement of March 11, 1922, between the Governments of Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy and Japan, referred to above, provided that the payments made to the Armies of Occupation be fixed at the following annual amounts:

|----------------------|-------------|
| Belgian francs.....  | 102,000,000 |
| Pounds sterling..... | 2,000,000   |
| French francs.....   | 460,000,000 |

These figures are fixed on the basis of the following effective strength:

|                   |            |
|-------------------|------------|
| Belgian Army..... | 19,300 men |
| British Army..... | 15,000 men |
| French Army.....  | 90,400 men |

The payments were calculated on the basis of a total amount of 220,000,000 gold marks. Out of this amount a sum of 10,950,000 gold marks was in the first place allocated in respect of the British Army, representing a special allowance of 2 gold marks per man per day, to cover its higher cost. The remainder, or 209,050,000 gold marks, was divided in proportion to the number of effectives in question. The conversion of the sums in gold marks so arrived at into national currencies was made at the mean rate of exchange for December, 1921.

The distribution of liquid assets received between Nov. 11, 1918 and April 30, 1922, as carried on the pre-May 1, 1921, account and shown in the accompanying table "Statement of Germany's Deliveries and Payments" was as follows:

GRAND TOTAL.

The distribution of these items among the powers shows some divergence in figures because some deliveries in kind are carried as cash payments, etc. Of the cash, 640,000,000 gold marks was transferred to the account for army costs; and a credit of 868,000 gold marks appears in favor of Great Britain, and another of 2,147,000 in favor of France, representing gains in exchange. To Belgium went 669,647,000 gold marks; and 33,016,000 were undistributed. Of the ships, the distribution was: Great Britain, 42,542,000 g. m.; France, 768,000; Italy, 490,000; Japan, 9,000; Greece, 81,000. Of inland navigation boats, tugs, etc., the distribution was: France, 14,318,000 g. m.; Belgium, 345,000; and Czechoslovakia, 6,409,000. Of the livestock, the distribution was: France, 27,867,000 g. m.; Italy, 5,046,000;

Belgium, 6,828,000; S. H. S. State, 11,851,000. Of the reconstruction material and agricultural machinery and seeds, the distribution was: France, 5,229,000 g. m.; Italy, 2,335,000; Belgium, 12,307,000. Of the coal, the distribution was: France, 156,676,000 g. m.; Italy, 58,128,000; Belgium, 39,416,000. All the by-products of coke went to France. Of the dyestuffs, the distribution was: Great Britain, 1,212,000 g. m.; France, 1,630,000; Italy, 2,752,000; Belgium, 2,608,000; Greece, 197,000; and "sold to the United States Textile Alliance (but not yet paid in cash)," 139,000.

It was announced in Washington on Sept. 27, that Secretary Hughes had worked out a plan whereby the United States would receive its share of German dyes, to be credited on the American bill against Germany for the cost of its Army of Occupation. The Reparation Commission approved this plan. Annual deliveries will probably not exceed $3,000,000.

INTERNATIONAL BANKERS ON GERMAN LOAN.

The International Committee of Bankers which was invited by the Reparation Commission to Paris following the Genoa Conference to consider the conditions under which an external loan could be raised by Germany deliberated the matter from May 24 to June 10, 1922, found the flotation of such loan not feasible at that time, but stated emphatically that, given favorable conditions, substantial loans could be successfully floated in all the main markets of the world.

Germany and Belgium came to an agreement on Sept. 19, whereby the latter received German treasury bonds indorsed by the Reichsbank for reparation payments to Belgium, to the amount of 270,000,000 gold marks, due Feb. 15, and June 15, 1923.

An attempt at a practical solution of the Franco-German reparation problem was made early in September by the Marquis de Lubersac and Hugo Stinnes for furnishing millions of francs in building material. This, however, was cancelled about Oct. 20, because of the collapse of the German mark.

The Reparation Commission visited Germany in November, but no concrete results were accomplished. A further conference at Brussels was under discussion, but not settled by the first of December.

Germany on Nov. 14, delivered a note to the Reparation Commission, outlining her plan for a loan of 1,000,000,000 gold marks, half to be supplied by the Reichsbank, the rest from outside, for the rehabilitation of the mark, with a request for a three or four year moratorium. Germany would undertake, a Berlin despatch said, to increase production by prolonging working hours and to effect savings in administration by reducing the number of officials.

The meeting of the four Premiers of the Allied powers in London, December 9-11, failed to reach an agreement on a ground for the conference planned to be held on reparations in Brussels before the next German payment is due, which is January 15. They unanimously found unsatisfactory the plan submitted by the German Chancellor which asked for a two-year moratorium. Premier Poincaré insisted that France wanted a "protective guarantee" that Germany will meet her obligations, which was interpreted as a definite instance that France would occupy the Ruhr.

AMERICAN-GERMAN CLAIMS COMMISSION.

The personnel of the American-German Claims Commission appointed by the two Governments under the agreement signed in Berlin, Aug. 10, 1922, is as follows:

William R. Day, former Justice of the United States Supreme Court, umpire of the commission.

Edwin B. Parker of Texas, American member.

Robert C. Morris of New York, agent of the Government of the United States.

Dr. Wilhelm Kieselbach, German member.

Karl von Lewinski, agent of the Government of Germany.

Henry B. Morrow and O. O. Kiep, joint secretaries of the commission.

The first work of the commission will be the settlement of claims of the American Government and nationals against Germany for war losses. German claims involving property seized here by the Alien Property Custodian will be held in abeyance. It is estimated the Commissioners will have the disposal of claims for about $800,000,000 or $900,000,000.

THE GERMAN MARK COLLAPSE.

The United States Department of Commerce, in its Commerce Reports for Nov. 20, 1922, set forth the grave situation in industry, commerce and finance in Germany emphasized in the October (1922) mark collapse which has revived and intensified the effects of previous violent declines. Its article is based on cable reports from the United States Commercial Attache, Charles E. Herring, in Berlin and in part follows:

The new mark collapse from 1,815 to the dollar on October 1 to 8,392 on November 7, together with the expectation of a further decline, has resulted in Germany in renewed popular apprehension, greater uncertainty in all business, increased price confusion, panic buying of goods, and all other incidents of previous drops in the mark. The beginning of the decline of October 12 is generally attributed to the Cabinet crisis in England; since then basic factors which make even a further mark collapse inevitable have been in operation.

These basic factors bringing about currency depreciation may be listed as follows: The continuing adverse balance of payments, as aggravated by reparation payments; the complete loss of confidence abroad in any mark recovery, with the resulting refusal to purchase and the unloading of previous holdings; the invoicing of 60 per cent. or more of German exports in high-exchange currency thus greatly diminishing the legitimate commercial demand for mark exchange; anticipatory purchase of foreign exchange by German industry and, of less importance, speculation by individuals; and lastly, although this is an effect rather than a cause, continued inflation.

The theory that internal speculation in foreign values is largely responsible for the recent collapse of the mark seems somewhat invalidated by the violent depreciation since the passage of the law providing for the control of foreign-exchange transactions. This measure was in fact not so much a practical expedient as a gesture to quiet public apprehension over the new mark depreciation; it was aimed chiefly at the prevention of smaller private speculation and has no effect on legitimate purchase of foreign exchange by industry which must obviously cover raw-material purchases when contracts are made. This law, which went into effect about the middle of October, is largely inoperative at present but has caused much protest from trade and industry.

NOTE CIRCULATION AND FLOATING DEBT.

The German note circulation at the end of October amounted to 469,000,000,000 Reichsbank notes and 14,000,000,000 Government Loan Office notes. The Reichsbank circulation advanced during the month from 316,000,000,000, but the amount of the loan office notes was practically unchanged. The rate of inflation increases month by month, the additional circulation having been in round numbers 12,000,000,000 in March, 17,000,000,000 in June, 20,000,000,000 in July, 48,000,000,000 in August, 78,000,000,000 in September, and 153,000,000,000 in October.

The floating debt of the German Government was given as 721,000,000,000 marks on Oct. 31, 1922, of which 604,000,000,000 consisted of discounted treasury bills. Of these discounted bills the money market had absorbed only 127,000,000,000, leaving an excessive amount in the Reichsbank.

Private discounts at the Reichsbank amounted to 101,000,000,000 marks on October 31, of which 25,000,000,000 had been added during the last week in the month. On September 30 the private discount figure was 50,000,000,000 marks; on August 31, 21,000,000,000; on July 31, 8,000,000,000.

The Finance Ministry reports the revenue of the German Government from April to September first six months of fiscal year as 343,000,000,000 marks, 213,000,000,000 of this being derived from the floating debt and 123,000,000,000 marks from taxation, but the forced loan receipts came to only 2,450,000,000 marks.

GOLD VALUATION OF GERMAN INDUSTRY.

The stock market has experienced a strong bull movement. The extent of turnover and the work involved have made necessary the closing of the exchange for two days a week. Nevertheless, the market level has not reacted in proportion to the fall of the currency.

The Frankfurter Zeitung stock index on November 3 stood at 318,145, compared with 98,380 on October 6. Domestic loans went from 1,345 to 2,133 during the period, and foreign loans from 46,115 to 77,660. The remarkable appreciation of securities is to be attributed in part to the discouraging effect of the recent anti-speculation measures on small investors who formerly speculated in foreign currencies.

The gold value of the share capitalization of German industry, estimated last July by the Berliner Tageblatt, at 5,800,000,000, is considered to be undoubtedly less now than in July.

CAPITAL SHORTAGE.

The various difficulties due to the shortage of capital are becoming more pronounced. Conditions tend to bring about the elimination of smaller concerns which are unable to obtain adequate bank credit to meet the new price levels or to proportionately increase their capitalization. This elimination takes the form of absorption by large corporations rather than of bankruptcies. The larger concerns are forced to draw upon their foreign high-exchange reserves. Actual currency is also still scarce; municipal and other corporations are issuing emergency currency.

The Frankfurter Zeitung gives October capital increases as 3,793,600,000 marks, largely in the metals and machinery industries, mines and smelters, public utilities, and banks. New incorporations amounted to 1,078,600,000 marks, chiefly in metals, machinery, foodstuffs, and banks. The capital increases in September were 3,748,400,000 marks, and the new incorporations came to 905,700,000; capital absorption apparently is lagging far behind currency depreciation and price levels. During October, six corporations issued 2,309,500,000 marks in fixed interest securities, as against 3,283,200,000 marks by twenty-one corporations in September.

WHOLESALE PRICE INCREASES IMPORTANT.

Coal prices were increased on November 1 by approximately 60 per cent., and textile raw materials are advancing so rapidly as to affect both the cotton and woolen textile industries severely. Inland potash prices effective November 3 showed an advance over those of October 1 of about 250 per cent., while pig-iron prices jumped four times during the month.

The Frankfurter Zeitung wholesale price index for 98 commodities showed an increase from 43,223 at the end of September to 94,492 at the end of October, a much closer response to currency depreciation than is noted in retail indexes.

All domestic trade is now on a shifting price basis. Although internal payments in foreign currencies are prohibited except in special cases, yet the practice of calculating on a dollar basis is increasing. In export trade probably 60 per cent. of the transactions are in high-exchange currencies.

The labor market was probably less favorable during October than it had been in September (although official unemployment figures do not reflect this), but the slump in production predicted some time ago has not yet set in. Part-time employment is on the increase, but the eventual industrial crisis is apparently not yet imminent; all proposals to introduce part-time work must be approved by a Government commission, which refuses such applications in a large number of cases.

The weekly changes in the prices of iron and steel and certain other standard goods and the very frequent wage changes (often weekly) are resulting in many negotiations and much paper work and, of course, bring about great economic waste. Likewise the Government control of foreign trade and other activities, together with the shifting basis of all economic life, results in enormous unproductive employment among the "white collar" class; production costs are increased, and the effect of the lower gold value of wages is partially nullified.

Labor unions report that 52,349 of their membership were unemployed on October 1; this is 0.8 per cent., against an unemployment of 0.7 per cent. in September.

WAGES AND LABOR TROUBLES.

Strikes and other labor troubles were less noticeable in October than in the preceding month; wage demands were being settled by arbitration or agreement. Apparently employers are making an effort to readjust wage distributions among skilled and unskilled workers.

The response of retail prices to the new currency depreciation is fortunately greatly retarded, and the danger of food riots is thus minimized. Dr. Kuczynski's minimum living-expense index for Berlin showed a 98 per cent. increase for the second half of October. Dr. Kuczynski estimated the minimum weekly living cost for a family of four in Berlin to be 6,136 marks during the first half of October and 8,871 during the second half. Effective on November 13 the price of rationed bread was set at 112 marks for a 1,900-gram loaf.

The average weekly wage paid in Berlin during the second half of October, 5,200 to 6,000 marks, indicates that wages are not keeping pace with the greatly advancing living costs. This condition is reported difficult for Germany as a whole.

The internal purchasing power of the mark, an average gold value for October, was estimated by Kuczynski at $0.001, while the foreign exchange value (based on an average mark-to-dollar rate of 3,308) was given as $0.0003. During the second half of the month the averages above were $0.0008 and $0.00028, respectively.

TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICATIONS.

On November 15 an increase of 100 per cent. in postal rates went into effect; the Ministry of Posts reports that since the last increase there has been a considerable diminution in the use of the mails. On November 1 an increase of 50 per cent. in railway freight rates and 100 per cent. in passenger fares went into effect and further advances are announced for December 1.

During the month of October, nine ships, aggregating 46,400 tons were launched. Fourteen ships aggregating 86,800 tons were completed and one ship of 8,300 tons was bought. Imports for September were 4,830,000 metric tons and exports were 1,590,000 metric tons.

THE GENOA CONFERENCE OF THE POWERS.

The Genoa Conference assembled on April 10, 1922, at the Royal Palace of St. George at Genoa, with delegates from thirty-four states, convened to find a remedy for the economical ills of Europe. Lloyd George, Prime Minister of Great Britain, had proposed this meeting to M. Briand, Premier of France, and later at Boulogne, on February 25, had renewed the proposal to M. Poincare. To him he had given the assurance that if Germany and Russia were invited the questions of reparations and the terms of the Versailles Treaty should not be made subject to revision and the Russian pre-war debt should not be brought into question.

Richard Washburn Child, the American Ambassador to Rome, was present as an unofficial observer, the Washington Government having declined to participate. Great Britain brought a delegation of 128 members, France, 80, Germany, 80; in all the official attendance amounted to 1,500, and 400 newspaper correspondents crowded the Gallery.

Lloyd George in his opening address said: "The world is one economic unit. For that reason I regret that the great American Republic is not represented here. However, much that has happened and is happening in Europe makes Americans cautious in interfering in our affairs. But if we can set these things right at this conference, I feel sure America will not merely come in, but come in gladly."

He made a plea for real peace, a careful study of currency and the question of exchanges, and the investigation of transport and credit. He emphasized four essential conditions to intercourse between nations; that contracts should not be repudiated; that no country can wage war on the institutions of another; that one nation shall not engage in aggressive operations against the territory of another; and that the nationals of one country shall be entitled to impartial justice from the courts of another.

As the spokesmen of the several delegations responded Viscount Ishii explained that Japan wished to co-operate because that country was suffering from the loss of European markets and the instability of exchange. The Russian Foreign Minister, George Chicherin, after saying "Russia has not come here to do propaganda, but to co-operate in the economic reconstruction of the world," introduced the question of disarmament. Russia, he said, was willing to reduce her army provided that other nations reduce theirs, and promise to let Russia alone. France, through M. Barthou, protested saying it had been agreed there should be no discussion of disarmament at Genoa.

The practical work of the conference was given over to three commissions—Finance, Commercial, and Transportation. A sub-committee of the first, composed of the leaders of the great powers, including Germany and Russia and four representatives from the remaining states, those selected being: Switzerland, Sweden, Poland and Roumania, had the bulk of the work to do.

An attempt was made by Italy to raise the question of the inter-allied debts, but it was ruled out by the Chairman on the ground that no decision could be reached without the participation and consent of the United States.

TERMS FOR RUSSIA.

The Allied experts brought forward specific proposals relating to Russia, which stated bluntly that if Russia expects to resume her relations with the outside world that Cheka, or kindred bodies, sitting in secret and meeting out arbitrary punishment to further the Soviets political needs, must be abolished and Russia must set up a public judicial authority with professional judges independent of the Soviet. All law to be applied must be published, must be equal for all persons and non-retroactive. Foreigners must be protected against arbitrary arrests and invasion of their homes. There must be right of appeal. The execution of judgments must be guaranteed, especially commercial contracts and arbitration awards, even when made in foreign countries, must be enforced. The Soviet Government must accept responsibility for the debts of the Imperial Russian Government and the provisional Government and accept a considerable number of other financial liabilities.

The Soviet delegates were amazed and said the demands respecting the rights of personal property and protection for foreigners contemplated changes in the Soviet Government which would virtually wipe out Communism and impair Soviet sovereignty at home.

Lloyd George, after waiting several days, invited the leaders of France, Belgium and Italy and the two leaders of the Soviet delegation for a preliminary conference at his villa at Biarritz. There the Russians, as against a claim of all other countries, totalling 65,000,000 gold francs, opposed a Russian claim totalling 300,000,000 gold francs (subsequently scaled down to $125,000,000) to cover all Russia's counter-claims for her costs in waging war on the allied side before the revolution and for the subsequent damage done by the anti-Soviet Generals Kolchak, Denikin and Wrangel, who had received moral and material support from the Allies. Finally, the Russian leaders offered to settle on a basis of 200,000,000 gold francs, provided they were given a considerable loan for economic reconstruction. At the close of two days of discussion the British Premier told M. Chicherin that the Russians must abandon their fantastic indemnity claims and must comply with the following conditions:

Recognize the pre-war debt of Russia; recognize the responsibility of the Russian Government for the sums borrowed by Russia from the Allies during the war; and recognize the liability of the Soviet Government for property owned by foreigners, which the Soviet had nationalized. After they had accepted his conditions Lloyd George said the Allies would entertain the question of damage done by the anti-Soviet Generals.

Russia was notified by Sir Robert Horne that the Allied experts had estimated the Soviet debt for foreign-owned property destroyed or seized at 6,000,000,000 gold francs and asked if they were ready to recognize this obligation. Rakovsky, the Ukrainian Premier, one of the delegation, replied that they were, but only on condition that the Allies recognize the Russian counter-claims, totalling 30,000,000,000 gold francs and demanded that the Allies make Russia a preliminary payment of 2,000,000,000 gold francs on account. Discussion ended.

THE RUSSO-GERMAN TREATY.

Lloyd George and his associates were staggered when the Germans announced on April 17, that on the previous day, Easter Sunday, Dr. Walter Rathenau, the German Foreign Minister, had concluded a treaty with M. Chicherin at Rapallo. The salient features of this treaty were:

Mutual renunciation of war expenses, war damages and civil damages; legal questions arising from the war, including disposition of merchant ships to be settled on a basis of reciprocity; expenses for war prisoners mutually annulled; Germany renounces all claims of her nationals, resulting from application of Soviet laws on condition that "the Soviet Government shall not satisfy similar claims made by any third state;" consular and diplomatic relations to be immediately resumed; the rights of nationals and the regulation of commercial relations to be mutually based on the "most favored nation" principle; and mutual economic assistance.

The Allied delegates were absolutely surprised and amazed, and the French especially furious, and reproached Germany bitterly in formal notes signed by ten nations, holding that such an agreement secretly concluded while the conference was in session was a violation of the conditions to which Germany pledged itself on entering the conference, and that the act destroyed the spirit of mutual confidence. The German envoys denied that secrecy had been intentional and the Russians said it was but the final result of earlier negotiations.

Two alternatives were presented to Germany: that she either denounce the treaty, or withdraw from further discussions on Russia. The delegates chose the latter course, and asserted that they desired to co-operate fully with the work of the conference. The French went further and called on the Germans to state categorically that the treaty contained no secret clauses, for rumor was persistent that the compact embodied a secret military alliance. (Official denial of such a compact was later made by Russia.) They also held that Germany was alienating just claims to assets that would be applicable to reparation payments under the Versailles Treaty.

In continuing their relations with the Russian delegation the Allied powers put forth three demands:

First, a refusal to admit any liability regarding the claims advanced by the Soviet Government; second, willingness was expressed, in view of the serious economic condition of Russia to write down the war debts owing by Russia by a percentage to be determined later; and the countries would be prepared to consider postponement of payments of interest and also some remission of interest; third, it must be definitely agreed that there can be no allowance made to the Soviet Government against no further debts and financial obligations due to foreign nationals, or (b) the right of such nationals regarding the return of their property and compensation for damage or loss.

THE RUSSIAN REPLY.

The Russian delegation formally expressed a willingness to accept the first and second conditions and the first half of the third. For the rest they said the Russian Government would be ready "to restore to their former owners the use of property nationalized or reserved, under the reservation, that in the event of that being impossible satisfaction shall be given to the legitimate claims of the former owners either by mutual agreement or by arrangements to be worked out at the conference." The delegation insisted on the necessity for a loan and the equal necessity for the recognition of the Soviet Government as a fundamental condition.

On this basis discussions went on until the Russians insisted that the cash loan and credit must pass through their hands. They were told that it would not be possible to give them a large cash loan, as the European nations had little cash available and because they did not admit the wisdom of turning cash over to the Soviet to use for reconstruction according to its own discretion. The British experts outlined a plan for a credit system by which supplies and machinery would be placed in Russia for specific purposes. The Russians protested, declaring that Moscow should have full discretion without Allied supervision or control, and declared that the British

THE HAGUE CONFERENCE ON RUSSIAN AFFAIRS.

An attempt to reach a preliminary understanding was made by the British and French Governments. In considering the view put forward at Genoa by the Belgians, and accepted by the French, that the Russian Government had no right at all to nationalize foreign property, and was bound in all cases to restore it intact to its original owner, the British Government sent a note to the French Government saying: "Every state has a right compulsorily to acquire private property, whatever its nature, on payment of just compensation. Whether the Russian Government makes restitution of private property alienated from its owners or pays compensation for it is a matter solely for the Russian Government. His Majesty's Government entirely agree, however, that compensation shall be real, not shadowy."

The French Cabinet thereupon decided on June 13 to send a delegation, or "mission of inquiry," to The Hague, taking the position that the discussions should be removed from politics and be of a purely technical character. Charles Deenst was made head of the delegation. The English delegation was headed by Edward Hilton Young, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, and Sir Philip Lloyd-Graeme, Director of Overseas Trade; Baron Romano Avezzano headed the Italian and M. Cartier the Belgian. The other nations represented were: Austria, Bulgaria, Denmark, Spain, Estonia, Finland, Greece, Hungary, Japan, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Norway, Holland, Poland, Portugal, Roumania, Serbia, Sweden, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia. The Russian delegation was composed of Maxim Litvinov, Leonid Krassin, M. Kreslinsky and M. Sokolnikov. The United States was represented by Louis Sussdorf as an observer.

The conference met on June 15 at the Peace Palace and formed three sub-committees: Private Property, Debts, and Credits. The Russians arrived on June 25, insisting that the question of credits must first be settled and then, and then only, would the Russians be ready to take up the other issues. The non-Russian powers were insistent on considering first the restoration of property. They declared scheme would threaten the Communistic basis of their Government.

Russia then brought forward a set of completely new demands, insisting on a considerable cash loan, the cancellation of interest arrears on the pre-war debts and a moratorium of thirty years on those debts. They also declared that restitution of foreign-owned property was contrary to their policy of nationalization, yet they contended that Russia had the right to possess property in foreign countries because these countries were under a bourgeois regime. These new demands made the previous reply valueless. The commission decided further discussion was impossible, and referred the new situation to the heads of the Allied delegation.

A week's exchange of views resulted in agreement on three main issues: recognition by the Soviet of Russia's pre-war debts; restitution of private-owned foreign property and the acceptance of an international consortium to establish credit and develop enterprise in Russia. In connection with this, thirteen countries announced that they were ready to subscribe £20,000,000 capital to the consortium for the renewal of business in Europe, and especially in Russia. Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany were each to subscribe £4,000,000.

The final version of this note to be sent to Russia was drafted on May 1. On the morning of that day M. Jaspar blocked the decision by declaring that Belgians owned property in Russia worth nearly a billion dollars and that Belgium wanted this property restored outright. France backed up Belgium's claims and the note was finally transmitted to the Russian delegation, bearing the approval of all the powers except Belgium and France.

Lloyd George's project for a ten-year agreement "of non-aggression," after much discussion, proved abortive.

The Russian delegation sought definite instructions from Moscow and the Soviet Government refused its assent to the return of foreign property outright and emphasized its insistence on a foreign loan.

The Genoa Conference adjourned practically without results on May 19 after extending an invitation to the United States to join the Allied powers and Russia in a further conference on Russian affairs at The Hague on June 15.

Secretary Hughes, on May 15, sent a reply to the invitation saying that the United States Government could not join in the conference.

M. Chieherin and M. Rakovsky remained at Genoa and completed negotiations for a commercial treaty with Italy, which was signed on May 24.

that confidence was necessary, that credits must largely proceed from the financial and industrial interests which had been doing business with Russia before the revolution, and that these interests could not and would not move unless and until Russia had at least recognized its past obligations in relation to confiscated property and state debts.

M. Litvinov made it clear at the outset that the Russian Government would accept no absolute and general liability to restore particular undertakings to their original owners and that it could admit no vested rights. The Russians landed in a long list of properties which Soviet Russia was prepared to lease, giving priority to previous owners. This list showed that less than 25 per cent. of the foreign enterprises in Russia were included and that the Government apparently proposed to retain whole industries, notably the textile industry.

M. Krassin added that restitution by itself meant nothing, for the factory owner would be powerless to work his property unless he was able to make terms with the Soviet Government or its local organizations with regard to labor, food, fuel, supplies of raw material, transport, taxation, etc.

M. Litvinov explained that the Soviet Government, while unable to give freehold property rights, would grant leases of factories, mines, etc., on concession terms for as long even as ninety years, and that the property and personnel employed by the concessionaire would be absolutely immune from arbitrary confiscation, and that he would be free to buy and sell as he pleased, would be granted all possible facilities for supplies and be secured from crippling increases of taxation by an agreement in advance, for a period of years, the Soviet Government preferring an arrangement for an agreed share in the output or profits. The question of compensation where the property was not restored was raised, but the inability of the Russians to satisfy either the French or the British conception of what was reasonable with regard to restitution made a deadlock inevitable.

To a request of the non-Russian representatives, M. Sokolnikov presented figures concerning the Soviet budget, size and basis of currency circulation, etc., which will be found printed in this Almanac on pages 63-64 in the article on Russia.

To the sub-commission on credits the Russians presented an elaborate program asking for credits extending over a period of three years to a total of 3,224,000,000 gold rubles—a total of $1,612,000,000—made up of the following items: For transport, 1,050,000,000 gold rubles; Agriculture, 924,000,000; Industries, 750,000,000; Miscellaneous Commercial Credits, 300,000,000; Bank Credits, 200,000,000. These Litvinov said represented Russia's minimum necessities and should be granted as a direct credit to the Moscow Government and had nothing to do with the other credits in question, which were to facilitate private trade with Russia under Government guarantee. In other words, the Russian delegates asked that this money should be furnished or guaranteed by foreign Governments to the Soviet Government, who would have the spending of it and the responsibility of repaying it. To the non-Russian delegates business on these terms was impossible even if the amount had been available. The discussion came to an abrupt end.

At the plenary session, held later, Litvinov abandoned his demand for credits and proposed that if the several delegations would put a similar proposition to their respective Governments, the Russian delegation would at once refer to its Government the question whether it was prepared, on the assumption that no credits could be given:

1. To acknowledge the debts due by the Russian Government or its predecessors to foreign nationals, and

2. To agree to give effective compensation to foreigners for property previously owned by them which has been nationalized by the Russian Government, provided the terms of payment of the debts and terms of compensation, whether in the form of concessions or otherwise, were left to be agreed between the Russian Government and the persons concerned in the course of two years.

The non-Russian Commission stated its opinion that though the basis of an agreement could not be found within the terms of this declaration, its acceptance and its loyal execution by the Russian Government would contribute to the re-establishment of the confidence which was necessary for the reconstruction of Russia and under which further negotiations could be carried on. The conference passed another resolution by which the Governments undertook not to support their nationals in negotiating for property which had originally belonged to other foreigners but had not been restored, and then the conference ended.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS IN 1922.

The Third Assembly of the League of Nations met in Geneva September 4 and adjourned on September 30 to meet again on Sept. 3, 1923. Its most notable work was the plan for the rehabilitation of Austria. This problem the Allied powers had turned over to the League when the situation seemed to be almost beyond remedy. The plan was worked out in three weeks by the powers concerned, sitting about a common council table, the leading statesmen being the Earl of Balfour, of Great Britain; Dr. Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia and Mgr. Ignatz Seipel, the Austrian Chancellor. They were assisted by the Economic and Financial Committee of the League and concluded a five-power treaty, guaranteeing the independence and political integrity of Austria; the internal difficulties were met by a program of economy and reform to be executed under a League of Nations High Commissioner. (The details of this work will be found in the following article on the reconstruction of Austria.)

The assembly adopted unanimously the principle of a reduction of armaments, based upon a treaty of mutual guaranty against attack to be worked out in detail during the coming year. Reparations and inter-Allied debts were discussed, the European neutral nations pointing out that they are as vitally concerned in the prompt and sane solution of these questions as the directly interested powers. It was felt that it was possible that if an agreement is not soon reached the Allied powers may turn the whole question over to the League of Nations and make a fresh start on new lines.

Arthur Sweetser of New York, who is a member of the secretariat, points out: "Beyond question nearly all the leaders of world thought and action came to Geneva for the four weeks and left a distinct impression that the League had grown from an organization interested in many of the smaller, but perhaps subordinate, problems of international life into an organization capable of handling far greater problems than had yet come before it. . . . It shows that the League, having tested and proved its ability, was now moving out onto a broader platform."

Discussion of the situation in the Near East was in progress when the Allied negotiators in Paris came to an agreement and the Assembly stood aside.

Hungary, the third of the ex-enemy powers, was admitted to membership September 18, leaving outside only Germany and Turkey, the latter already promised the support of the Allied powers for membership. The roster now included fifty-two nations. Next year Turkey will probably be in, if the present international problems are solved; Germany will enter as soon as her problems permit and it is expected that Ireland will join now that the Free State has been set up.

An important change was made in the membership of the council. In Paris it was planned that the great powers should dominate that body with five members and that all the other powers should be entitled to only four. The United States did not take the place reserved for it, so the proportion became four and four. The great powers themselves provided for the entrance into the council of two small powers, so that the proportion to-day stands four great powers and six lesser powers. These six non-permanent members now are: Brazil, Spain, Uruguay, Belgium, Sweden and China, in order of the number of votes.

The fifty-two members of the League of Nations and amount assessed on each for the expenses of the League are as follows:

| States.                       | Units | Gold Francs. | United States Dollars. |
|-------------------------------|-------|--------------|------------------------|

The budget of the League of Nations for 1923 shows these expenditures, balancing an income derived from a pro rata assessment on the member nations:

The South American states played a large part in the Assembly; a Chilean, M. Agustín, serving as President, and Brazil and Uruguay received places on the council, and on the last day they agreed at an informal meeting to do what they could at the forthcoming pan-American conference at Santiago on March 20, 1923, to effect a liaison between that organization and the League.

The officers of the assembly were: President, M. Agustín Edwards of Chile; Vice Presidents, Lord Balfour, Great Britain; M. Hanotiaux, France; M. Teixeira Gomes, Portugal; M. Branting, Sweden; Count de Gimeno, Spain; M. de Nimitich, Serbo-Croat-Slovene state.

The assembly committees and chairmen were as follows:

Legal and constitutional questions, M. Scialoja (Italy).

Technical organizations (economy and finance, health, and communications and transit), M. Chadzko (Poland).

Reduction of armaments, M. Torriente y Peraza (Cuba).

Budget and finance, M. Herluf Zahle (Denmark).

Social and general questions (opium, refugees, traffic in women and girls, etc.), Mr. William F. Fielding (Canada).

Political (admission of Hungary), the Jonkheer J. Loudon (Netherlands).

The work of the assembly done under its own initiative had to do with the development of solutions for the opium traffic, white slavery and the protection of minorities in which international complications arise. The administrative part of this work is in the hands of the International Health Organization of the League of Nations. This committee is composed of these experts from thirteen countries and three international societies:

Prof. Medsen, State Serum Institute, Denmark; Sir George Buchanan, Senior Medical Officer, Ministry of Health, England; Dr. S. Josephine

Baker, Child Hygiene, United States; Dr. Leon Bernard, Professor of Hygiene, University of Paris, France; Dr. A. Calmette, Pasteur Institute, Algeria; Dr. F. Carozzi, Industrial Hygiene Section, International Labor Office; Dr. H. Carriere, Director of Federal Health Department, Switzerland; Dr. Carlos Chagas, Director of Federal Health Department, Brazil; Sir Havelock Charles, President of the Medical Board for India; Dr. W. Chodzko, Director of Federal Health Department, Poland; Dr. A. Lutrario, Director of Federal Health Department, Italy; Dr. M. Miyajima, Kitasato Institute, Tokio, Japan; Dr. A. Pilido, President Royal Council, Public Health of Spain; Dr. O. Velge, Director General, Health Department, Belgium; Dr. Santoliquido, representing the League of Red Cross Societies; and Dr. L. Eajchmann, Director Health Section, League of Nations, Geneva.

Ten Government laboratories or institutes are co-operating with the organization in the study of disease and epidemics and industrial hygiene.

The State Institute of Denmark is the central laboratory and in co-operation are Austria, Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Poland, Russia and the United States. The gift of the Rockefeller Foundation, available since October, 1922, will result in a very great acceleration of the work.

Mr. Sweetser also notes: "The curious spectacle presented itself at this third assembly of more American visitors, more American journalists and more general American interest than was the case with any other nationality, yet the United States played no part."

The American Government, however, made its first official appearance in a League of Nations on December 5, when Dr. M. Dorset of the International Labor Bureau spoke on the question of anthrax and wool. The official said he was officially representing the United States as observer.

Americans in the Secretariat of the League of Nations are: librarian, Florence Wilson; establishment officer, Howard R. Huston; associate director of information, Arthur Sweetser; assistant in administrative commissions section, Huntington Gilchrist; director research division, international labor organization, Dr. Royal Meeker; Judge, Permanent Court of International Justice, John Bassett Moore.

Americans on the committees are: Health, Dr. S. Josephine Baker, Dr. C. W. McCoy and Edgar Sydenstricker; Social Questions, Miss Grace Abbott; Opium, Mrs. Hamilton Wright; Intellectual Co-operation, Prof. R. E. Millikan and Prof. Alice Hamilton of Harvard University; Investigation of Anthrax, Dr. G. Dorset of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry.

RECONSTRUCTION OF AUSTRIA.

The plan for the reconstruction of Austria was worked out during the summer and early fall of 1922 by Chancellor Mgr. Ignatz Seipel of Austria and the Committee of the League of Nations was put before Parliament for action early in November. Commerce Reports, published by the United States Department of Commerce, in its issue of Nov. 20, 1922, presents this summary based on cable reports of November 9 from Trade Commissioner Upson and Consul Foster of Vienna:

The plan provides for economies which will reduce administration expenses to one-third through the discontinuance of unessential functions. War plants and possibly the mines are to be disposed of, administrative procedure is to be simplified, and the Government personnel reduced. The financial operations of the new plan are to be centralized in the bank of issue. Federal departments are to be reduced to eight; the number of courts will be less and the legal procedure greatly simplified. Federal advances to provinces and municipalities are to be reduced and within three years discontinued.

By adjustment of important duties customs receipts will be doubled, probably yielding $16,000,000; they will then be gradually increased to yield $20,000,000 within two years. The most important foodstuffs and raw materials will remain for the present on the free list. Export duties are to be imposed on many articles. Tobacco and salt prices are to be increased, and taxes are to be levied on the consumption of electricity and gas. There will be a new turnover tax for personal services, with the exception of personal services rendered in connection with foreign trade. A yearly capital levy will also be made on natural persons, and fees charged for transportation will likewise be taxed. The railways, post, telegraph, telephone, and other Government enterprises are to be made independent, and the organizations are to be conducted along business principles so far as consistent with the public interest.

BANK OF ISSUE AND NEW LOAN.

The recommendations of the League do not make the bank of emission the keystone of Austria's rehabilitation but give it rather a minor place in the general scheme of reconstruction. The capital is to be 30,000,000 gold crowns instead of 100,000,000 Swiss francs, as formerly announced. (The value of the gold crown is 8.2026.) The Government's subscription to the capital stock is to be set aside in favor of purely private subscriptions, so that in fact the bank will be a private enterprise which will act as the fiscal agent of the Austrian Government. It will differ from other European Government banks in this, that it will have complete autonomy, being entirely free from control or interference from the Austrian Government.

The prospects for the passage of the above laws are favorable. In the mean time a law has been passed authorizing a loan for 130,000,000 gold crowns, of which the Austrian banks will subscribe 30,000,000 crowns underwrite 20,000,000 crowns, and with the help of the League of Nations expect to place the remainder abroad. The security for this loan comprises the proceeds from the customs and the tobacco monopoly, the proceeds from the French loan amounting to 47,000,000 francs and the Italian loan of 68,000,000 lire, and the amount of 15,000,000 gold crowns obtained from the liquidation of the Austro-Hungarian Bank. The loan is intended to cover the deficit for the remainder of 1922 and note printing.

THREE TRILLION CROWNS IN NOTES.

The total circulation of notes in Austria, including demand certificates, at the end of October amounted to 2,973,000,000 crowns, as compared with 2,021,000,000 crowns at the end of September. Treasury certificates held by the bank amounted to 1,384,000,000 crowns, as compared with 1,000,000,000 crowns for the previous month, while commercial discounts advanced to 876,000,000,000 from 735,000,000,000 crowns in September.

During October the highest rate of exchange for the dollar on New York was 74,300 crowns, and the lowest 73,725 crowns; the closing quotation for the month was 73,900. The New York cable rate for 1 crown on September 30 was $0.000014 and remained the same on October 30; on November 9 it was $0.000013.

Austrian factories are working on old orders; everywhere they are cutting down on operation and some expect to close entirely.

UNEMPLOYMENT INCREASES.

Unemployment has greatly increased, and at the end of October 59,000 were reported unemployed in the Vienna district, including 14,000 metal workers; other districts also reported increases. Unemployment in Vienna at the end of September amounted to 45,000.

The cost of living indicated by the Government index figure of 10,332 on October 14 (based on 1 for July, 1914) shows a decrease from 11,306 on September 14. This September figure was made up from the following detail figures on a similar basis: Food, 13,531; clothing, 19,159; rent, 33; and heat and light, 12,658.

The Volkswirt cost of living index at the end of October was 21,352 (based on 100, January, 1921) as compared with 20,552 on October 1, thus showing a slight increase (about 4 per cent.) in the cost of living in Austria during the month. A loaf of bread at the end of October cost 6,660 crowns, as compared with 6,330 crowns for September. Industrial bread supplements were discontinued on October 15. The total imports of Austria for the first six months of 1922 amounted to 3,630,000 metric tons, as compared with 3,730,000 metric tons during the first half of 1921, according to Consul Foster, at Vienna. Exports for the first six months of 1922 amounted to 930,000 metric tons, as compared with 700,000 metric tons during the first half of 1921. Total imports for the first six months of this year are valued at 792,000,000 gold crowns, and total exports at 489,000,000 gold crowns.

Postal rates were doubled on November 1. The reconstruction programme became operative on Nov. 15.

JAPANESE DENIED NATURALIZATION.

Japanese are not eligible for naturalization in the United States is the substance of a decision handed down by the United States Supreme Court in Washington on Nov. 13, 1922, the opinion being delivered by Mr. Justice Sutherland.

In its finding the court disposed of two cases, one brought from Hawaii by Tako Ozawa against the United States, and the other brought by Takui Yamashita and Charles Hio Koko against the Secretary of State of Washington.

In the latter case both Japanese had been naturalized by a court of the State of Washington, but were refused incorporation as a real estate firm on the ground that their naturalization had been illegal.

The lower Federal Courts denied naturalization in both cases, but the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in considering the Ozawa case suspended its decision and asked the Supreme Court for instructions as to whether Japanese are eligible for citizenship under the naturalization laws.

The question largely turned upon whether Section 2169 of the revised statutes restricting naturalization to "free white persons" and those of African descent was still in force.

The court stated that the questions before it were:

"(1) Is the naturalization act of June 29, 1906, limited by the provisions of section 2169 of the Revised Statutes of the United States?

"(2) If so limited, is the appellant eligible for naturalization under that section?"

The court answered the first of these questions in the affirmative, and then in discussing the phrase "free white persons," as it appears in the statute said:

"Undoubtedly the word 'free' was originally used in recognition of the fact that slavery then existed and that some white persons occupied that status. The word, however, has long since ceased to have any practical significance and may now be disregarded.

"Manifestly, the test afforded by the mere color of the skin of each individual is impracticable as that differs greatly among persons of the same race, even among Anglo-Saxons, ranging by imperceptible gradations from the fair blond to the swarthy brunette, the latter being darker than many of the lighter hued persons of the brown or yellow races. Hence, to adopt the color test alone would result in a confused overlapping of races and a gradual merging of one into the other, without any practical line of separation.

"The Federal and State courts, in an almost unbroken line, have held that the words 'white person' were meant to indicate only a person of what is popularly known as the Caucasian race. With the conclusion reached in these several decisions we see no reason to differ.

"Moreover, that conclusion has become so well established by judicial and executive concurrence and legislative acquiescence that we should not at this late day feel at liberty to disturb it, in the absence of reasons far more cogent than any that have been suggested.

"The effect of the conclusion that the words 'white person' means a Caucasian is not to establish a sharp line of demarcation between those who are entitled and those who are not entitled to naturalization, but rather a zone of more or less debatable ground outside of which, upon the one hand, are those clearly eligible, and outside of which, upon the other hand, are those clearly ineligible for citizenship. Individual cases falling within this zone must be determined as they arise from time to time by what this court has called, in another connection, 'the gradual process of judicial inclusion and exclusion.'

"The appellant in the case now under consideration, however, is clearly of a race which is not Caucasian, and therefore belongs entirely outside the zone on the negative side. A large number of the Federal and State courts have so decided and we find no reported case definitely to the contrary. These decisions are sustained by numerous scientific authorities, which we do not deem it necessary to review. We think these decisions are right and so hold."

The legal attack of Tako Ozawa, Japanese salesman for a large wholesale firm in Honolulu, to gain American citizenship was launched in the Hawaiian courts in 1914, and was brought to the Supreme Court in 1917.

Among other contentions Ozawa advanced the claim that he is "white," and in an effort to prove his point he traced the history of the Japanese nation for several thousand years, back to the Ainu tribe. He included in his argument the assertion that Solicitor James M. Beck had expressed the belief that this particular portion of the Japanese race has the distinct mark of the Caucasian.

Ozawa is well educated and speaks excellent English. He came to Hawaii while a young man. One of his points was that he had taken special care to educate his children in the American public schools of the Territory and to familiarize them with American customs and ideals in order that they might become loyal American citizens. He asserted that his children had not been taught the Japanese language and that nothing that pertained to Japan had been permitted to enter their education or religion.

In arguing both cases George W. Wickersham, acting for the Japanese, pointed out that the important issue to be settled was whether the section of the old laws limiting naturalization to "free white persons" and persons of African descent was abrogated by the immigration and naturalization law of 1906, which contained no such limitations.

Counsel for the Government in the Ozawa case and for the State of Washington in the other case argued that the limiting section was still in force and that, therefore, Japanese were not eligible for naturalization.

M. CLEMENCEAU'S VISIT AND SPEECHES.

Georges Clemenceau, Premier of France during the latter years of the war and the making of peace (Nov. 14, 1917 to Jan. 18, 1920), arrived in New York on the French liner Paris on Nov. 18, 1922. He was met at Quarantine by a committee from the Council of Foreign Relations, Ambassador Jusserand, Robert Woods Bliss of the State Department, representing President Harding personally, Frank L. Polk, George W.ickersham, Otto H. Kahn, Bernard M. Baruch, and Col. E. M. House. Landed by the city steamer Macon at the Battery, his drive up Broadway was an ovation. At the City Hall he was formally welcomed by Acting Mayor Murray Hubert. In course of his response M. Clemenceau said:

"One morning I was in my private house bordering on the sea when I received bad news from America. I heard bad names. We were called imperialists and militarists. I think that is horrid and I thought I had better go and tell them how things happened to pass and to show them that their judgment was not sane and not right.

"One day a British newspaper arrived. It contained criticism from a man of very high standing, calling America bad names. Before I thought I had better go and scold America. At that moment I decided I had better go to America and defend her. That is the reason why I am here.

"Nobody can ascribe any personal aim to my act in visiting this country. My life is over. But it does seem to me that I can do you some service in letting you know how we Europeans judge the American people. It is necessary because in the world at this time there is a crisis which hasn't existed before. How it will end nobody knows. I will ask for great freedom of thought and great freedom of speech. I must be allowed to speak as a freeman to freemen who are not afraid of anything."

On Sunday M. Clemenceau laid a wreath on the grave of Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay. On Monday, the 20th, he was the guest at a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel given by Ralph Pulitzer, head of The New York World, and made a speech to the attending editors and newspaper men. He spoke with frankness because he was speaking to his "brothers in journalism," as he phrased it.

He imposed the seal of confidence upon the speech, but this he later lifted. In part he said:

"When you find an old people like the French who have suffered for the work of liberation of Europe, and when you come to think that in this last war out of 8,000,000 mobilized we lost 5,500,000 mutilated, killed and wounded, think of the large amount of goodness, courage, power of hope, righteousness and human strength in all its best. Children returning to their own villages finding nothing. Not alone their houses but the City Halls and churches just a stick with the name of the village that was. Well, if they make some mistakes in the work of reparation, tell them that they are mistaken but don't give them the feeling that after being in the war we will let them lay.

CAN'T BE BOTH NOBLE AND MEAN.

"There is one thing that you do not know; that is, when word came that 'America is coming' they did not know what America was. If I could take you to my country now you could see for yourself the peasant. When you ask him what America is you will see that he cries at mention of America.

"If you do a noble thing one day you cannot do a mean thing the next.

"If you knew your power to-day as you seemed to have known at that time—the great crisis the end of which no one can foresee. It is very easy to see that we are in a crisis, and if you do not choose carefully the means and if you do not unite your parties—well, the time has come. I thought, when American people ought to think about their responsibility.

"Well, the time has come for you to make up your mind. I am not going to tell you what to do, how to do it, when to do it; but I am going to tell you that the black clouds are on the horizon far away, for all the civilized world.

"I do not come for pity nor for protection of my health. I bring health with me. I feel, having lived in the situation which is coming soon, sooner than you think, and I come to wake you up. Not to do any worrying or on account of any economic question. I do not come for money. My principle is every honest debt must be honestly paid.

"My friends, think of it, you left us in a lurch, and in a lurch we are. I come to warn you because I know what you mean at the bottom of your hearts. I do not want to ask a decision. I want you to decide as you think best for America, because I know what is best for America is best for Europe and the world. Do not forget the responsibility which you have toward the civilized world. We have our share of it.

"I come to awaken certain feelings in your hearts, and if that is done I am willing to leave the rest to your conscience. I am sure in the end it will be right.

"You have the minds, you have the wills which make the greatest men. You have done too much to do too little, and I want us to live together to the end."

FRANCE'S SUFFERING.

On Tuesday night M. Clemenceau addressed an audience that filled every seat of the Metropolitan Opera House and paid a notable tribute to Ignace Paderevski, former Premier of Poland, who was in a box. In that speech after saying "we are not people who deny our debts," he went on: "Now, let us see—90 per cent. of the laymen, 90 per cent. of cotton, 90 per cent. of steel, and so on, all our products—and out of 3,500,000 soldiers mobilized, we lost 5,500,000. Don't you think that is a figure—5,500,000 killed and wounded and 500,000 coming back from German prisons dying with hunger and consumption. We are the ones that have suffered most, cruelly suffered. The Germans have devastated our lands, nevertheless, what has happened? In three years there has been taken from Germany 50 per cent. of their debts toward us under the pressure of England."

Later on he said, "Do you know that they are manufacturing cannon by the hundreds? I tell you plainly, as I told Lloyd George before the war, they are preparing war again. Don't you see what is going on? Don't you read the papers? Why, haven't you heard of the treaty between the Turks, the Germans and the Russians? Now, I say that Gens. Ludendorff and Hindenburg are preparing war, civil war, to crush the German democracy if they can.

"Now, have you made up your minds? No sacrifice is demanded or exacted from you except to assert that you want to keep among the people of this world the great place you have twice taken. If you take it, then you will see a great emotion among the people, liberty—liberation. If you don't, the prospect is dark and dreary."

M. Clemenceau addressed the members of the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon Wednesday, then stressing the necessity of reparations, saying, "The Germans have made so much havoc that they cannot pay the bill," and emphasizing France's need for guarantees for her security; for he, now beginning his eighty-second year, has seen two German invasions of France.

The United States Senate had several debates over M. Clemenceau's speeches which were received with great interest throughout Europe also. The British Government, notwithstanding his generous praise of the British soldier, etc., protested formally against his phrase, "England got a guarantee by letting the German fleet sink in Scapa Flow."

GERMAN DENIALS.

Chancellor William Cuno of the German Republic, when interrogated in Berlin by a New York Herald correspondent, declined to make any commitment upon or to permit his Cabinet associates to discuss M. Clemenceau's New York speech, on the ground that its full text had not yet been received there, and that, moreover, it voiced merely the views of a private French citizen. The Foreign Office, however, authorized the Herald to say that the German Government stamps his allegations about secret and illegal manufacture of war material as absolute invention, and that it feels that the existence of the Russo-German treaty to which it referred has been denied so often that further denial is unnecessary.

In the absence from Berlin of Gen. Nollet, chief of the Interallied Control Commission, one of the Allied Generals attached to the commission gave the Herald correspondent this statement:

"Unless every officer, without exception, in the French, Belgian, and British groups is deceived it is absolutely untrue that there is a single instance of war material being made in Germany. That is not only unlikely but ridiculous. We have men in every establishment in the country where arms—either cannon or military rifles—could be made; even supervision of the conversion of old arms plants to peace uses. It is true a limited number of sporting arms are made. Nobody can draw a line between sporting and military arms so far as being dangerous is concerned, but it is well known that the sporting rifles produced are not fit and not numerous enough for war. Moreover, there is not a pound of powder being made in Germany, except for mine blasting, which again is obviously useless in war."

HOW HIS TRIP WAS PLANNED.

John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain and President of the Council on Foreign Relations, on November 23 made clear certain facts concerning M. Clemenceau's visit to America in these words:

"Ever since the Peace Conference M. Clemenceau has frequently expressed a hope to visit the United States. Last summer he sent word to his friend, Col. E. M. House, that he would like to come this fall and make half a dozen speeches. Col. House thereupon suggested to the Council on Foreign Relations, an organization which includes men of all political parties, formed to foster discussion of America's foreign relations, but engaged in promoting no propaganda as to the form those relations should take, that it would be highly appropriate for M. Clemenceau to speak in New York under the auspices of the council. The council was very glad to embrace the suggestion and cabled an invitation to M. Clemenceau, which was accepted. It was also very glad to engage an auditorium in which M. Clemenceau could speak, and to invite its members and friends to give a courteous hearing to his message.

"During the remainder of M. Clemenceau's tour he is in charge in Boston of a citizens' committee, of which F. L. Higginson, Jr., is Chairman; at Chicago, Brig.-Gen. Dawes has charge of his arrangements, and he will speak there under the auspices of the Council on Foreign Relations of that city. He goes to St. Louis at the invitation of the city, extended by its Mayor. At Washington he will be the guest of Henry White and will speak before the International Chautauqua Association, of which President Harding is the Honorary President. At Philadelphia arrangements are being made by

PRESIDENT HARDING ON FOREIGN RELATIONS.

President Harding spoke on the foreign relations of the United States. This is his annual message to Congress on Dec. 8:

"I bring you no apprehension of war. The world is abhorrent of it, and our own relations are not only free from every threatening cloud but we have contributed our large influence toward making armed conflict less likely.

"Those who assume that we played our part in the World War and later took ourselves aloof and apart unmindful of world obligations give scant credit to the helpful part we assumed in international relationship.

"Whether all nations signatory ratify all the treaties growing out of the Washington Conference on Limitation of Armament or some withhold approval the underlying policy of limiting naval armament has the sanction of the larger naval powers, and naval competition is suspended. Of course, unanimous ratification is much to be desired.

"The four-power pact which abolishes every probability of war on the Pacific has brought new confidence in a maintained peace, and I can well believe it might be made a model for like assurances wherever in the world any common interests are concerned.

"We have had expressed the hostility of the American people to a super-government or to any commitment where either a council or an assembly

Edward Bok, and he will speak at the Academy of Music Forum.

"In advance of his coming M. Clemenceau stipulated that he should pay all his own expenses. Being a man of modest income, he is said to be earning these expenses through writing newspaper articles. He also stipulated that the proceeds from any of his meetings at which there should be a charge for admission should be distributed to some Franco-American charitable enterprise to be named by him."

ANSWERED FROM AMERICAN HEARTS.

M. Clemenceau added to that program an address to American army officers at the War College in Washington and went from Philadelphia to Chicago where on Monday, December 11, he spoke to the American Farm Bureau Federation. In Washington he was entertained at lunch by President Harding, and called on former President Wilson. In St. Louis he was the guest of Joseph Pulitzer Jr., and in Chicago of Mrs. Potter Palmer. Everywhere he was tireless in visiting the shrines of American history and points of interest that had an especial appeal to him. He found time to write six articles for The World in addition.

The proceeds of his "lectures," as he called them, and they were all to crowded houses, he gave to the American Field Service Fund for Fellowships in French and American Universities, organized and directed by Congressman A. Platt Andrew of Massachusetts; "in memory of my student days in America," he said.

Returning to New York on December 12 he was the guest of the American Committee for Devastated France at their banquet at Hotel Pennsylvania and made his last speech, saying: "I came to appeal to the American mind and the answer came from American hearts."

He sailed for France on the French liner Paris on December 13.

of leagued powers may chart our course. Treaties of armed alliance can have no likelihood of American sanction, but we believe in respecting the rights of nations, in the value of conference and consultation, in the effectiveness of leaders of nations looking each other in the face before resorting to the arbitrament of arms.

"It has been our fortune both to preach and promote international understanding. The influence of the United States in bringing near the settlement of an ancient dispute between South American nations is added proof of the glow of peace in ample understanding.

"In Washington to-day are met the delegates of the Central American nations, gathered at the table of international understanding, to stabilize their republics and remove every vestige of disagreement. They are met here by our invitation not in our aloofness, and they accept our hospitality because they have faith in our unselfishness and believe in our helpfulness.

"I would like the Congress and the people of the Nation to believe that in a firm and considerate way we are insistent on American rights wherever they may be questioned and deny no rights of others in the assertion of our own. Moreover, we are cognizant of the world's struggles for full readjustment and rehabilitation, and we have shirked no duty which comes of sympathy, or fraternity, or highest fellowship among nations."

PERMANENT COURT OF INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE.

The project drafted by the Advisory Committee of Jurists at The Hague, in the summer of 1920 for a Permanent Court of International Justice was adopted by the Assembly of the League of Nations, modified in some important parts, notably in the matter of obligatory jurisdiction, on Dec. 13, 1920. The eleven regular or titular judges, as they are called, and the four deputy judges were elected on Sept. 14 and 15, 1921. The election was made by the independent, separate and concurrent votes of the Council of the League, in which body the great powers form a majority, and the Assembly of the League in which the small powers have an overwhelming preponderance. At the suggestion of Elihu Root, of the Advisory Committee, upon failure of the Council and Assembly to agree, a committee of three was appointed from each body which produced an agreement. The judges elected by this method are as follows:

Rafael Altamira y Crevea (b. 1866) of Spain, Senator, Professor of the Faculty of Law of the University of Madrid.

Dionisio Anzilotti (b. 1869) of Italy, Under Secretary General of the League of Nations, Professor of International Law at the University of Rome, Co-Editor of the Revista di Diritto Internazionale, Member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague, Member of the Institute of International Law.

Ruy Barbosa (b. 1849) of Brazil, Senator, Former Minister of Finance and Vice President, Founder Member of the American Institute of International Law.

Antonio Sanchez de Bustamante y Sirven (b. 1865) of Cuba, Senator, Professor of International Law and Dean of the Faculty of Law at the University of Havana, Member of the Institute of International Law, Founder Member of the American Institute of International Law, Member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague.

Robert Bannatyne, Viscount Finlay (b. 1842) of Great Britain, Former Attorney General, Former Lord Chancellor, Member of Parliament, Member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague.

Bernard, C. J. Loder (b. 1849) of the Netherlands, Member of the Court of Cassation, Associate of the Institute of International Law.

Yorozu Oda (b. 1863) of Japan, Professor of International Law and Rector of the University of Kyoto.

Charles Andre Weiss (b. 1858) of France, Professor of International Law at the University of Paris, Legal Adviser to the Ministry for Foreign Affairs, Member of the Institute of International Law, Member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague.

John Bassett Moore (b. 1860) of the United States, Former Counselor of the Department of State, Professor of International Law at Columbia University, Member of the Institute of International Law, Member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague.

Didrik Gjaltrup Gjedde Nyholm (b. 1858) of Denmark, Honorary Counselor of State, Vice President of the International Mixed Tribunal at Cairo, Member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague.

Max Huber (b. 1874) of Switzerland, Professor of International Law at the University of Zurich, Associate of the Institute of International Law.

The Deputy Judges are:

Dumitriu Negulescu (b. 1876) of Roumania, Professor at the University of Bucharest.

Wang Chung Hui (b. 1882) of China, Former Minister for Foreign Affairs and Minister of Justice.

Mikhailo Jovanovitch of the Serb-Croat-Slovene State, Former Minister of Justice, President of the Supreme Court at Belgrade.

Frederick Valdemar Nikolai Reichmann (b. 1850) of Norway, President of the Court of Appeals at Drøningh, Member of the Institute of International Law, Member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague.

Each Judge is to serve nine years and may be re-elected. The ordinary Judge receives a salary varying from $6,030 to $14,070, in accordance with the length of the session.

The members of the court, upon the invitation of the Secretary General of the League of Nations, met at The Hague Feb. 15, 1922, and elected as President Mr. Bernard O. J. Loder; as Vice President, Mr. Andre Weiss, and appointed Mr. Ake Hammarskjöld as Registrar.

The court met for its first annual session on June 15, 1922. Three cases calling for interpretations of the Treaty of Versailles, all having to do with labor problems, were heard, and three advisory opinions handed down.

Secretary Hughes, in a speech in Boston October 30, declared that the Washington Government would give its formal support to the International Court, as soon as suitable arrangements could be made for American participation in the election of Judges.

According to the League Covenant, all disputes between members of the League must be submitted either to arbitration or to inquiry of the League Council. According to the statute of the court (Art. 30) the jurisdiction of the court "comprises all cases which the parties refer to it." The following cases are recognized as being generally suited for arbitration: (1) The interpretation of a treaty; (2) any question of international law; (3) the existence of any fact which, if established would constitute a breach of any international obligation; (4) the extent and nature of the reparation to be made for any such breach. There is no provision in the covenant that compels members of the League to submit disputes of the above nature to arbitration.

VETO OF THE SOLDIERS' BONUS BILL.

The Soldiers' Bonus Bill (or "adjusted compensation" bill) was passed by the House on March 23, 1922, by a vote of 333 to 70; and by the Senate on Aug. 31 by a vote of 47 to 22. It was sent to conference the following day. The House agreed to the conference report without a record vote; the Senate agreed by a vote of 36 to 17.

The House on Sept. 20 passed the bill over the President's veto by a vote of 258 (Reps. 188, Dems. 69, Soc. 1) to 54 (Reps. 35, Dems. 19), absent and not paired, 43. The Senate on Sept. 20 failed to pass the bill over the President's veto—a two-thirds vote being necessary—by a vote of 44 (Reps. 27, Dems. 17) to 28 (Reps. 21, Dems. 7), absent and not paired, 3. The bill therefore failed to become a law.

President Harding's veto message in part follows: "With the avowed purpose of the bill to give expression of a nation's defense in the world war, I am in accord, but to its provisions I do not subscribe. The United States never will cease to be grateful; it cannot and never will cease giving expression to that gratitude.

"In legislating for what is called adjusted compensation, Congress fails, first of all, to provide the revenue from which the bestowal is to be paid. Moreover, it establishes the very dangerous precedent of creating a Treasury covenant to pay which puts a burden, variously estimated between four and five billions, upon the American people, not to discharge an obligation, which the Government always must pay, but to bestow a bonus which the soldiers themselves, while serving in the World War, did not expect.

"It is not to be denied that the nation has certain very binding obligations to those of its defenders who made real sacrifices in the World War and who left the armies injured, disabled or diseased, so that they could not resume their places in the normal activities of life. These obligations are being gladly and generously met.

$25,000,000,000 TOTAL FOR DISABLED.

"In the current fiscal year we are expending $510,000,000 on hospitalization and care of sick and wounded, on compensations and vocational training for the disabled and for insurance. The figures do not include the more than $35,000,000 in process of expenditure on hospital construction. The estimates for the year to follow are approximately $470,000,000, and the figures may need to be made larger. Though the peak in hospitalization may have passed, there is a growth in domiciliation and the discharge in full of our obligations to the deceased, disabled or dependent, who have a right to the Government's aid with insurance—liability added—which will probably reach a total sum in excess of $25,000,000,000.

"More than 99,000 veterans are now enrolled in some of the 445 different courses in vocational training. Fifty-four thousand of them are in schools or colleges, more than 38,000 are in industrial establishments and a few more than 6,000 are being trained in schools operated by the veterans' bureau.

"Approximately 19,000 have completed their courses and have employment in all cases where they desire it, and 53,000 have deferred for the present time their acceptance of training. The number eligible under the law may reach close to 400,000, and facilities will continue to be afforded, unmindful of the necessary cost, until every obligation is fulfilled.

"Two hundred and seventy-six thousand patients have been hospitalized, more than a quarter of a million discharged and 25,678 patients are in our hospitals to-day.

"Four hundred and sixteen thousand awards of compensation have been made on account of death or disability and $480,000,000 has been paid to disabled men or their dependent relatives. One hundred and seventy-five thousand disabled ex-service men are now receiving compensation, along with medical or hospital care where needed, and a quarter of a million checks go out monthly in distributing the $8,000,000 payment of indisputable obligations.

"When the bill was under consideration in the House I expressed the conviction that any grant of bonus ought to provide the means of paying it, and I was unable to suggest any plan other than that of a general sales tax. Such a plan was unacceptable to the Congress, and the bill has been enacted without even a suggested means of meeting the cost. Indeed, the cost is not definitely known, either for the immediate future or in the ultimate settlement.

"The Treasury estimates, based on what seems the most likely exercise of the options, figure the direct cost at approximately $145,000,000 for 1923, $225,000,000 for 1924, $114,000,000 for 1925, $312,000,000 for 1926, make a total of $796,000,000 for the first four years of its operation, and a total cost in excess of $4,000,000,000.

"No estimate of the large indirect cost ever had been made. The certificate plan sets up no reserve against the ultimate liability. The plan avoids any considerable direct outlay by the Government during the earlier years of the bill's proposed operations, but the loans on the certificates would be floated on the credit of the Nation.

DANGEROUS ABUSE OF PUBLIC CREDIT.

"This is borrowing on the Nation's credit just as truly as though the loans were made by direct Government borrowing, and involves a dangerous abuse of public credit. Moreover, the certificate plan of payment is little less than certified inability of the Government to pay, and invites a practice on sacrificial barter which I cannot sanction.

"The financial problems of the Government are too little heeded until we are face to face with a great emergency. The diminishing income of the Government, due to the receding tides of business and attending incomes, has been overlooked momentarily, but cannot be long ignored. The latest budget figures for the current fiscal year show an estimated deficit of more than $650,000,000 and a further deficit for the year succeeding, even after counting upon all interest collections on foreign indebtedness which the Government is likely to receive.

"To add to our pledges to pay, except as necessity compels, must seem no less than governmental folly. Inevitably it means increased taxation, which Congress was unwilling to levy for the purposes of this bill, and will turn us from the course toward economy so essential to promote the activities which contribute to common welfare."

WAR BONUSES AND BOUNTIES IN THE UNITED STATES.War of the Revolution.*

By resolution of Congress Sept. 16, 1776, it was provided that grants of land should be given to men and officers serving during the war as follows, in acres:

Colonels, 500; lieutenant colonels, 450; majors, 400; captains, 300; lieutenants, 200; ensigns, 150; noncommissioned officers and privates, 100.

By resolution of Congress June 22, 1779: It was provided that a gratuity be paid to those who enlisted prior to Jan. 23, 1779, of $100.

By resolution of Aug. 24, 1780, it was provided that seven years' half pay should be given to officers continuing in service to the end of the war.

Act of Congress, 1812: Noncommissioned officers and men upon discharge to be given a bounty and 160 acres of land. By act of Dec. 10, 1814: Men thereafter enlisted to receive 320 acres of land.

Mexican War.

Men serving through Mexican War entitled to warrants for 160 acres of land with option of bonus of $100.

Civil War.

Men entitled to receive patents for 160 acres of land. Various bounties paid for enlistment and service during war by Federal Government ranging from $150 to $400. Amount paid in bounties by Federal Government, $405,021,000.

In addition, the various States paid bounties as follows:

PRESIDENT HARDING'S SHIP SUBSIDY MESSAGE.

President Harding, on Nov. 21, 1922, appeared before Congress at the opening of its fourth session and addressed them regarding pending ship subsidy liquidation in part as follows:

Members of the Congress: Late last February I reported to you relative to the American merchant marine and recommended legislation which the executive branch of the Government deemed essential to promote our merchant marine and with it our national welfare. Other problems were pressing and other questions pending, and for one reason or another, which need not be recited, the suggested legislation has not progressed beyond a favorable recommendation by the House committee. The committee has given the question a full and painstaking inquiry and study, and I hope that its favorable report speedily will be given the force of law.

We are not now dealing with a policy founded on theory; we have a problem which is one of grim actuality. We are facing insistent conditions, out of which will come either additional and staggering Government losses and national impotence on the seas, or else the unfurling of the flag on a great American merchant marine commensurate with our commercial importance, to serve as carrier of our cargoes in peace and meet the necessities of our defense in war.

There is no thought here and now to magnify the relation of a merchant marine to our national defense. It is enough to recall that we entered the World War almost wholly dependent on our allies for transportation by sea. We expended approximately three billions feverishly, extravagantly, wastefully, and impractically. Out of our eagerness to make up for the omissions of peace and to meet the war emergency we builded and otherwise acquired the vast merchant fleet which the Government owns to-day.

TO RELIEVE TREASURY OF DRAIN.

In the simplest way I can say it, our immediate problem is not to build and support a merchant shipping, which I hold to be one of the highest and most worthy aspirations of any great people; our problem is to deal with what we now possess. Our problem is to relieve the public Treasury of the drain it is already meeting. Let us omit particulars about the frenzied wartime building. Possibly we did fully as well as could have been done in the anxious circumstances. Let us pass for the moment the vital relationship between a merchant marine and a commercially aspiring nation.

Aye, let us suppose for a moment the absurdity that with one $8,000,000,000 experience and with the incalculable costs in lives and treasure which may be chargeable to our inability promptly to apply our potency—which God foretold happening again—let us momentarily ignore all of these and turn to note the mere business problem, the practical question of dollars and cents with which we are confronted.

TONNAGE LEFT AFTER WAR.

The war construction and the later completion of war contracts, where completion was believed to be the greater economy to the public Treasury, left us approximately 13,200,000 gross tonnage in ships. The figures are nearer 12,500,000 tons now, owing to the scrapping of the wooden fleet. More than half of this tonnage is Government owned, and approximately 2,250,000 tons are under Government operation in one form or another.

The net loss to the United States Treasury—sums actually taken therefrom in this Government operation—averaged approximately $16,000,000 per month during the year prior to the assumption of responsibility by the present Administration. A constant warfare on this loss of public funds and the draft to service of capable business management and experienced operating directors have resulted in applied efficiency and enforced economies. It is very gratifying to report the diminution of the losses to $4,000,000 per month, or a total of $50,000,000 a year; but it is intolerable that the Government should continue a policy from which so enormous a Treasury loss is the inevitable outcome. This loss, moreover, attends operation of less than a third of the Government-owned fleet.

It is not, therefore, a question of adding new Treasury burdens to maintain our shipping; we are paying these burdens now. It is not a question of contracting an outlay to support our merchant shipping, because we are paying already. I am not asking your authorization of a new and added draft on the public Treasury; I am appealing for a program to diminish the burden we are already bearing.

But I have not properly portrayed all the current losses to the public Treasury. We are wearing out our ships without any provision for replacement. We are having these losses through deterioration now and are charging nothing against our capital account. But the losses are there, and regrettably larger under Government operation than under private control. Only a few years of continued losses on capital account will make these losses through depreciation alone to exceed the fifty millions a year now drawn to cover losses in operation.

FLEET WORTH ONLY FRACTION OF COST.

The gloomy picture of losses does not end even there. Notwithstanding the known war cost of three billions of dollars for the present tonnage, I will not venture to appraise its cash value to-day. It may as well be confessed now as at some later time that in the mad rush to build, in establishing shipyards wherever men would organize to expend Government money, when we made shipbuilders overnight quite without regard to previous occupations or pursuits, we builded poorly, often very poorly.

Moreover, we constructed without any formulated program for a merchant marine. The war emergency impelled, and the cry was for ships, any kind of ships. The error is recalled in regret rather than criticism. The point is that our fleet, costing approximately $3,000,000,000, is worth only a fraction of that cost to-day. Whatever that fraction may be, the truth remains that we have no market in which to sell the ships under our present policy, and a program of surrender and sacrifice and the liquidation which is inevitable unless the pending legislation is sanctioned, will cost scores of millions more.

This problem cannot longer be ignored, its attempted solution cannot longer be postponed. The failure of Congress to act decisively will be no less disastrous than adverse action. Three courses of action are possible, and the choice among them is no longer to be avoided.

The first is constructive—enact the pending bill, under which I firmly believe an American merchant marine, privately owned and privately operated, but serving all the people and always available to the Government in any emergency, may be established and maintained.

The second is obstructive—continue Government operations and attending Government losses, and discourage private enterprise by Government competition under which losses are met by the public Treasury, and witness the continued loss and deterioration until the colossal failure ends in sheer exhaustion.

The third is destructive—involving the sacrifice of our ships abroad or the scrapping of them at home, the surrender of our aspirations, and the confession of our impotence to the world in general, and our humiliation before the competing world in particular.

I know full well the hostility in the popular mind to the word "subsidy." It is stressed by the opposition and associated with "special privilege" by those who are unfailing advocates of Government aid. "Aid" would be a fairer term than "subsidy," in defining what we are seeking to do for our merchant marine, and the interests are those of all the people, even though the aid goes to the few who serve.

ANALYSIS OF THE BILL.

I challenge every insinuation of favored interests and the enrichment of the special few at the expense of the public Treasury. I am, first of all, appealing to save the Treasury. Perhaps the unlimited bestowal of Government aid might justify the apprehension of special favoring, but the pending bill, the first ever proposed which carries such a provision, automatically guards against enrichment or perpetuated bestowal.

It provides that shipping lines receiving Government aid must have their actual investment and their operating expenses audited by the Government, that Government aid will only be paid until the shipping enterprise earns 10 per cent. on actual capital employed, and immediately that when more than 10 per cent. earning is reached half of the excess earnings must be applied to the repayment of the Government aid which has been previously advanced.

Thus the possible earnings are limited to a very reasonable amount if capital is to be risked and management is to be attracted. If success attends, as we hope it will, the Government outlay is returned, the inspiration of opportunity to earn remains, and American transportation by sea is established.

It should be kept in mind that the approximate sum of $5,000,000 annually paid for the transport of ocean mails is no new expenditure. It should be kept in mind that the loan fund to encourage building is not new; it is the law already, enacted by the essentially unanimous vote of Congress. It is only included in the pending bill in order to amend so as to assure the exaction of a minimum interest rate by the Government, whereas the existing law leaves the grant of building loans subject to any whim of favoritism.

DIRECT AID.

It should be kept in mind, also, that there are assured limitations of the Government aid proposed. The direct aid, with ocean carrying maintained at our present participation, will not reach $20,000,000 a year, and the maximum direct aid, if our shipping is so promoted that we carry one-half our deep-seas commerce, will not exceed $30,000,000 annually. At the very maximum of outlay we should be saving $20,000,000 of our present annual operating loss.

If the maximum is ever reached, the establishment of our merchant marine will have been definitely recorded and the Government-owned fleet fortunately liquidated.

PROVISIONS OF THE SHIP SUBSIDY BILL.

"A bill to amend and supplement the Merchant Marine Act, 1920, and for other purposes" commonly referred to as the Ship Subsidy Bill, was introduced in the House of Representatives Nov. 20, 1922, by Mr. Greene of Massachusetts, upon President Harding's call for an extra session to consider it. It may be summarized prior to any amendment as follows:

Authorizes the United States Shipping Board to sell to citizens Government owned ships at public or private sale (if by the latter, only on approval of five of the seven members of the board, with inclusion of reasons in board minutes), terms and conditions to be prescribed by the board, and payment to be completed in 15 years, payments annually to cover depreciation, and interest on unpaid balance to be not less than 4 per cent. Insurance to be carried by purchaser payable to board.

Provides for creation of the "United States Shipping Board Construction Loan Fund" of $125,000,000, out of which the board may loan funds for as long as 15 years at 2 per cent. interest "to its persons, citizens of the United States; (1) in the construction by them in private shipyards of the United States of vessels of the best and most efficient type. . . . (2) in the equipping . . . of vessels already built with . . . machinery and commercial appliances," the loans to be limited in amount to two-thirds the construction or equipment cost.

Repeals laws of 1891 providing for mail carrying and authorizes the Postmaster General "to contract for the carrying of the mails over such lines at such price as may be agreed upon by the board and the Postmaster General," contracts to be made wherever practicable with American lines.

Allows American vessel owners certain extra exemptions from income tax laws, the deduction allowable to be determined on a ratio of ship operation. Permits an owner to deduct profits of the sale of a ship to another citizen provided that the proceeds are reinvested in shipping. Also allows deduction for depreciation.

Doubles tonnage duties and taxes except for sailing vessels of less than 1,000 gross tons and other vessels of less than 1,500 gross tons.

Prescribes that "as nearly as practicable one-half of the total number of immigrants admitted to the United States in any fiscal year" shall be transported in American ships, under regulation, to be promulgated by the Commissioner General of Immigration and approved by the Secretary of State.

Establishes the "Merchant Marine Fund," into which are to be paid all tonnage duties and taxes, 10 per cent. of the amount of all customs duties and "all excess earnings paid by the owner of any vessel." Out of this fund the board is authorized to pay subsidies (on ten-year contracts) based on gross tonnage of vessels, nautical miles sailed and speed, ranging in effect from one-half of one per cent. per gross ton per 100 nautical miles to 2 1-10th cents (this being for vessels doing 23 knots or over). Vessels of less than 5,000 but more than 1,500 gross tons to be rated as of 5,000 gross tons. Vessels to be eligible must be over 1,500 gross tons and must carry crews at least two-thirds citizens. The board may double the subsidy if it deems necessary.

Provides for discontinuance of army and navy transport service and diversion of this privilege to private lines under ten-year contracts negotiated by the Secretaries of the Army and Navy. Also provides that all Government officials, legislative, judicial, diplomatic, etc., must travel by American lines if their passage is paid by the Government.

The bill after amendment passed the House on Nov. 29 by a vote of 208 (Reps. 204; Dems. 4) to 184 (Dems. 114; Reps. 69; Soc. 1).

THE WORLD ALMANAC presents official figures and facts compiled by the United States Shipping Board giving, as completely as possible, a business sheet of the board, as of Sept. 1, 1922, together with this official statement of the board's policy:

"The general policy of all provisions of the Shipping Act, 1916, and of the Merchant Marine Act, 1920, contemplates sales of vessels to citizens, to the exclusion of foreigners, except when the board regards particular vessels proposed to be sold to foreigners of unimportance to the American Merchant Marine. This policy is expressly set forth in Secs. 5 and 7 of the Merchant Marine Act."

The Bureau of Research of the U. S. Shipping

Board discloses that 52 per cent. of total cargo tonnage handled in United States ports in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, moved under the American flag, when 37,312 vessels in water-borne foreign commerce, aggregating 80,231,000 long tons, entered and cleared American ports, 49 per cent. of the vessels being of American registry. Relative efficiency was indicated by the American average of 2.62 deadweight tons per cargo ton carried, the foreign average being 2.74.

(The United States is now second among the merchant fleets of the world. United States Department of Commerce statistics gave this country, as of June 30, 1914, sea-going tonnage of 1,837,000, against Great Britain, 18,877,000; Germany, 1,088,000; France, 1,918,000; Japan, 1,642,000; total, the world, 42,514,000; and as of June 30, 1921, the United States, 12,314,000; Great Britain, 19,288,000; France, 3,045,000; Japan, 3,063,000; Germany, 654,000; total, the world, 54,158,000; and as of June 30, 1922, the United States, 12,506,000; Great Britain, 19,053,000; France, 3,303,000; Japan, 3,325,000; Germany, 1,783,000; total, the world, 56,802,000.

The Department of Commerce also gave figures showing that gross tons of shipping building on June 30, 1922, was, the United States, 150,623; Great Britain, 1,919,504; France, 245,290; Japan, 115,512; Germany, estimated, 500,000; total, the world, 3,325,430.—Ed. Almanac.)

Total cargo ships inactive, 882, of 5,620,881 deadweight tonnage; 17 cargo and passenger, of 183,438 tonnage; 13 refrigerator ships, of 91,183 tons; 66 tankers, of 615,413 tons; 18 tugs.

The U. S. Shipping Board on Aug. 31, 1922, owned 236 wooden vessels, built as a part of the war programme. Of these, 226 were sold at auction on Sept. 12, 1922, for $750,000.

The Foreign Commerce of the U. S. Shipping Board for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, was: Exports, 6,634,381 tons of cargo. Imports, 4,313,913 tons of cargo.

OTHER INTERESTS.

Docks and Wharves. The U. S. Shipping Board owns and operates the Hoboken Terminal, bought on Executive order by former President Wilson for $7,146,583 from the North German Lloyd Dock Co., 6 piers, and the Hamburg American Line Terminal and Navigation Co., 3 piers, to be held for the original owners.

Drydocks. The U. S. Shipping Board owns drydocks with tonnage capacity as follows: Perth Amboy, N. J., 10,000; Lord Drydock Corporation, New York Harbor, 10,000; two stored at Mill Basin, Brooklyn, 10,000 tons each; 1 stored at Tiverton, R. I., 10,000; 1 steel dock stored at Mill Basin, Brooklyn, 6,000; Bruce Drydock, Pensacola, Fla., 5,000.

Bunker Stations. The U. S. Shipping Board owns bunker stations at Honolulu, T. H., of 110,000 bbls. capacity; Manila, P. I., 165,000 bbls.; St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, 220,000 bbls.; Mobile, Ala., 110,000 bbls.; Norfolk, Va., 1,100,000 bbls.

Vessels Sold. The U. S. Shipping Board had sold up to June 30, 1922, 473 vessels, of a total deadweight tonnage of 2,126,379 for a total price of $268,881,711. The board said: "The amount these sales will yield cannot be computed at present (Sept. 15, 1922). Many of the purchasers failed to keep their contracts. Others have applications for readjustments. Most of the sales were at the very high prices prevailing in 1919 and 1920, ranging in many cases as high as $180 per deadweight ton, whereas the prevailing price for similar tonnage in 1922 has been less than one-third that rate. This depreciation accounts for many of the defaults by purchasers."

Housing. The U. S. Shipping Board has several war housing projects not yet disposed of, aggregating about 400 acres on which there are about 1,100 buildings, structures and land having cost about $12,000,000.

THE CONGRESSIONAL "FARM BLOOS."

(This article on the activities of so-called "Farm Blocs" was prepared for the WORLD ALMANAC by Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation.)

Members of the Senate Farm Bloc, when it was organized on May 9, 1921, in the Washington office of the American Farm Bureau Federation, were:

William S. Kenyon (Rep., Iowa), Chairman; John B. Kendrick (Dem., Wyo.); George W. Norris (Rep., Neb.); Frank M. Gooding (Rep., Idaho); Arthur Capper (Rep., Kan.); Ellison D. Smith (Dem., So. Car.); Duncan U. Fletcher (Dem., Fla.); Robert M. La Follette (Rep., Wis.); Morris Sheppard (Dem., Tex.); E. F. Ladd (Rep., No. Dak.); Joseph E. Ransdell (Dem., La.); J. Thomas Hefflin (Dem., Ala.). Senator Arthur Capper, Kansas, succeeded Senator Kenyon as Chairman when the latter resigned from the Senate to accept a Federal Judgeship in Iowa.

Members of the House Farm Bloc, when it was organized on May 18, 1921, in the Washington office of the American Farm Bureau Federation, were:

"There is no definite membership in the Farm Blocs, membership depending upon support or non-support of agricultural measures," says Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation. "The Farm Bloc in both Senate and House was organized, not for class legislation, but for sympathetic consideration of the economic problems facing agriculture. The Blocs wish to see agriculture take its place in a sound, aggressive, prosperous national programme, and to reap rewards on the basis of the vast investment of capital, labor and knowledge commensurate with the rewards of other national activities."

Actual legislation, which has been enacted at the request of the Senate Farm Bloc, is as follows:

- H. R. 5676—An act for the regulation of grain trading.
- H. R. 2873—An act to permit farmers to do co-operative marketing.
- H. R. 6320—An act for the regulation of the packing industry by the Federal Government.
- S. 1072—An act outlining Federal aid for road building and an appropriation for 1921-22.
- S. 1811—An act authorizing the sale of Farm Loan bonds at 5½ per cent.
- S. 1837—An act depositing an additional $25,000,000 to the credit of the Farm Loan fund, at an interest rate of 5½ per cent.
- S. 1915—An act reviving the War Finance Board for one year, and appropriating $1,000,000,000 to be loaned to agriculture through this board.
- S. 2263—An act providing for a farmer member of the Federal Reserve Board.
- S. 2775—An act (1922) extending the life of the War Finance Board for another year.
- H. R. 9859—An act containing an appropriation for continuance of Federal aid for the road building programme for 1922-23.
- H. R. 11,843—An act meeting the objection of the United States Supreme Court to the Future Trading Act of 1921 following the same lines on the regulation of grain trading except that it is based on the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce.

In addition are a number of measures of local significance, such as the appropriation of $200,000 to repay the cotton States in their effort to eradicate the pink boll worm; $1,500,000 to drought sufferers in Montana and the Dakotas; extending reclamation laws to irrigation projects; extending the time for payment of construction charges on reclamation projects. Also the Farm Bloc in both Houses was behind the appropriation for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and many special items received increased appropriation at the instance of the Bloc.

Actual legislation, which has been enacted at the request of the House Farm Bloc, is indicated by the foregoing, with these additional measures which, on Sept. 12, 1922, had not yet been acted on by the Senate:

- H. R. 8066—A bill prohibiting the manufacture of filled milk.
- H. R. 7102—A bill establishing standard containers for fruits, etc.

The farm bloc lost one Senator, Kellogg of Minnesota, in the election of November 7, but his successful opponent, Henrik Shipstead, is the only member of the Farmer-Labor Party to be elected to the Senate and is expected to act with the bloc in the 68th Congress. Four members of the farm bloc were re-elected: Ashurst of Arizona, Jones of New Mexico, La Follette of Wisconsin, and Swanson of Virginia. Six members of the farm bloc in the House were defeated: Gernard of Pennsylvania, Evans of Nebraska, Brooks of Illinois, Rhodes of Missouri, Patterson of Missouri, and Shaw of Illinois. Twenty-two of their Representatives were re-elected. Grey Silver, after the election, telegraphed to J. R. Howard, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation: "We consider this election a full vindication of the American Farm Bureau Federation's legislative program as well as that of the bloc's and proof that the legislation is in line with public sentiment." He announced this program which the bloc will push for passage during the short session of Congress.

Farm credit legislation.
Legislation to raise the limit from $10,000 to $25,000 or remove the limit altogether on Federal Farm Land Bank co-operative loans.

The extension of the Farm Land Bank movement.
Legislation to provide a limit on the interest rate on loans to farmers.

Legislation to enable small banks to join the Federal Reserve System.

Support of the "truth in fabric" bills.
Standardization of fruit and vegetable containers.
The Anti-Filled Milk Bill.

A bill designed to prohibit the admission into the United States of certain adulterated grain and seeds unfit for seed purposes.

Much of this legislation is already before the various committees of the House and the Senate, and some of the bills already have passed in one House or the other.

THE AMERICAN FARM BUREAU FEDERATION.

The American Farm Bureau Federation—a national organization—originated when, on March 11, 1911, a local bureau was organized in Broome County, New York, James Quinn, President.

The National Federation was organized in March, 1920, in Chicago, with the following officers: James Riley Howard, President; S. L. Strivings, Vice-President; Gray Silver, Washington representative; J. W. Coverdale, Secretary; C. E. Gunnels, Secretary and Treasurer. Executive Committee—E. B. Cornwall, Vt.; E. F. Richardson, Mass.; H. E. Taylor, N. J.; Howard Leonard, Ill.; C. H. Gray, Mo.; O. E. Bradfute, O.; W. H. Walker, Cal.; W. G. Jamison, Col.; John T. Burton, Utah; Gray Silver, W. Va.; J. W. Morton, Ga.; and George Bishop, Okla.

The officers as of Sept. 1, 1922, was: James Riley Howard, President; O. E. Bradfute, Vice-President; Gray Silver, Washington representative; J. W. Coverdale, Secretary; C. E. Gunnels, director of organization and treasurer; Executive Committee—H. C. McKenzie, N. Y.; E. F. Richardson, Mass.; H. E. Taylor, N. J.; Howard Leonard, Ill.; Ralph P. Snyder, Kan.; John G. Brown, Ind.; W. H. Walker, Cal.; C. S. Brown, Ariz.; John T. Burton, Utah; J. W. Morton, Ga.; one vacancy. Chicago headquarters office, Garland Building, 58 East Washington Street; Washington office, Munsey Building, 1329 E. Street, northwest.

The American Farm Bureau Federation officially lists these as the co-operative organizations formed under the inspiration of the Federation:

U. S. Grain Growers, 58 East Washington St., Chicago; E. H. Cunningham, President; H. L. Keene, Vice-President; J. M. Mehie, Secretary; C. E. Gunnels, Treasurer.

Federated Fruit Growers, 603 South Dearborn St., Chicago; James Nicol, President; J. S. Edwards, Vice-President; C. E. Dursi, Secretary and Treasurer.

THE MEAT PACKING INDUSTRY.

J. Ogden Armour, President of Armour & Co., placed before the Government on Nov 15, 1922, a proposal for the consolidation of Armour & Co. and Morris & Co., two of the "Big Five" Chicago meat packers. He also had a half-hour conference with President Harding.

Decision was reserved while careful study was made at the Department of Agriculture on the details of the plan and its probable effect on the industry and on the producing and consuming public.

Armour & Co. is now capitalized at $150,000,000, with assets in 1920 of $525,488,957, and has packing plants in South America and Australia as well as in the United States. Its sales exceeded a billion dollars in 1919, and were over $900,000,000 in 1920. Morris & Co. is capitalized at $40,000,000, with assets in 1920 of $116,843,021. The company has half a dozen packing plants in the United States and distributing stations here and in the more important cities of Europe and Cuba.

The immediate result of a merger, it is claimed, would be a general consolidation of the facilities of the two companies, particularly as to distributing agencies and rolling stock. Economies of operation are sought.

The following tables show the extent and growth of the meat packing industry in the United States. The data are official, and are taken from the Federal Census of Manufactures.

SLAUGHTERING AND MEAT PACKING IN THE UNITED STATES.

The total number of animals slaughtered in wholesale slaughtering and meat packing establishments in 1919 was 73,256,127, and in 1914, 59,561,819, an increase of 13,694,308, or 23 per cent., in the five year period.

NOTE.—In addition, 553,839 beefves, 387,692 calves, 269,128 sheep and lambs and goats and kids, and 2,290,539 hogs were slaughtered for others in 1919, and 377,937 beefves, 243,360 calves, 795,519 sheep and lambs and goats and kids, and 2,898,994 hogs in 1914.

The dressed meat purchased (for curing) was procured largely from slaughtering establishments, and is duplicated in the total value of products. This item includes meat purchased for curing and canning, animal fats for the manufacture of lard, lard compounds and substitutes, oleo oil and stearin. The cost of "all other materials" includes containers, materials for the manufacture of containers, ice, materials for the manufacture of ice, curing materials, cottonseed oil, butter, whole milk, fuel, rent of power, mill supplies, and freight.

The table above and the note beneath do not include animals slaughtered on farms and ranges, which in 1919 totalled 1,904,581 cattle, 434,663 sheep and lambs, and goats and kids, and 16,800,230 hogs. The tables that follow relate, also, only to wholesale slaughtering and meat packing plants.

THE CASE OF SENATOR NEWBERRY OF MICHIGAN.

In the State primary election in Michigan, held Aug. 27, 1918, Truman H. Newberry was nominated by the Republican Party for the United States Senate, defeating Henry Ford by 4,335 votes in a total of 438,462. There had been several other candidates for the nomination. During the campaign protests were made against the excessive use of money in Newberry's interests. The Newberry committee admitted the expenditure of over $178,000. Newberry's own report, under oath, to the United States Senate was: "I have taken no part in it (the campaign) whatever, and no contributions or expenditures were made with my knowledge and consent." His brother, John T. Newberry, contributed $94,000, and near relatives over $70,000 additional.

Mr. Newberry, on Nov. 5, 1918, was elected to the United States Senate, defeating Henry Ford, the Democratic candidate by 12,433 votes. Ford filed a notice of contest in the Senate Jan. 6, 1919. Newberry was sworn in as Senator, giving the Republicans a majority of one in the organization of the Senate. At the first session of the Sixty-sixth Congress, on May 20, 1919, notice of contest and petition for investigation by Henry Ford was again filed with the Senate and referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. Nothing was done until the following December, when the Senate voted to make a full investigation and recount the ballots.

In the mean time Newberry was indicted by the United States Grand Jury of the Western District of Michigan under the Federal Corrupt Practices Act. Pending the trial under the Michigan indictment the Spencer sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Elections took no action. The trial at Grand Rapids was concluded in March, 1920, and Newberry was convicted and sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary and pay a fine of $10,000. The case was taken on appeal to the United States Supreme Court, which by a five to four decision, May 2, 1921, held that Congress had no power to pass a law regulating Senatorial primary elections and therefore the Corrupt Practices Act was unconstitutional. Charles Evans Hughes was Newberry's leading counsel.

The Spencer sub-committee then resumed hearings. Newberry did not appear to testify. Nearly three years after Henry Ford's first notice of contest the committee decided in Newberry's favor, after dividing on strictly partisan lines.

After a sharp debate the Senate adopted, on Jan. 12, 1922, the following resolution:

"1. That the contest of Henry Ford against Truman H. Newberry be, and it is hereby dismissed.

"2. That Truman H. Newberry is hereby declared to be a duly elected Senator from the State of Michigan for the term of six years, commencing on the fourth day of March, 1919, and is entitled to hold his seat in the Senate of the United States.

"3. That whether the amount expended in this (Michigan) primary was $195,000, as was fully reported or openly acknowledged, or whether there was some few thousand dollars in excess, the amount expended was in either case too large, much larger than ought to have been expended. The expenditure of such excessive sums in behalf of a candidate, either with or without his knowledge and consent, being contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the honor and dignity of the Senate and dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government, such excessive expenditures are hereby severely condemned and disapproved."

The Senators voted on the resolution as follows:

For Seating Newberry, 46.—All Republicans, Bell, Brandegee, Bursum, Calder, Cameron, Colt, Cummins, Curtis, Dillingham, Edges, Elkins, Ernst, Fernald, France, Frailinghuysen, Goodrich, Hale, Harrell, Kellogg, Keyes, Lenroot, Lodge, McCormick, McCumber, McKinley, McLean, McNary, Nelson, New, Nicholson, Odie, Page, Pepper, Phipps, Poindexter, Shortridge, Smoot, Spencer, Stanfield, Sterling, Townsend, Wadsworth, Warren, Watson (Ind.), Weller, Willis.

Against Seating Newberry, 41.—Republicans, 9, Borah, Capper, Jones, (Wash.), Kenyon, (La.), Ladd, La Follette, Norbeck, Norris, Sutherland.

Democrats, 32.—Ashurst, Broussard, Caraway, Cushman, Dial, Fletcher, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Healy, Gerry, Hitchcock, Jones, (N. M.), King, McKellar, Myers, Overman, Pittman, Pomeroy, Ransdell, Robinson, Owen, Sheppard, Shields, Simmons, Smith, Swanson, Trammell, Walsh (Mass.), Walsh (Mont.), Williams, Underwood.

Paired—Crow, du Pont and Moses, Republicans, for Newberry; with Kendrick Stanley and Reed, Democrats, against.

Absent and not voting—Newberry and Johnson, Republicans, and Watson (Ga.) Democrat.

ENFORCEMENT OF THE PROHIBITION LAW.

President Harding in his annual message to Congress on Dec. 8, 1922, called for rigorous and literal enforcement of the Prohibition laws in these words:

"Let men who are rending the moral fibre of the Republic through easy contempt for the Prohibition law, because they think it restricts their personal liberty, remember that they set the example and breed a contempt for law which will ultimately destroy the Republic.

"Constitutional Prohibition has been adopted by the Nation. It is the supreme law of the land. In plain speaking there are conditions relating to its enforcement which savor of Nation-wide scandal. It is the most demoralizing factor in our public life.

"Most of the people assume that the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment meant the elimination of the question from our politics. On the contrary, it has been so intensified as an issue that many voters are disposed to make all political decisions with reference to this single question.

"The day is unlikely to come when the Eighteenth Amendment will be repealed. The fact may as well be recognized and our course adapted accordingly. If the statutory provisions for its enforcement are contrary to deliberate public opinion, which I do not believe, the rigorous and literal enforcement will concentrate public attention on any requisite modification. Such a course conforms with the law and saves the humiliation of the Government and the humiliation of our people before the world, and challenges the destructive forces engaged in widespread violation, official corruption, and individual demoralization.

"The Eighteenth Amendment involves the concurrent authority of State and Federal Governments for the enforcement of the policy it defines. A certain lack of definiteness, through division of responsibility, is thus introduced. In order to bring about a full understanding of duties and responsibilities as thus distributed, I purpose to invite the Governors of the States and Territories, at an early opportunity, to a conference with the Federal executive authority. Out of the full and free considerations which will thus be possible, it is confidently believed will emerge a more adequate comprehension of the whole problem and definite policies of national and State co-operation in administering the laws."

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION.

Attorney General Daugherty rendered on Oct. 6, 1922, a sweeping opinion that the sale or transportation of intoxicating beverages on all American ships, public and private, was prohibited, and that any foreign vessel entering an American port with liquor on board as cargo, or in stores, or even in a sealed case, was to be regarded as violating the Prohibition Enforcement Law and to be dealt with accordingly. The new ruling applied to all American vessels, even on the high seas, and to all foreign vessels within the three-mile limit of national territorial jurisdiction. This decision was understood to mean that a foreign vessel carrying intoxicating liquors leaving a foreign port for another foreign port would be violating the Volstead act if it stops en route at an American port. The opinion was confirmed by President Harding.

Foreign shipowners were much concerned over the opinion and counsel for the Cunard and Anchor Line steamships sought an injunction before United States District Judge Learned Hand on October 11 to restrain the Federal Government from seizing liquors carried as sea stores for use of passengers and crew on their vessels. Other foreign steamship lines later joined them in the suit. Judge Hand issued a temporary injunction on October 12, enjoining the local prohibition and customs authorities from molesting liquor on board the American steamers Finland and St. Paul, then in the port of New York.

The French Line announced on October 12 in Paris a decision to fight the ruling in the Supreme Court and that in the event of an adverse decision it would move to obtain an appeal to the Permanent International Court of Justice at The Hague. The French Line is compelled by French law to serve a wine ration to its crew of sailors and stokers. The financial loss to the French Line would be hundreds of thousands of francs monthly. On one trip in August, with 1,011 passengers aboard, the steamship Paris sold 1,260 bottles of champagne, 242 bottles of fine Burgundy and Bordeaux wines and 87 bottles of liquor. Besides this there was the ordinary red and white wine which was allotted to each passenger with the noon and evening meals.

A hearing was held on October 17 in which the attorney for the Cunard and Anchor Lines argued that intoxicating liquor, lawfully acquired and kept sealed as sea stores, is legal within the territorial waters of the United States, and that an act of commerce should not apply to the internal affairs of a foreign vessel touching these ports.

Judge Learned Hand on October 24 upheld the ruling of Attorney General Daugherty and dismissed the applications of the ten foreign and two American steamship lines, which had combined forces, for injunctions. He decided, however, that foreign ships would be allowed to enter port with liquor for their crews, if the supply is sufficient only for rations as required by laws of certain foreign nations. Ship owners must give bonds of $25,000 each to insure compliance with this provision. The case will be taken to the United States Supreme Court.

CARRYING OUT THE RULING.

The ruling of Attorney General Daugherty became effective on October 21 at midnight. However, temporary suspension of the ruling as it applies to vessels of foreign countries plying to and from American harbors, was ordered by Secretary of Treasury Mellon on October 25, after a conference, following a meeting of the Cabinet, with the Attorney General and chief counsel Britt, of the Prohibition unit, at which was discussed the international aspect of the tangle and the responsibility that devolved on the Treasury Department to work out with the State Department means of safeguarding the country against foreign embarrassment.

On the day previous, the United States steamer President Adams came into New York harbor carrying five gallons of brandy in violation of the Volstead act. The captain claimed that the British Board of Trade officers at Tilbury had refused to give him his clearance papers until he shipped brandy to meet the British law requiring ships to carry at least one gallon of brandy for each 100 British stowage passengers.

President H. M. Robinson of the United American Lines announced on November 9 that the transatlantic steamers Resolute and Reliance of that line would be transferred from American to Panamanian registry to escape the effects of the Daugherty ruling. He said that both steamers had been chartered for winter cruises and that more than fifty passengers, following the publication of the Attorney General's opinion, had cancelled their reservations on the Resolute alone. He continued, "because of the keen competition of cruises arranged for foreign steamers we believe the cruises of the Resolute and Reliance cannot be carried out successfully unless the passengers can be offered the same service and privileges as are offered on foreign ships. Therefore, in view of the large sums involved, and in fairness to our stockholders, we have completed arrangements to transfer the ships to a foreign flag."

International complications ensued, and on September 26, after a two-hour discussion in the Cabinet, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon communicated to the Prohibition Enforcement Division instructions not to go ahead with any general program of search and seizure beyond the internationally recognized three-mile limit; however, where vessels lying further out communicated with the shore by their own boats, or through their own crews, they might be taken, such intercourse being regarded as a landing in violation of the customs regulations. The Prohibition Commissioner was told that proper discretion should be exercised at all times to avoid any action that would bring international complications.

NEW JERSEY'S RATIFICATION.

The 46th State to ratify the Prohibition Amendment (18th) to the Constitution of the United States was New Jersey, which did so on March 10, 1922.

RELIEF SOUGHT BY PHYSICIANS.

The complaint was filed on November 20 in the Federal District Court of Southern New York in the equity test suit brought by Dr. Samuel W. Lambert which challenges the constitutionality of the National Prohibition Act, and the act supplemental thereto, and asks that Edward C. Yellowley, acting Federal Prohibition Director; David H. Blair, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and Col. William Hayward, United States Attorney, be enjoined from interfering with him in prescribing liquor to his patients. The restraining order is asked upon the ground that the quantities needed for the use of any one person in any period of ten days exceed the limits fixed by the Prohibition acts.

PROSECUTIONS IN FEDERAL COURTS.

In the annual report of the Attorney General, made public Dec. 7, 1922, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the divisions having supervision of the prosecution of suits brought by the Government in the various Federal Courts under the National Prohibition Act, said that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, there was "a steady increase in cases coming to the courts, due probably to the increased efficiency of the officers charged with the enforcement of this law."

"The question confronting this department in 1921 relative to the immense storage charges accumulated all over the country by reason of quantities of liquor and vehicles seized and disposed of under the National Prohibition Act has been largely solved by a vigorous campaign on the part of the United States attorneys to libel and otherwise promptly dispose of this contraband material."

"Prosecutions under the National Prohibition Act in the United States District Courts were as follows:

| Fiscal Year 1921-22.         | Civil. | Criminal. |
|------------------------------|--------|-----------|
| Prosecutions commenced ..... | 2,157  | 84,984    |
| Convictions .....            | 22,749 |           |
| Acquittals .....             | 1,195  |           |
| Quashed .....                | 1,250  |           |
| Dismissed .....              | 3,549  |           |
| Terminated .....             | 1,537  |           |
| Pending .....                | 2,694  | 10,472    |

"The aggregate amount in fines and penalties imposed was $4,041,456.03 in civil cases. The aggregate amount in judgments obtained by the United States was $120,255.29. There are 10,472 criminal and 2,694 civil prosecutions pending at the close of the fiscal year."

"The above figures cover only cases arising under the National Prohibition Act. In addition a great many cases have arisen under the internal revenue laws and the customs statutes involving similar violations."

"Since the Eighteenth Amendment of the Constitution and Title II. of the National Prohibition Act became effective Jan. 16, 1920, rum-running vessels of American and foreign registry, carrying liquor from foreign ports to our shores, have swarmed along our seaboard, smuggling liquors into the United States in violation of our laws."

"Eighteen vessels of foreign registry and two of American registry with their cargoes of liquors have been seized."

A decision was handed down by the United States Supreme Court on Jan. 30, 1922, to the effect that the Volstead act does not permit an owner of intoxicating liquors to transport them from a bonded warehouse to residence for beverage purposes. A further decision, handed down May 15, 1922, was to the effect that the constitution of the Volstead Act prohibits the transportation of intoxicating liquors from a foreign country through a port of the United States to another foreign port.

ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAW.

The Prohibition unit under the direction of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue was reorganized during the fiscal year. The number of employees at prohibition increased from 503 to 596, and in the field from 1,818 to 2,881. The total payroll of the unit on June 30, 1922, was $6,045,073, an increase of $2,015,943. During the year a Prohibition patrol service (the "dry navy") was organized, consisting of six boats of the submarine chaser type, assigned at Atlantic ports. Five motor patrol boats, capable of making 33 miles per hour, were placed on the Great Lakes, to check liquor smuggling from Canada.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue reported for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, the following:

DETAIL OF WORK IN 1921.

Federal Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes has issued this official summary covering the work of his bureau for the calendar year 1921:

Approximate cost of operation: Rent, $126,847.05; telephone, $17,409.05; supplies and equipment, $37,253.45; evidence and miscellaneous, $163,467.50; seizure and sale, $51,483.90; salaries, $3,501,209.61; travel, $1,306,443.51; office expenses, $980,129.40; estimated total, $6,274,523.47.

Estimated amount of assessments, involving 40,000 cases; penalties under Section 35, $50,000,000; $1,000 special tax, Section 1,001, Revenue Act, 1918, $500,000; taxes on spirits, wines, etc., $7,000,000; estimated total, $57,500,000.

Approximate amount of collections, $3,000,000.

Estimated seizures: Gallons of distilled spirits and wine, 960,000; estimated value of property seized during the year, not including property levied for payment of taxes, nor distillery apparatus or other property destroyed, $12,007,693.40.

Miscellaneous property was seized as follows: Automobiles, 600; boats, 40; wagons and carriages, 26; horses and mules, 45; aeroplanes, 1; motorcycles, 5; cash, $7,500; tracts of land, 10; stocks of merchandise, 7.

Number of Federal indictments, estimated, 30,000; pleas of guilty, 17,000; number of convictions, 21,000; number of acquittals, 950.

Wholesale drug companies must now have as a minimum a $25,000 drug stock, must be bona fide dealers in sales of liquors must not exceed 10 per cent. of the amount of their gross sales as a drug concern.

Last year's importation was one-half of 1 per cent. of the total consumption of liquor in America the year before Prohibition.

Arrests for drunkenness decreased 60 per cent.

Liquor withdrawals reduced 50 per cent.

Another result: Official chemists report only 2 per cent. of all liquor seized and examined to-day is fit to drink.

Upward of 300 brewers investigated and charged with violations.

Some public officials indicted and some have gone to jail. Others on the way.

In fifty-nine cities, with a population of 30,000 or over, and a combined population of 20,000,000 (including New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia) official and estimated figures show a decrease in arrests for drunkenness from 316,842 in 1917 to 109,768, notwithstanding bad booze, temporary individual hard drinking, and a zeal to "jug" all intoxicated people.

PROHIBITION IN CANADA.

Many popular votes have been taken on the general subject of Prohibition in the Dominion of Canada. To-day, of the nine Provinces of Canada, seven are dry. These are Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island; two, Quebec and British Columbia, sell alcoholic liquors under new conditions indicated by such terms as "Government control," and "Government dispensaries." The Dominion of Newfoundland is also dry.

The annual budget for the Province of Quebec announced by Provincial Treasurer Jacob Nicol on November 15, for the year ending June, 1923, shows that the revenue from fines, duties and permits for the sale of liquor was over $4,000,000. He said the liquor commission had brought order out of chaos. In counties where the law applied it had opened stores, given licenses where deemed necessary, and impressed the general public with its sincerity and ability to carry on and have the law respected. The total surplus of the province above expected revenue amounted to $5,033,419.

Attorney General A. M. Manson reported to the Legislature of British Columbia on November 1 that the cities of the Province will receive for the last fiscal year $1,300,000 as their share of the profit from the sale of liquor by the Province. The report showed that 6,553 prescriptions for liquor were issued in the year as compared with 131,057 the year before the moderation act went into effect, when the Province was dry. The Province will issue no more licenses to exporters of liquor.

New Zealand, after an exciting campaign with "Fussyfoot" Johnson and other imported speakers from the United States and Australia, on the licensing referendum gave a majority in December of 16,138 in favor of continuance of licensing. In 1919 the majority against prohibition was 3,332.

BETTER ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAW.

The American Bar Association at its annual meeting in San Francisco heard, on Aug. 10, 1922, and adopted the report of a special committee charged with considering a better enforcement of the law. The committee was composed of William B. Swaney, Chairman; Marcus Kavanagh, Charles S. Whitman, Wade B. Ellis, and Charles W. Farnham. Their report, in part, follows:

"The first difficulty which confronted us was a discouraging dearth of official information upon the criminal situation in the United States. No other great civilized country is so far behind on this important matter.

"First of all we urge the establishment, under the control of the Department of Justice at Washington, of a Federal Bureau of Records and Statistics to which criminal authorities in the several States must regularly report; that such reports, statistics, records, photographs, fingerprints, etc., shall be immediately available to officers charged with enforcement of the criminal law throughout the country. Without knowledge of the real situation it will be impossible thoroughly to diagnose or properly deal with the problems of crime which confront us.

"The population of Canada is about 9,000,000, that of Cook County, Illinois, about 3,000,000, and that of Chicago, 2,700,000. Notwithstanding this, we find that there were in 1921:

"In Joliet penitentiary, one of the Illinois State prisons, 1,930 prisoners.

"In all Canada's penitentiaries, 1,930.

"In Chicago 4,785 burglaries.

"In Canada 2,270 burglaries.

"In Chicago 2,594 robberies.

"In Canada, robberies, including larceny from the person, 605.

"In Cook County 212 murders.

"In Canada 57 murders.

"It will not do to say that the Canadians are naturally more law-abiding than we, for the United States census of 1911 shows that when persons born in Canada settle in the United States they are even a little less law-abiding than the native white citizens of this country.

"Out of a Canadian born population of 1,196,070 in this country in 1910, 7,956 were in our prisons, and out of the natives of 17 foreign countries living here, Canadians ranked sixth in lawlessness.

"The natives of certain European countries which have the best record for law observance, when settled here, become the most lawless of all.

"As was stated to your committee, crime flourishes because criminals escape punishment, and criminals escape punishment because there are so many avenues of escape open. The prevalence of the abnormal volume of crime in our larger cities is the result of years of mollycoddling and sympathy by misinformed and ill-advised meddlers.

"In Canada the penalties imposed for crime are far more severe than our own. In fact, the theory there seems to involve protection to the public, with only a secondary concern for the criminal.

"The criminal situation in the United States, so far as crimes of violence are concerned, is worse than that in any other civilized country. Here there is less respect for law. While your committee cannot obtain the exact figures from all available sources of information, we estimate that there were more than 9,500 unlawful homicides last year in this country; that in 1920 there occurred not less than 9,000 such homicides, and that in no year during the past ten years did the number fall below 8,500. In other words, during the past ten years, no less than 85,000 of our citizens have perished by poison, by the pistol or the knife, or by some other unlawful and deadly instrument.

"Burglaries have increased in this country during the past ten years 1,200 per cent.

"Crime and lawlessness in the United States have been steadily on the increase and out of proportion to our growth, and there has been a steady and growing disrespect for law. In our opinion this is not a result of the war. We do not find the proportional increase in crime from 1916 to 1922 greater than from 1910 to 1916, and we have not been able to discover that crimes of violence have materially increased in France, England, or Canada during or since the war, although the effects of the war naturally must be more marked in those countries.

"It is our united opinion that the means provided in the United States for coping with crime and criminals are to-day neither adequate nor efficient, for example:

"First, we find that the parole and probation laws, as administered, very generally fail to accomplish the purposes for which the laws were designed and weaken the administration of criminal justice.

We recommend that first offenders, and first offenders only, should be eligible for probation. We recommend that the indeterminate sentence laws should be modified so as to apply to first offenders only, and we believe, too, that neither probation nor parole should be permitted those convicted of homicide, burglary, rape or highway robbery.

"Second, we find that over 90 per cent. of the murders in this country are committed by the use of pistols. We find that the laws prohibiting the carrying of firearms or deadly weapons are ineffective—in fact, that they work to the benefit of the criminal rather than to the law-abiding citizen. The revolver serves no useful purpose in the community to-day. We recommend that the manufacture and sale of pistols, and of cartridges or ammunition designed to be used in them, shall be absolutely prohibited, save as such manufacture shall be necessary for governmental and official use under proper legal regulation and control.

"Third, we find the causes for delay in criminal cases so varied and the conditions so differing, that we hesitate to make specific recommendations. Certainly it is true that the criminals and not the public benefit by these delays. The Constitution provides: 'In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy trial.' As every one familiar with criminal prosecution knows, this is the kind of enjoyment that few charged with crime desire.

"Dilatory motions, such as motions to inspect the Grand Jury minutes, which the trial Judge may take under consideration almost indefinitely; motions for an order dismissing an indictment, from which, if granted, the prosecution in many of our States has no right to appeal; adjournments on account of other engagements of counsel, a privilege greatly abused in some jurisdictions, and many other causes for delay, all accrue to the benefit of the lawbreaker.

"We recommend that the State be given every right to appeal now enjoyed by a defendant—except from a verdict of not guilty, and we recommend that the prosecutor in a criminal trial shall have the right to call the attention of the jury to the fact that the defendant has failed to take the stand or has failed himself to contradict or deny the testimony offered by the prosecution.

"We recommend that the State be given the right to amend the indictment upon proper terms, in matters of form.

"We recommend that there should be but one appeal from a judgment of conviction in the trial court.

"We recommend that there be enacted legislation limiting the time during which Judges or courts may hold under advisement dilatory motions made in criminal trials; that at the expiration of such time, without action, such a motion shall be deemed to be denied.

"Fourth, we find that in some of the States the jury is the final judge both of the law and the facts. We believe that such a condition is absolutely subversive of a government of law and we recommend the repeal of such statutes.

"Fifth, we find in various jurisdictions glaring abuses in the matter of bail, both in the amount imposed and in the sufficiency of security offered.

"Sixth, we find that further legislation should be enacted by the Congress to punish and prevent lynching and mob violence.

"Seventh, we find that more stringent laws limiting and controlling immigration should be enacted and enforced.

"Eighth, we find that the bill now pending in the Congress, increasing the number of United States District Judges and conferring powers upon the Chief Justice and Senior Circuit Judges to have supervision over the work of the courts and see that the dockets are kept clear, should be enacted.

"Ninth, no meritorious case, whether civil or criminal, that is cognizable in the courts of the country, ought to be denied the services of an able, courageous and loyal advocate. And no man or woman, however humble, ought to be able to say in any American community that justice is too expensive for the poor. We therefore urge that in every community the members of this association volunteer to aid, without fee, the worthy poor who are being oppressed, defrauded or otherwise wronged, and who have not the means to employ counsel.

"Tenth, first offenders must be segregated from veteran criminals, for the jails throughout the land to-day are breeding-places for crime, and the young and thoughtless who may often be reclaimed, are taught by professional criminals to scorn the restraints of society; and in this connection we may well consider the extension of psychopathic laboratories established as adjuncts to the criminal courts."

PRISONERS IN PENAL INSTITUTIONS, 1922 AND 1917.

The United States Department of Commerce announces that, according to returns received by the Bureau of the Census, the number of prisoners confined in Federal penitentiaries, State prisons, county jails, State and county chain or road gangs, city police stations, and other penal institutions on July 1, 1922, was 163,889, of which number 5,540 were reported for 3 Federal penitentiaries, 78,673 for 104 State prisons, 44,283 for 2,451 county penal institutions (principally jails), 12,717 for 296 chain or road gangs in certain Southern States, and 21,635 for 1,319 city institutions, while the remaining 1,041 were women committed by the courts to the care of other institutions (24 in number), mainly under the control of religious or charitable organizations.

Similar data were collected for July 1, 1917, but the total for that date does not include all prisoners in chain or road gangs, nor women committed by the courts to the care of institutions under the control of religious or charitable organizations. Excluding these from the figures for 1922, the comparable totals for the two years are: 1922, 151,172; 1917, 140,186.

These figures include prisoners awaiting trial and a few persons held as witnesses, as well as prisoners serving sentence. The returns were obtained in response to a circular of inquiry which the Bureau of the Census mailed to the various institutions, as a preliminary to the complete decennial census of prisoners which will be taken in 1923.

The number of prisoners in Federal penitentiaries increased from 3,018 on July 1, 1917, to 5,540 on July 1, 1922. During the same period the number of inmates of State prisons increased from 71,442 to 78,673, and of county jails, from 41,871 to 44,283, while persons confined in city penal institutions (including police stations) decreased in number from 23,955 to 21,635.

The data as to prisoners in Federal and State penal institutions are presumably complete and accurate for both 1922 and 1917. The combined total of persons in such institutions increased from 74,460 in 1917 to 84,213 in 1922, the rate of increase being 13.1 per cent.

The rate of increase in Federal prisoners was 83.6 per cent.; in State prisoners, 10.1 per cent. The ratio of Federal prisoners per 100,000 population increased from 3 in 1917 to 5.1 in 1922, and the corresponding ratio for State prisoners increased during the same period from 72.4 to 74.5.

No State prison is maintained in Delaware, and for Georgia the State figures, which include prisoners in chain or road gangs, are not comparable with those for other States. Of the remaining 46 States, 23 show increases in the ratio of State prisoners per 100,000 population, and 23 show decreases.

Of the 23 States in which the ratio increased, 19 show relatively low ratios for 1917, the average for the entire group of 23 States being 58.6 per 100,000; while of the 23 States in which the ratio decreased, 13 show relatively high ratios for 1917, the average for the entire group being 92.4 per 100,000. In other words, the ratio decreased in most of the States in which it was relatively high in 1917 and increased in most of the States in which it was relatively low in that year.

For example: Pennsylvania's low ratio of 41.6 in 1917 increased to 56.2 in 1922, while Indiana's high ratio of 118 in 1917 declined to 101.1 in 1922. The increases somewhat more than counterbalanced the decreases, however, and thereby raised the ratio for the United States from 72.4 in 1917 to 74.5 in 1922.

The tendency toward uniformity is further brought out by comparing the highest and lowest State ratios for each of the two years covered by the inquiry. In 1917 the highest three ratios were Nevada, 239.3; Florida, 177.6; Wyoming, 163.4. For 1922, however, the highest three ratios were perceptibly lower, namely: Nevada, 200.2; Wyoming, 165.3; Florida, 139.3. For 1917 the lowest three ratios were South Carolina, 19.2; Maine, 29.4; Nebraska, 29.9.

The lowest three ratios for 1922 are noticeably higher, namely: South Carolina, 29.5; New Hampshire, 34.9; North Dakota, 34.7.

The returns for counties and cities are not strictly comparable for the two years, for the reason that in each case a larger number of institutions is covered for 1922 than for 1917. The county returns covered 3,021 institutions (principally jails) for 1922, as against only 2,578 for 1917; while the city returns relate to 2,709 institutions (principally police stations) for 1922, as against only 2,351 for 1917.

Only a part of the prisoners in county and city institutions are actually serving sentence, the remainder being held in confinement awaiting trial, or, in a few cases, held as witnesses.

The only fair comparison between the county and city figures for the two years is that made with averages based on the total number of institutions for which reports were received (including those reporting no prisoners). For county institutions the average number of prisoners decreased from 16.2 in 1917 to 14.7 in 1922, and for city institutions it fell from 10.1 in the earlier year to 8 in the later.

The number of empty county jails and other county institutions decreased from 623, or 24.2 per cent. of the total for which reports were received in 1917, to 570, or 18.9 per cent. of the total, in 1922. On the other hand, the number of city institutions reporting no prisoners increased from 1,169, or 49.7 per cent. of the total in 1917, to 1,390, or 51.3 per cent. of the total in 1922.

The following tables show the distribution of prisoners by class of institutions and by States for 1922 and 1917:

STATE LAWS RELATIVE TO FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.

THE WORLD ALMANAC presents a compilation of the laws of the States and Territories of the United States relating to the entrance into one of such jurisdictions of a corporation formed under the laws of another State, Territory or foreign country, with conditions precedent to transaction of business, liabilities for violation of requirements, and rate of license and privilege taxes imposed, with fees for the filing of the necessary papers and documents.

The utter dissimilarity of these State and Territory enactments rendered it impossible to present the matter in tabular form; and, in lieu thereof, each one is given in a separate paragraph.

ALABAMA—File with Secretary of State at Montgomery certified copy of articles of incorporation; fee, $10; penalty for failure, $1,000. Penalty $500 for doing business in State before designating places of business in State, and names and addresses of authorized agents, and paying charter fee 25 per cent. of actual capital employed in State up to $100; if not more than $1,000 so employed, 25 per cent. on $100, plus 5 per cent. on balance; if more than $1,000, 25 per cent. on $100, plus 5 per cent. on balance up to $1,000, plus one-tenth of 1 per cent. on excess over $1,000. When this charter fee is paid, file with State Auditor sworn statement setting forth legal name, State where incorporated, authorized capital stock, amount paid in, principal place of business, actual capital employed in State. Non-compliance denies access to courts, estops business, nullifies contracts. Procure from Secretary of State annual permit to do business, State Auditor to counter-sign; fee, $10. President or executive head and secretary of corporation files with a County Judge of Probate in the State statement of corporation's name, where organized, principal place of business in State, capital stock, capital actually employed in State. Judge may summon, and enforce payment of franchise tax as he finds, tax to be paid only in one county, on capital actually employed in State, less total loans in State secured by mortgage, 60 cents on each $1,000 actually so employed, payable to State Tax Commission. Mortgage, accompanied with sworn statement between Nov. 1 and Dec. 15, on blanks supplied by Commission, which may enforce payment of more than offered, if evidence justify. Appeals allowed to Circuit Court.

ALASKA—File with Secretary of Alaska at Juneau copy of articles of incorporation; fee, $25; if articles later be amended or supplemented, file statement thereof; fee, $10. File certificate of appointment of resident agent in Alaska, or revocation thereof; fee, $5; pay to Secretary of Alaska annual license, $15; penalty for failure, $250. Non-payment annual corporation tax for one year is prima facie evidence of insolvency; two years non-payment causes name of corporation to be stricken from Territory records. If re-instatement applied for, all taxes and penalties must be paid, plus $20. Corporation may withdraw from Alaska by paying all sums due; fee for withdrawal certificate, $5. Fee for certificate of dissolution of corporation, $5. Annual report to be filed with Secretary of Alaska; fee, $250. Copy articles of incorporation also to be filed in each district in which business is intended, giving total capital stock, amount paid in in money, amount paid in otherwise and in what; assets, character and cash value must be stated; liabilities, how secured and on what property. Agents must file written consent of responsibility with Secretary of Alaska. Death or removal of agent requires filing substitute designation within 60 days. Penalty for non-filing certificates mentioned is $25 for each day of neglect, voiding all contracts if other party so elects.

ARIZONA—File articles of incorporation with Corporation Commission at Phoenix; publish them six times in some newspaper in each county in which business is to be done, after which file affidavit of such publication with the Commission; license fee to Commission, $15; obtain from Commission license permit, then in writing over sworn statement, attested by Secretary or by resolution of Board of Directors of corporation, appoint resident agent in each county in which business is to be done, agents to be actual, bona-fide residents of their counties for at least three years. Failure denies right to do business; every act by corporation to be void. Change of venue from State to Federal Court of suit instituted by corporation against a citizen of the State compels Corporation Commission to annul corporation's license. Three months' absence of agent from county appointed for, together with failure to appoint substitutes within four months, forfeits corporation's rights by such agent and voids contracts and all acts. Compliance with provisions gives all real and personal property rights enjoyed by citizens under Arizona laws.

ARKANSAS—Statement to be filed before June 1 showing name of corporation, under what laws organized, location of principal office, names and addresses of President, Secretary, Treasurer, members of Board of Directors, date of annual election of officers, amount of authorized capital stock, par value per share, capital stock subscribed, amount issued, amount paid up, market value of shares, nature of business, places of business in State, value of property owned and used in State; where situate; name and location of officers or agents in the State; value and where situate property owned and used outside of State; changes if any in any of these respects since former report. Report to be to State Tax Commission at Little Rock, which determines what proportion of corporation's capital stock is represented in State, Commission to certify to State Auditor, who in turn to State Treasurer, who collects franchise tax one-tenth of 1 per cent. annually on proportion of capital stock represented by property owned and used in State. Corporations with no capital stock or less than $10,000 employed in State pay annually $10. Tax Commission notifies by mail by July 1 amount of tax due. On payment of fees for filing statement first referred to, State Auditor gives certificate of compliance. Taxes due by Aug. 10. Tax-delinquent corporations to pay 25 per cent. additional as penalty. Taxes are first lien on corporation's property. Chartered person on whom legal processes may be served. Fees—For filing copy of articles, $75; license tax, $10 on authorized capital stock up to $10,000, increasing as capitalization increases, to a maximum of $1,000 tax if capital more than $10,000. Corporations for profit but with no capital stock pay annually $10. License tax is lien on property from Jan. 1. On Saturday preceding first Monday of March, non-payment of tax forfeits right to do business, attempt to continue causing fine not less than $250, or not less than 50 days imprisonment, contracts being void if made after that date. Reinstatement allowed on payment of tax for years suspended. Corporation may surrender rights in State by filing request therefor with Corporation Tax Exemption Board, Sacramento. False statements in these connections constitute perjury.

CALIFORNIA—File with Secretary of State at Sacramento copy articles of incorporation, copies of certificates of changes in capital stock or other amendments; affidavit by President or Secretary that no changes are contemplated prior to date business in State is to begin, affidavit to be filed not more than 15 days before; designate any person on whom legal processes may be served. Fees—For filing copy of articles, $75; license tax, $10 on authorized capital stock up to $10,000, increasing as capitalization increases, to a maximum of $1,000 tax if capital more than $10,000. Corporations for profit but with no capital stock pay annually $10. License tax is lien on property from Jan. 1. On Saturday preceding first Monday of March, non-payment of tax forfeits right to do business, attempt to continue causing fine not less than $250, or not less than 50 days imprisonment, contracts being void if made after that date. Reinstatement allowed on payment of tax for years suspended. Corporation may surrender rights in State by filing request therefor with Corporation Tax Exemption Board, Sacramento. False statements in these connections constitute perjury.

COLORADO—File with Secretary of State at Denver certified copy of articles of incorporation and all amendments thereto; fee, $30 for first $50,000, and 30 cents for each additional $1,000; file certified copy of corporation laws of State under which corporation was formed; filing fee, $5. Certificate of business purpose and of agent; fee, $5; affidavit by President and Secretary of capital stock, property and assets employed in Colorado, blank forms prescribed by State, whereupon certificate of authority issues; fee, $5. Total filing fee for corporation of $50,000 or less capital stock, $46. For increases of capital, fee is 30 cents per $1,000 of increase. File certified copies of amendments to articles of incorporation; filing fee, $5 for each amendment, excepting when name is changed, when fee is $25. Annual license tax due by May 1 in advance, $10 on capital employed in Colorado up to $100,000, and 10 cents for each additional $1,000. Penalty is 10 per cent. added for each six months of delinquency. File annual report by Jan. 1 with Secretary of State.

CONNECTICUT—File with Secretary of State at Hartford certified copy of charter or articles of incorporation, with statement, sworn by President, Treasurer and majority of Board of Directors, showing amount of authorized capital stock, amount paid in, and what amount, if any, paid in other than cash and in what. Also in sworn writing appoint Secretary of State attorney upon whom legal processes may be served. In case suit be instituted vs. the corporation, it pays 75 cents for each page of process filed, recoverable if corporation wins suit. Certificate of increase or reduction of capital stock to be filed within 30 days after such action. Annual report to be made by Feb. 15 or Aug. 15 giving name of corporation, post office address of each officer and director, amount of capital stock subscribed not paid for in full, amount due thereon, location of principal office in Connecticut. Each failure to comply involves forfeit of $25. Failure to file annual report for two successive years and pay forfeit therefor is prima facie evidence of loss of corporate rights in State, when corporate existence in State may be terminated by Secretary of State sending registered letter to corporation. Such termination not to affect action in courts necessary to close affairs or preserve rights of those who have dealt with corporation. Fraudulent statements and returns punishable by fine of $1,000. Fees—Filing annual reports, 75 cents each page; minimum, $2; certified copy charter, ditto; filing acceptance of Secretary of State as attorney, $50.

DELAWARE—File certified copy of articles of incorporation with Secretary of State at Dover, with names of agents in the State and sworn statement of assets and liabilities; fee, $10; certificate of filing and copies thereof to be supplied by Secretary of State to agents, such certificates being prima facie evidence of corporation's right to do business in State, corporation to designate which agent may receive service in legal actions, agent to be resident of State. Death or removal of agent demands designation of substitute within 10 days. Violation of foregoing requirements punishable by fine imposed on corporation not less than $200 nor more than $500 for each offense, and on agents not less than $100 or more than $500. Annual reports to be filed by first Tuesday in January showing all facts as to location of agents, capital stock, names and addresses of officers and directors, and date of annual election of officers. Franchise tax is from $10 to $50 up to capital stock of $1,000,000, plus $25 on each additional $1,000,000.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA—No statutory provision regarding foreign corporations as distinct from domestic. They are not required to obtain special license or certificate of authority, "other than the license required of individuals and domestic corporations in certain classes of business." A foreign corporation cannot hold realty in the District, except as an incident of its regular business. Foreign corporation cannot maintain a suit in the District after its charter has been annulled by Governor of State where incorporated. No franchise license tax or fee. No annual reports required.

FLORIDA—File with Secretary of State at Tallahassee sworn copy of articles of incorporation; violation of this requirement punishable, but not affecting title to property held in State by the corporation. Secretary of State issues permit after filing of articles of incorporation, receiving therefor fee of $5. Fee for filing amendment of articles, $2. Court action prior to compliance therewith denied. No permit issued to corporation bearing name so nearly similar to that of one already existing under laws of Florida as to cause confusion.

GEORGIA—File with Comptroller-General annual report, register each agent on forms stipulated by Georgia law, file copy, sworn, of articles of incorporation, certified copy of resolution of Directors authorizing applying for admission. State official may judge as to whether character of business proposed is against interests of Georgia. Annual report to be filed by Nov. 1, showing name, when and where incorporated, and by what authority, amount of capital stock, business of corporation, location of principal office; fee $1 first year, 50 cents annually thereafter. Certificate of authority of Secretary of State is valid for 20 years, subject to meeting annual requirements.

HAWAII—File with Treasurer of Territory at Honolulu certified copy charter or articles of incorporation, names of officers, certified copy of by-laws of corporation, name and business address of some person in Territory on whom legal process may be served; and bond with one or more sureties, approved by Hawaiian Treasurer, not less than $1,000 nor more than 10 per cent. of capital stock. If stock exceed $10,000; in no case bond to exceed $50,000, bond sureties to be answerable for judgment provided. Hawaiian Treasurer may excuse from giving bond if corporation's property in Hawaii seem sufficient to indemnify against all judgments. Breach of proviso entitles Hawaiian Treasurer to protect citizens injured thereby by court action in his own name vs. corporation. Before corporation open offices or do business in Hawaii it must obtain from Treasurer annual license; annual cost, $100. Penalty for failure to comply, 50 per cent. additional. Attempting to do business before compliance with foregoing is misdemeanor, agent being punishable by fine not less than $100 nor more than $500, or by imprisonment not more than six months, or by both fine and imprisonment. Corporation failing to comply is guilty of misdemeanor punishable by fine not less than $100 nor more than $500; is denied benefit of Territory laws, especially of statute of limitations in civil and criminal actions. Corporation operating for profit makes annual statement by July 1 "In such form as Treasurer, approved by Governor, may require," report not to be available for inspection by other than officers of Territory. Refusal to make report enforceable by courts on application by Treasurer of Territory, access to courts being denied so long as default continue. Fees—For filing certificate and bond, 20 cents for each $1,000 of capital stock, $35 minimum; certificate of increase or decrease of stock, ditto, minimum, $25. Annual license tax, $100.

IDAHO—File with County Recorder of county in which principal place of business is to be copy of articles of incorporation certified by Secretary of State of State in which the corporation was organized, copy of articles which have not been filed with the County Recorder then to be filed with Idaho Secretary of State at Boise, certified by the Recorder. Fees—recording articles, 20 cents per folio of 100 words each; issuing certificate of incorporation, $3; filing with Secretary of State, from $10 to $100 up to $1,000,000 capital stock, $150 if more than $1,000,000; filing designation of agent, $2. Annual license tax, $25 to $325 up to $2,000,000 capital stock; $375 if more than $2,000,000. Statutory agent must be designated on whom legal processes may be served, agent to be substituted within 60 days if former agent die or be removed. Non-compliance denies access to courts, or holding real estate. Officers or agents attempting to make contracts while the corporation is in default in designating substitute for deceased or removed agent are jointly liable as principal contractors and statute of limitations shall run in favor of the corporation only while the person upon whom service may be made is within the State. Compliance with requirements gives foreign corporation same rights, including that of eminent domain, as are enjoyed by domestic corporations.

ILLINOIS—Certificate of authority to be procured from Secretary of State before transacting business in State by filing with Secretary of State at Springfield sworn copy of articles of incorporation verified by proper officer in State or county in which organized; and statement by corporation's President and Secretary or other officer setting forth corporation's name, location of principal place of business, and of proposed principal place of business in Illinois, names of States in which it has been authorized to do business, character of business, itemized estimate of amount of tangible property to be employed in Illinois in first year after date on which Illinois license is issued, an estimate of amount of capital to be employed in Illinois and that to be employed elsewhere during such year, value of patent rights, licenses, franchises, trade-marks, secret processes, copyrights and good will, contracts, book accounts and notes, machinery and realty, stock in other corporations and securities, furniture and fixtures cash in bank, kinds and amount of other personality; estimate of annual business to be transacted in Illinois; name and address of some person in Illinois as resident agent on whom legal processes may be served; names and addresses of officers and directors; and "such other information touching property and business of corporation as Secretary of State may require." Such statement filed, Secretary of State issues certificate showing name of corporation and State where incorporated, business to be authorized in Illinois, amount of authorized capital stock, amount authorized to be used in business in Illinois, amount of fee paid, address of corporation in Illinois and of agent for service of legal process, and duration for which license is issued. Amendments to articles of incorporation must be filed with Illinois Secretary of State. Foreign corporation cannot encumber property to injury of any citizen of Illinois who is a creditor. Failure to appoint legal service agent gives creditor right to file service on Illinois Secretary of State. Neglect of compliance with foregoing requirements denies access to courts. Fees and franchise taxes—Secretary of State collects initial fee of one-twentieth of 1 per cent. on amount of authorized capital stock, minimum being $20, and like sum for subsequent increase. Annual franchise tax 5 cents on each $100 of proportion of capital stock authorized by Illinois Secretary of State to be used in Illinois.

INDIANA—Apply to Secretary of State in statement, sworn by President and Secretary, of purpose in Indiana, proportion of business (based on business of previous year) to be done in Indiana; amount paid in on capital stock, what property and assets and value thereof to be used in Indiana, if any of capital stock has not been paid in, what disposition is to be made thereof; names of President, Secretary and Directors and their residences, address of principal offices in Indiana, and name and address of some agent or attorney in fact on whom legal service may be had; and file a copy of articles of incorporation. Secretary of State may demand additional information. Application must contain agreement not to procure change of venue, except by regular appeal, to any other court of any case begun by or against the corporation in Indiana, and not to begin suit in any United States Court against any citizen or resident of Indiana. Secretary of State issues certificate, prior to which no business may be done. Pay to Secretary of State (on proportion of capital stock used in Indiana) license tax of $25 on the first $10,000, and 1 per cent. additional on all in excess thereof; $1 for filing annual report. Failure to comply with foregoing causes fine of $1,000 to $10,000. No corporation will be admitted with name similar to that of one already admitted. Agents of corporation procure from corporation and file "with Circuit Court of county where they propose doing business," duly sworn copy of resolution of Board of Directors authorizing corporation to be sued as hereinbefore. Annual report by Jan. 31, sworn, giving name, capital stock, proportion of capital stock used in Indiana, value of property and assets issued in Indiana, character of business done, location of principal office, name of agent or attorney in fact and names of President, Secretary and Directors and residences.

IOWA—File with Secretary of State at Des Moines certified copy of articles of incorporation attained by Secretary of State in which corporation was organized, accompanied by resolution of Board of Directors authorizing filing thereof, and designating some agent or officer in the State on whom service in legal processes may be made. With such attested copy must go application for permit to do business in Iowa, with pledge to obey provisions of Iowa's "Foreign Corporation" laws, and setting forth total authorized capital, total paid-up capital, total value of all assets, total value of money and other property corporation has in use in Iowa, total value of money and other property corporation purposes to use in Iowa during ensuing year, with certified copy of resolution of Board of Directors giving name and address of authorized agent. Secretary of State may investigate and fix fee to be paid. Permit finally issued costs corporation 10 cents per 100 words for filing aforementioned, plus $25 if capital stock be not more than $10,000, plus $1 additional for each $1,000 if in excess of $10,000. Whenever capital or property used in Iowa be increased, corporation must file with Secretary of State statement thereof, or may do so when making annual report to Iowa Secretary of State in July, fee for filing being $1 for each $1,000 of increase, with recording fee of 10 cents per 100 words. Violation of these requirements involves fine against corporation of $100, and $100 fine or 30 days imprisonment for officers or agents of corporation.

KANSAS—File application with State Charter Board at Topeka on blanks supplied by board, setting forth certified copy of articles of incorporation, principal place of business, principal place of business in Kansas, nature of business to be done, name and address of each officer, trustee and director, detailed statement of assets and liabilities sworn to by President and Secretary of corporation, and written consent of corporation

"Irrevocable" that actions vs. it in any County in Kansas may be initiated by service on Kansas Secretary of State and remain binding. Charter Board may investigate as to solvency, under "duces tecum" summoning powers, and judge as to certainty that business proposed in Kansas is agreeable with Kansas laws. Application when granted by board to be filed with Secretary of State, fee to be $25. Annual report to be filed with Secretary of State by March 31 showing as of Dec. 31 preceding "in such form as Secretary of State may prescribe," name and laws under which organized, location principal office, names and addresses of President, Secretary, Treasurer, and members of Board of Directors, date of annual election of officers, amount of authorized capital stock with par value, amount of stock issued, amount of paid-up stock issued, nature of business in which corporation engages within and without Kansas, name and address of officers in Kansas and of agents, value of property owned and used in Kansas, where situate, and value and location of property owned and used outside of State, assets and liabilities, changes if any, since last annual report. On filing of such sworn report, Secretary of State determines what proportion of capital stock is represented by business of corporation in Kansas and collects as franchise tax annually minimum of $10 up to $10,000, capital stock, graduated up to $2,500 for more than $5,000,000 capital stock. Payment entitles to certificate of compliance. Penalty for failure to file report, $100, plus $5 a day so long as default continues. Charter to do business in Kansas may be forfeited for such failure. Court actions instituted by summons directed vs. Secretary of State acting as competent to accept service for the corporation. Secretary of State has power to investigate and determine alleged under-statement by corporation of its proportion of capital to be employed in Kansas, any other fact essential. Usual liability for false sworn statements, written or verbal, as perjurious.

KENTUCKY—File with Secretary of State at Frankfort statement on blanks supplied by that official showing principal place of business in State, agent thereat on whom service may be had; fee for filing, $1. This entitles to certificate of authority to enter State. Attempt to transact business prior to issuance of such certificate is misdemeanor, corporation "and any agent or employee of such corporation" shall be severally guilty of misdemeanor and fined not less than $100 nor more than $1,000 for each offense. Annual license tax, 50 cents on each $1,000 of property and business transacted in State, proportioned to whole capital stock, payable to State Tax Commission. Annual report to be made to commission by Feb. 1, showing name, State or Government under which organized, name and addresses of officers, and agent or attorney in fact on whom legal service may be had, amount of authorized capital stock, value and location of property owned and used in State, value and location of property owned and used outside of State, proportion of business transacted in and outside of State. Penalty for false statement as for perjury. Corporation wilfully violating or neglecting provisions hereinbefore mentioned fined $50 to $1,000, suspended from right to do business.

LOUISIANA—File with Secretary of State at Baton Rouge names and addresses of agents on whom legal processes may be served, and with Clerk of District Court in each parish in which corporation has established place of business, agent to be bona fide resident of parish to which he is designated. Also file with Secretary of State certified copy of articles of incorporation. Foregoing done, certificate is given by Secretary of State to do business. Failure involves misdemeanor, punishable by fine not less than $25 nor more than $500. Agent failing to pay fine is imprisoned not less than three days nor more than four months. Service in legal actions may be had on corporation's designated legal service agents "wherever found;" if agent be not found, then on any regularly employed person or agent in Florida. Change of venue in State courts at instance of corporation entitles opposite party thereto, if plaintiff, to have cause tried in parish of corporation agent's residence or in parish in which cause arose. Annual report to be filed with Secretary of State between Jan. 1 and April 1 of receipts and disbursements of preceding year, salaries and wages paid, interest on bonds and other debts, dividends on stock, taxes of all kinds, materials and supplies used during preceding year, other expenses and number of officers and employees all kinds. Recording fees—negligible.

MAINE—File with Secretary of State at Augusta certified appointment of agent on whom legal service may be made, giving him power of attorney to act for corporation, his authority to continue so long as liability remains outstanding vs. corporation in the State, or until revoked in similar writing designating some other to act in same capacity. Also file with Secretary of State copy of articles of incorporation, certified under seal of State or county where incorporated, with copy of by-laws and name of corporation, location of principal place of business, names and addresses of officers and directors, date of annual meeting for election of officers, amount of capital stock authorized and issued, number and par value of shares, amount paid thereon to its treasurer. False statements subject to same laws as perjury as obtain in Maine. Secretary of State is judge as to admissibility of corporation to do business in Maine as to whether permitted by laws of this State. Increases of capital stock must be certified to Secretary of State within 30 days thereafter. Annual license fee payable by March 1 to State Treasurer, $10. Changes made at annual meeting of corporation to be certified within three months thereof to Secretary of State. If no changes, fact must be certified to. Penalty for omission of foregoing is forfeit to State of not less than $5 nor more than $10 per day for 15 days after expiration of time for certifying, and not less than $10 nor more than $200 for each day thereafter during which omission continues.

MARYLAND—File with State Tax Commission at Baltimore certified copy of articles of incorporation, and certificate annually before March 1 giving names and addresses of officers and directors, principal places of business in Maryland and in State in which it was incorporated, amount of capital stock authorized and issued, number and par value of shares and amount paid thereon, names and addresses of shareholders and shares held by each, amount of capital employed in Maryland, name and address of resident agent for legal service, authority of agent to continue so long as liability remains outstanding or until substitute be named. Original papers to be accompanied by fee of $25 to State Tax Commission which issues certificate of permission. Failure to comply involves misdemeanor and fine of $200, non-access to courts, although not affecting contracts made with non-complying corporation. Annual franchise tax due before April 1, $35 for every $50,000 capital employed in Maryland, up to $500,000; one-fourth of 1 per cent. in addition up to $5,000,000; $30 on each $1,000,000 above $5,000,000. Corporation's property is subject to taxation as other property under State laws. If business be abandoned in Maryland by corporation, suits may be filed against agent last designated for legal service.

MASSACHUSETTS—File power of attorney with Department of Corporations and Taxation at Boston appointing Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation attorney for service of legal processes, certificate of its charter, certified copy of its by-laws, blanks to be supplied by Commissioner; fee $50. Annual tax is 2½ per cent. of that portion earned in State, and $5 per $1,000 on value of that portion of capital stock employed in State. Annual report to be by April 10 to set forth all facts necessary to determination of foregoing with whatever Federal tax returns have been made. Penalty for failure to report is doubling of amounts due, plus $5 for each day of default. False returns involve penalty of not less than $500 nor more than $5,000. Examination of books and records by State officers to ascertain facts renders corporation liable to forfeit a sum "not greater than 2 per cent. upon par value of its capital stock as court may deem just."

MICHIGAN—File with the Secretary of State at Lansing certified copy of articles of incorporation and evidence that agent has been appointed to accept legal service, obtaining certificate of authority to do business; file also statement showing location of principal officers and place of business, location and principal place of business in Michigan and name and address of agent named, total value of property owned and used in corporation's business, stating separately tangible property, cash, credits, franchises, patents, trade-marks formulas and good will; also value and location of property owned and used in Michigan, and total business if any transacted in preceding year in Michigan, and other facts as Secretary of State may require. Secretary of State then determines amount of franchise fee to be paid, on basis of 35 mills on each dollar of paid-up capital and surplus, not however, to exceed $10,000, minimum being $50. Annual report to be made to Secretary of State in duplicate in July or August as of June 30 of state of business, showing amount of capital stock authorized, and that subscribed in cash and in property, value of property owned, names and addresses of officers and directors, credits owing to corporation; penalty for non-report, $100 plus $5 a day during default.

MINNESOTA—File with Secretary of State sworn copy of articles of incorporation, name of principal or agent in Minnesota, a statement, sworn in, of proportion of capital stock represented by property in Minnesota; and pay $50 on first $50,000 plus $5 for each additional $10,000, on proportion of capital stock used in Minnesota. Secretary of State then issues certificate of authority, stating in certificate amount of capital stock and proportion used in Minnesota, certificate being valid for 30 years, subject to annual requirements being met. Failure to comply causes fine of $1,000. Authority of agent in Minnesota may be revoked by simple sworn writing, but revocation affects no action already pending.

MISSISSIPPI—File with Secretary of State copy of article of incorporation, certified by President and Secretary, pay tax and procure certificate of authority. There is no annual franchise or license tax, and no report is required. Fee for filing articles, $20 for $5,000 capital stock, up to $500 as stock increases. Fine of $100 for violating requirements.

MISSOURI—File with the Secretary of State at Jefferson City sworn copy of articles of incorporation under corporate seal, with statement showing nature of business proposed to be done in Missouri, location of principal office in Missouri, name and address of agent on whom legal service may be had, with affidavit of amount of capital stock represented by property located in Missouri; fee for permit to do business, $10. Permit may be for 50 years. If name of corporation be similar to one incorporated under Missouri laws, Secretary of State may refuse to issue permit. Penalty for violation, fine corporation $1,000 or more. Penalty for false affidavit punishable as felony by imprisonment for not more than five years in penitentiary or in county jail not more than one year. Corporation must pay employees semi-monthly discharged employees not paid wages under Missouri law remain on pay-roll until paid. Annual report required by July 1 showing Secretary of State amount of capital stock authorized, paid up, par value, actual value per share, cash value of all property in Missouri, indebtedness secured and unsecured on June 1 next preceding, surplus and undivided profits, and "clear market value of capital stock and surplus, including all property and assets." Secretary of State may call for special reports at any time as to financial status, refusal to comply being misdemeanor. Fee for registering with Secretary of State, $5 if registration is before July 1. Delay causes increase gradually to $35 if so late as December. Registration and compliance with all provisions entitles to certificate from Secretary of State. Rights are forfeited by cancellation by Secretary of State when provisions are not complied with. Refusal to submit record on demand involves usual punishment for recalcitrancy. Franchise tax due annually, one-twentieth of 1 per cent. of par value of proportion of stock and surplus employed in Missouri, interpreted under statute as proportion that all outstanding capital stock and surplus bears to all property and assets located within Missouri. State Tax Commission determines proportion to be taxed, but appeal is allowed to courts.

MONTANA—File with Secretary of State at Helena certified copy of articles of incorporation, attested by majority of Board of Directors, verified by President and Secretary of corporation under oath, showing name, location of principal office within and without State, names and residences of officers, trustees and directors, amount of capital stock, amount of capital invested in State, and consent to be sued in State courts, designating some person on whom service may be had. If articles be amended, file within 30 days after such action attested copy of amendments; ditto if capital stock be increased. Agent for legal service must file written sworn consent. Contracts are void prior to compliance with foregoing. By June 1 file annual report showing gross amount of business in Montana in preceding year, amount of money expended in Montana, net profits or Montana business. Every agent of corporation is guilty of misdemeanor if corporation has not complied with foregoing. Annual license fee, 1 per cent. on net income derived in preceding year from business in Montana, including interest on bonds, notes and other interest-bearing obligations, dividends on capital stock, and net earnings

NEBRASKA—File with the Secretary of State at Lincoln and with Register of Deeds in County of principal place of business in Nebraska certified statement signed by officers of corporation showing principal place of business in State, name and address of agent on whom legal service may be had; appoint such agent; penalty for failure, $1,000 fine against corporation, and $1,000 fine or imprisonment in county jail not more than three months, or both, against every person representing corporation as responsible agent. Fee for filing such appointment of agent, $50. Annual sworn report by July 1 to be filed with Secretary of State, showing name, location of principal place of business, names and addresses of officers and directors, date of annual election of officers, amount of authorized capital stock, par value per share, amount subscribed, issued and paid up, nature of business, changes, if any, since last annual report. Franchise tax, $5 on $1,000 paid-up capital stock, graduated upwards to $2,000 for $25,000,000 capital stock, $2,500 if above that amount of stock. Penalty for violation, additional 15 per cent. of amount due. Default in provisions hereinbefore set forth annuls corporate rights in State. Withdrawal from State permissible by paying all due to State and filing notice with Secretary of State.

NEVADA—Within 30 days after election of officers or change of location of principal place of business in Nevada or change of agent in State file information thereof with Secretary of State at Carson City under corporate seal, giving names and addresses of officers and directors, date of annual election, character of business, location of principal office in Nevada, and names and address of agent on whom legal process may be served, such information aforesaid to be filed when original copy of articles of incorporation is filed. Penalty for failure, $100, and non-access to courts. Corporate rights in Nevada may be surrendered by payment of all due, and filing with Secretary of State statement thereof. One year is allowed after withdrawal to permit fulfillment of all litigation which may have been begun against corporation. Foreign corporations doing mining businesses in Nevada may consolidate under rather liberal provisions. But failure to provide protection to creditors against removal of agent from jurisdiction involves penalty of $50 a day during default of compliance.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Precedent to beginning business in the State, the corporation must appoint in sworn writing the Secretary of State at Concord its lawful attorney to accept legal service, said authority to continue so long as any liability remain against corporation in State. Penalty for non-compliance, $500 fine, validity of no contract with such corporation to be affected. Statement of articles of incorporation, amount of capital stock, nominal value, etc., to be filed with Secretary of State. False statements punishable by fine of $5,000, or imprisonment five years, or both. False maker of statement liable personally to any stockholder or person damaged by false statement. Annual sworn report by March 1 to Secretary of State on blanks supplied by him, fee $5, showing amount of authorized capital stock, par value of that issued, indebtedness to and from corporation, value of all property and assets as on preceding Jan. 1. False statement in connection therewith involves penalties as hereinbefore stated. Fees for filing, $10 up to $10,000 capital stock, graduated upwards to $250 for $1,000,000, plus $10 for each added $1,000 above $1,000,000. Reinstatement by payment of money due to State, with 10 per cent. interest.

NEW JERSEY—File with Commonwealth Department of State at Trenton certified copy of articles of incorporation, statement of authorized capital stock, amount issued, character of business, designate agent on whom legal process may be served, agent to be actual resident of State, ascertain legal situations making it competent for service to be on Secretary of State at Trenton as attorney for corporation, compliance with foregoing entitling to certificate of authority to do business in New Jersey. File also list of officers and directors annually. Fees—For filing copy of articles, $10; officers, $1. Penalty for transacting business before certificate is issued by Secretary of State, $200 fine for each offense. Annual report to be filed with Secretary of State within 30 days after annual election of officers and directors, giving name, location of registered place of business in New Jersey, character of business, amount of authorized capital stock, and issued and outstanding, names and addresses of officers and directors, when term of each expires, and date of next annual election. Death or removal of authorized agent in State to be followed by substitute appointment, pending which legal service may be on Secretary of State as attorney for corporation. Failure to make annual report involves $200 forfeit to State. No franchise tax required.

NEW MEXICO—File with the State Corporation Commission at Santa Fe annual report by Sept. 1 sworn by proper accounting officer giving name, location of principal office and of principal office in New Mexico, with name of agent on whom process may be served, names and addresses of officers and directors, date of annual election, amounts of authorized, subscribed and issued capital stock and that paid up, nature of business both within and without State, value of property owned and used within and without State, total gross receipts derived from its property within and without State during last preceding fiscal year, changes if any since last annual report. Therefrom commission determines proportion of capital stock used in State, on which annual franchise tax is collected at rate of $10 for each $100,000 or fraction. Penalty for failure to pay is 5 per cent. added to amount due. Failure to report as required involves penalty of $1,000 fine. Franchise tax due by Nov. 30. Notice to appointed agent that money is due State is sufficient to bind corporation. Legal process against corporation is competent by leaving copy thereof at designated place of business of corporation or agent thereof, or served in person on any officer or agent. Application for permission is to Secretary of State, with copy of articles of incorporation. Fee—$25, $5 for filing and $4.50 for certifying thereto.

NEW YORK—Procure from Secretary of State at Albany certificate of compliance with requirements, filing with that official sworn corporate statement under corporate seal showing nature of business, place in State where principal business is to be, designating some person on whom legal service may be had, his consent in sworn writing also to be filed. Proof to be submitted that statement filed is under authority of corporation, together with copy of articles of incorporation sworn to by an official, attested by a clerk of a court of record in State wherein corporation was formed. Fee for filing, $52. Papers then go to State Tax Commission. License tax is one-eighth of 1 per cent. on capital stock employed in New York, minimum being $10, payable to State Tax Commission at Albany, which has power to demand books and records. Corporation cannot maintain court action after 13 months from beginning business in New York, if license tax shall not have been paid.

NORTH CAROLINA—File with Secretary of State at Raleigh attested copy of articles of incorporation under corporate seal, and statement of amount of capital stock authorized and issued, location of principal place of business in State, the name of agent in charge, character of business and names and post office addresses of officers and directors; and pay annually to Secretary of State 20 cents for each $1,000 of authorized capital stock, minimum payment being $25, maximum, $250. Filing fee, $5. Corporation may withdraw from State by filing with Secretary of State attested statement thereof and paying fee of $5. Failure to comply with foregoing provisions forfeits to State $500 recoverable by Attorney General of State.

NORTH DAKOTA—File with Secretary of State at Bismarck attested appointment by corporation of that State officer and his successors as attorney on whom legal service may be had, to remain irrevocable so long as any liability stand against corporation in State. Failure to comply renders each officer, agent and stockholder personally liable for all obligations against and contracts with corporation. Fee for filing foregoing, $25. An annual report must be filed with Secretary of State by Aug. 1, showing location of principal place of business in State, names and addresses of officers, when terms of service expire, kind of business transacted, failure to file such report being prima facie evidence in State that corporation has gone out of business. Secretary of State notifies corporation of default, and unless within 60 days report be filed, corporation's rights in State are cancelled. Blanks therefor to be procured from Secretary of State. Corporation having complied with all provisions, for fee of $5, certificate of authority is issued, and annual franchise tax imposed, 50 cents for each $1,000 of capital actually invested in transaction of business in State, exemption of $10,000 capital being allowed.

OHIO—File with Secretary of State on blanks prescribed by him, statement by an officer, or managing agent in Ohio, showing number and par value of capital shares, name and location of corporation's offices in Ohio, value of property owned and used in Ohio, proportion of capital stock represented by property owned and used in Ohio, from which Secretary of State determines what proportion shall be taxed in Ohio, franchise tax being one-tenth of 1 per cent. upon such proportion; upon payment of which Secretary of State issues certificate of authority to do business. Increases of capital stock to be reported to same official within 30 days, tax being one-tenth of 1 per cent. on proportional share of increase. Certificate of authority then issues. Failure to comply denies access to courts and involves liability of especial attachment under Ohio laws as foreign corporation, forfeit of $1,000 per month during further default, and cancellation of business rights. ## LAW OF CONTRACTS.

(General Provisions of the Statutes.)

A Contract is an agreement of two or more parties by which reciprocal rights and obligations are created. One party acquires a right, enforceable at law, to some act or forbearance from the other, who is under a corresponding obligation to thus act or forbear.

Generally speaking, all contracts which are made between two competent parties, for a proper consideration, without fraud and for a lawful purpose, are enforceable at law.

To the creation of a valid contract there must be:

1. Precise agreement. The offer of one party must be met by an acceptance by the other, according to the terms offered.

2. There must be a consideration. Something of value must either be received by one party or given up by the other.

3. The parties must have capacity to contract. The contracts of insane persons are not binding upon them. Married women are now generally permitted to contract as though single, and bind their separate property. The contracts of an infant are generally not binding upon him unless ratified after attaining his majority. The contracts of an infant for "necessaries" may be enforced against him to the extent of the reasonable value of the goods furnished. It is incumbent upon one seeking to hold an infant to show that the goods furnished were in fact necessary.

4. The party's consent must not be the result of fraud or imposition, or it may be avoided by the party imposed upon.

5. The purpose of the parties must be lawful. Agreements to defraud others, to violate statutes, or whose aim is against public policy, such as to create monopolies or for the corrupt procurement of legislative or official action, are void, and cannot be enforced by any party thereto.

Contracts in general are equally valid whether made orally or in writing, with the exception of certain classes of contracts, which in most of the States are required to be attested by a note or memorandum in writing, signed by the party or his agent sought to be held liable. Some of the provisions which are adopted from the old English Statute of Frauds vary in some States, but the following contracts very generally are required to be attested by some writing:

Contracts by their terms not to be performed within a year from the making thereof.

A promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person.

Contracts made in consideration of marriage, except mutual promises to marry.

Promises of an executor or administrator to pay debts of deceased out of his own property.

Contracts for the creation of any interest or estate in land, with the exception of leases for a short term, generally one year.

Contracts for the sale of goods above a certain value, unless a portion of the price is paid or part of the goods delivered. The required value of the goods sold varies in different States from $30 to $200. In a number of the States no such provision exists.

In many of the States, declarations or conveyances of trust estates.

In many States, representations as to the character, credit, or responsibility of another person.

Partial performance of the contract is generally held to dispense with the necessity for a writing.

If the damages liable to result from the breaking of a contract are uncertain the parties may agree upon a sum to which either may be entitled as compensation for a breach, which will be upheld by the courts, but if the sum so fixed is not designed as a fair compensation to the party injured, but as a penalty to be inflicted, it will be disregarded.

A party is generally excused for the failure to perform what he has agreed only by the act of God or the public enemy, except in cases involving a personal element in the work to be performed, such as the rendition of services, when the death or sickness of the party contracting to perform them is a valid excuse.

PROMISSORY NOTES AND CHECKS.

(A Brief Summary of Laws Relating Thereto.)

Negotiable instruments, the common forms of which are promissory notes, checks, or other bills of exchange, while having the same general requisites as other contracts, have certain distinct features. The purpose of the law is to facilitate as much as possible their free passing from hand to hand like currency. The assignment of an ordinary contract leaves the assignee in no different position for enforcing his rights than that of his assignor, but one who takes a negotiable instrument from a prior holder, without knowledge of any defenses to it, before its maturity, and gives value for it, holds it free of any defenses which might have been set up against his predecessors, except those defects that were inherent in the instrument itself.

To be negotiable an instrument must be in writing and signed by the maker (of a note) or drawer (of a bill or check).

It must contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money.

Must be payable on demand, or at a fixed future time.

Must be payable to order or to bearer.

In a bill of exchange (check) the party directed to pay must be reasonably certain.

Every negotiable instrument is presumed to have been issued for a valuable consideration, and want of consideration in the creation of the instrument is not a defence against a bona fide holder.

An instrument is negotiated, that is completely transferred, so as to vest title in the purchaser, if payable to bearer, or indorsed simply with the name of the last holder, by mere delivery, if payable to order by the indorsement of the party to whom it is payable and delivery.

One who transfers an instrument by indorsement warrants to every subsequent holder that the instrument is genuine, that he has title to it, and that if not paid by the party primarily liable at maturity, he will pay it upon receiving due notice of non-payment.

To hold an indorser liable the holder upon its non-payment at maturity must give prompt notice of such non-payment to the indorser and that the holder looks to the indorser for payment. Such notice should be sent within twenty-four hours.

When an indorser is thus compelled to pay he may hold prior parties through whom he received the instrument liable to him by sending them prompt notice of non-payment upon receiving such notice from the holder.

One who transfers a negotiable instrument by delivery, without indorsing it, simply warrants that the instrument is genuine, that he has title to it, and knows of no defence to it, but does not agree to pay it if unpaid at maturity.

The maker of a note is liable to pay it if unpaid at maturity without any notice from the holder or indorser.

Notice to one of several partners is sufficient notice to all.

When a check is certified by a bank the bank becomes primarily liable to pay it without notice of its non-payment, and when the holder of a check thus obtains its certification by the bank, the drawer of the check and previous indorsers are released from liability, and the holder looks to the bank for payment.

A bona fide holder of a negotiable instrument, that is, a party who takes an instrument regular on its face, before its maturity, pays value for it and has no knowledge of any defenses to it, is entitled to hold the party primarily liable responsible for its payment, despite any defenses he may have against the party to whom he gave it, except such as rendered the instrument void in its conception. Thus, if the maker of a note received no value for it or was induced to issue it through fraud or imposition, they do not defeat the right of a bona fide holder to compel its payment from him.

The following States have enacted a similar Negotiable Instrument Law: Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Dist. of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, Washington, and Wisconsin—and the same general rules apply in all the States.

ARREST IN CIVIL ACTION.

WHILE imprisonment for debt as it formerly existed in English and American law, by which a debtor might be arrested and imprisoned for mere inability to pay his creditor, no longer exists in the United States, the statutes of the majority of the States provide for the arrest of a defendant in a civil action under varying conditions. A large number of States determine the right of arrest by the character of the claim on which suit is brought, allowing in it actions for fraud or the injuries known in the law as "torts," such as an injury to the person or property, conversion or embezzlement, libel, slander, or the like.

In the following States no civil arrest is allowed: Arizona, District of Columbia, Florida, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Tennessee, and Texas.

In the following States the right to arrest depends upon the nature of claim in suit: In actions for fraud or torts, Connecticut; for fraud, libel, slander, or violent injury to person or property, Delaware; for fraud only, Iowa and Kansas; only after verdict of jury, finding malice, fraud, or wilful deceit, Colorado; for torts, breach of promise to marry, misconduct or embezzlement in office or professional capacity, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and New York (also for fine or penalty or to recover property concealed from Sheriff).

In the following States arrest is only allowed against a defendant about to remove from State or about to conceal, transfer, or remove his property to avoid plaintiff's claim or defraud creditors, irrespective of the nature of the claim: Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, New Hampshire, Utah, Virginia. In New Hampshire tax collector may also arrest person for non-payment of poll tax if not sufficient property upon which to make distress.

In the following States arrest is allowed in contract actions where the defendant is about to depart from the State or conceal or remove his property, and also in actions for fraud or torts of various kinds, though the provisions are not identical: Arkansas (fraud only), California, Idaho, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia (fraud only), Wisconsin.

In Georgia arrest only allowed against attorneys, Sheriffs or other officers of the court for failure to pay over money collected, and in certain circumstances against defendant who conceals property from Sheriff. The drawer of a check on which, on presentation to the bank, payment is refused is guilty of a misdemeanor.

In Wyoming (only after judgment) in actions for fraud, or money lost at gambling, or where defendant has removed or concealed property to avoid judgment.

In Rhode Island, allowed in all actions except to recover debt or taxes.

In Ohio, when an affidavit is filed showing: About to remove property to defraud creditors, convert property into money for same purpose, conceal property or rights in action fraudulently, assigned or disposed of property with intent to defraud creditors. Fraudulently contracted the debt, or incurred the obligation. Money or property sought to be recovered was in gambling on a bet or wager.

In New York a judgment ceases after 10 years to be a lien on real estate.

PENALTIES FOR USURY.

Penalties for usury differ in various States. California, first offense fine of $25 to $300, or prison, not over 6 months or both; subsequent offenses fine $100 to $500, or prison 6 months to year. Colorado, fine not over $300, and prison not over 6 months. Maine, Massachusetts (except on loans of less than $1,000), have no provisions on the subject. Loss of principal and interest is the penalty in Arkansas and New York. Loss of principal in Delaware and in Oregon entire debt.

Loss of interest in Alabama, Arizona, District of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Carolina (double amount if paid), North Dakota (double amount if paid), Porto Rico, South Carolina, Virginia, Washington (double amount if paid), Wisconsin, and Wyoming. In Alaska, Montana, Oklahoma, Texas, Vermont, double the amount of interest collected. In Minnesota usurious contract is void. Borrower may lose both principal and interest. In South Dakota taking over 10% on real estate loan punishable by fine of not over $500.

Loss of excess of interest in Connecticut, Georgia, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Nevada, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Vermont and West Virginia. Loss of principal and interest in Rhode Island, not over 30% of amount exceeding $50 or more than 5% per month for first six months of amount less than $50. In New Mexico, fine and forfeiture of double amount collected.

By the Federal act No. 103, the period of military service is to be excluded from the computation of time limited for the bringing of an action by or against persons in the service.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEEDS.

AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT is the act of declaring the execution of an instrument before an officer authorized to certify to such declaration. The officer certifies to the fact of such declaration, and to his knowledge of the person so declaring. Conveyances or deeds of land to be entitled to be recorded must first be acknowledged before a proper officer. Most of the States have forms of acknowledgments, which should be followed.

Acknowledgments may be taken in general by Notaries Public, Justices of the Peace, Judges or Clerks of Courts of the higher grades, Registers, Masters in Chancery, Court Commissioners, Town Clerks, Mayors and Clerks of incorporated cities, within their respective jurisdictions.

The requisites to a valid deed are the same in general as other contracts, but the appointment of an attorney to execute a deed for another person must in general be executed with the same formalities requisite to the deed itself.

THE BANKRUPTCY LAW.

(Extracts from the United States Bankruptcy Act of July 1, 1898, as amended by subsequent acts.)

SEC. 4. WHO MAY BECOME BANKRUPTS.—(a) Any person, except a municipal, railroad, insurance or banking corporation, shall be entitled to the benefits of this act as a voluntary bankrupt.

(b) Any natural person, except a wage-earner or a person engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil, any unincorporated company, and any moneyed, business, or commercial corporation, except a municipal, railroad, insurance, or banking corporation, owing debts to the amount of one thousand dollars or over, may be adjudged an involuntary bankrupt upon default or an impartial trial, and shall be subject to the provisions and entitled to the benefits of this act.

OFFICERS AND STOCKHOLDERS OF CORPORATIONS ARE LIABLE.

The bankruptcy of a corporation shall not release its officers, directors, or stockholders, as such, from any liability under the laws of a State or Territory or of the United States. (30 Stat. 547. 32 Stat. 797. 56 Stat. 839.)

SEC. 7. DUTIES OF BANKRUPTS.—(a) The bankrupt shall (1) attend the first meeting of his creditors, if directed by the court or a Judge thereof to do so, and the hearing upon his application for a discharge, if filed; (2) comply with all lawful orders of the court; (3) examine the correctness of all proofs of claims filed against his estate; (4) execute and deliver such papers as shall be ordered by the court; (5) execute to his trustee transfers of all his property in foreign countries; (6) immediately inform his trustee of any attempt, by his creditors or other persons, to evade the provisions of this act, coming to his knowledge; (7) in case of any person having to his knowledge proved a false claim against his estate, disclose that fact immediately to his trustee; (8) prepare, make oath to, and file in court within ten days, unless further time is granted, after the adjudication if a involuntary bankrupt, and with the petition if a voluntary bankrupt, a schedule of his property, showing the amount and kind of property, the location thereof, its money value, in detail, and a list of his creditors, showing their residences, if known (if unknown that fact to be stated), the amount due each of them, the consideration thereof, the security held by them, if any, and a claim for such exemptions as he may be entitled to, all in triplicate, one copy of each for the clerk, one for the referee, and one for the trustee; and (9) when present at the first meeting of his creditors, and at such other times as the court shall order, submit to an examination concerning the conducting of his business, the cause of his bankruptcy, his dealings with his creditors and other persons, the amount, kind, and whereabouts of his property, and, in addition, all matters which may affect the administration and settlement of his estate; but no testimony given by him shall be offered in evidence against him in any criminal proceedings.

WHEN BANKRUPT MAY COLLECT ACTUAL TRAVELLING EXPENSES.

Provided, however, that he shall not be required to attend a meeting of his creditors, or at or for an examination at a place more than one hundred and fifty miles distant from his home or principal place of business, or to examine claims except when presented to him, unless ordered by the court, or a Judge thereof, for cause shown, and the bankrupt shall be paid his actual expenses from the estate when examined or required to attend at any place other than the city, town, or village of his residence.

ALLOWABLE DEBTS.

SEC. 63. DEBTS WHICH MAY BE PROVED.—(a) Debts of the bankrupt may be proved and allowed against his estate which are (1) a fixed liability as evidenced by a judgment or an instrument in writing, absolutely owing at the time of the filing of the petition against him, whether then payable or not, with any interest thereon which would have been recoverable at that date or with a rebate of interest upon such as were not then payable and did not bear interest; (2) due as costs taxable against an involuntary bankrupt who was at the time of the filing of the petition against him plaintiff in a cause of action which would pass to the trustee and which the trustee declines to prosecute after notice; (3) founded upon a claim for taxable costs incurred in good faith by a creditor before the filing of the petition in an action to recover a provable debt; (4) founded upon an open account, or upon a contract express or implied; and (5) founded upon provable debts reduced to judgments after the filing of the petition and before the consideration of the bankrupt's application for a discharge, less costs incurred and interest accrued after the filing of the petition and up to the time of the entry of such judgments.

(b) Unliquidated claims against the bankrupt may, pursuant to applications to the court, be liquidated in such manner as it shall direct, and may thereafter be proved and allowed against his estate.

DEBTS NOT AFFECTED BY A DISCHARGE IN BANKRUPTCY.

(Amendment approved by the President and in effect January 7, 1922.)

A discharge in bankruptcy shall release a bankrupt from all of his provable debts, except such as (first) are due as a tax levied by the United States, the State, county, district, or municipality in which he resides; (second) are liabilities for obtaining property by false pretenses or false representation, or for willful and malicious injuries to the person or property of another, or for alimony due or to become due, or for maintenance or support due or to become due, or for seduction of an unmarried female, or for breach of promise of marriage accompanied by seduction, or for criminal conversation; (third) have not been duly scheduled in time for proof and allowance, with the name of the creditor, if known to the bankrupt, unless such creditor had notice or actual knowledge of the proceedings in bankruptcy; or (fourth) were created by his fraud, embezzlement, misappropriation, or defalcation while acting as an officer or in any fiduciary capacity; or (fifth) are for wages due to workmen, clerks, travelling or city salesmen, or servants, which have been earned within three months before the date of commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy; or (sixth) are due for moneys of an employee received or retained by his employer to secure the faithful performance by such employee of the terms of a contract of employment.

WILLS.

A WILL OR TESTAMENT is a final disposition of a person's property, to take effect after his death. A codicil is an addition or alteration in such disposition. All persons are competent to make a will except idiots, persons of unsound mind, and infants. In many States a will of an unmarried woman is deemed revoked by her subsequent marriage. A nuncupative or unwritten will is one made orally by a soldier in active service, or by a mariner while at sea.

In most of the States a will must be in writing, signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence, and by his direction, and attested by witnesses, who must subscribe their names thereto in the presence of the testator. The form of wording a will is immaterial as long as its intent is clear. Age at which persons may make wills is in most of the States 21 years. Males and females are competent to make wills at 18 years in the following States: California, Connecticut, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah and the Hawaiian Islands; and in the following States only females at 18 years: Colorado, District of Columbia, Illinois, Maryland, Missouri, Washington, Wisconsin.

In the following States persons of 18 years may dispose of personal property only: Alabama, Arkansas, Missouri, Oregon, Rhode Island, Virginia, West Virginia. In Georgia any one over 14 years and in Louisiana any one over 16 years, is competent to make a will. In Colorado, persons of 17 years, and in New York males of 18 and females of 16 years may dispose of personality. Witnesses—Most of the States require two witnesses, except in Connecticut (3), Maine (3), Massachusetts (3), New Hampshire (3), South Carolina (3), Vermont (3).

ADMINISTRATION OF DECEASED PERSONS' ESTATES.

The following is a synopsis of the laws of the various States affecting the administration of the estate of a deceased person:

1. Who to Administer.—(a) If the deceased leaves a will, the duty of administration falls upon the executor. If no executor is named, or in the event of the death or refusal of the executor to act, the Court will grant administration under the will to some suitable person, generally selected from those most largely interested under the provisions of the will, such as the residuary legatees, if any. (b) If the deceased died intestate, letters of administration are granted to the following persons in practically all the States:

First—To the surviving husband or widow.
Second—To one or more of the next of kin entitled to share in the estate.

Third—If none of the above consent to act, to one of the creditors of the estate, except in localities where there is provided by law a Public Administrator, who is preferred to creditors.

In practically all the States an administrator is required to give bond for the faithful performance of his duties in double the value of the estate to be administered.

In most of the States, if so provided by the will, no bond is required of an executor, except that in some States an executor is required to give a bond to cover the probable amount of the debts of the estate, and in practically all the States, in the discretion of the Court, for cause shown, an executor may be required to give a bond.

2. Claims of Creditors.—The procedure in the several States in presenting creditors' claims against the estate varies very considerably. In the majority of the States the executor or administrator is required promptly to give public notice to creditors to present their claims to him, and the creditors are required so to present their claims supported by an affidavit that the same are justly due and owing from the estate, above any offsets or counter claims, within a period limited generally to six months or a year. The law of each State should be consulted for more specific details. Most of the States direct a final closing of the estate by the executor or administrator within a year or eighteen months after his appointment, though the time limit may be extended by the Probate Court if conditions require it.

3. The following table contains an analysis of the laws of the several States, covering:

(1) The inheritance or succession tax upon property received either by intestate laws, last will, or by gift or transfer, designed to take effect at death, excepting legacies for religious, charitable or educational purposes, which are tax exempt in most of the States. In the great majority of the States no distinction as to tax is made between real estate and personal property.

(2) The various classes of estate obligations given priority over other claims in case of the insolvency of the estate.

NOTE—Tax when used below means Inheritance Tax, and Obligations means Preferred Obligations.

ALABAMA—Tax—None. Obligations—1, Funeral expenses; 2, administration expenses; 3, expenses of last sickness; 4, taxes; 5, wages of servants or employees.

DISTRIBUTION OF INTESTATE'S PERSONAL ESTATE.

THE following is a synopsis of the laws of the various States providing for the distribution of the personal estate of a deceased after the payment of funeral expenses and other debts where there is no will:

In many of the States the widow and children are entitled to receive a small portion of the estate, generally varying from $100 to $500, before the claims of creditors are paid. Aside from such exempt portion of the estate, the property to be distributed to widow or relatives is that remaining after all creditors' claims have been satisfied.

The following is the plan of distribution of a male's property. The same rules apply to a female's estate, except in some States, where the rights of a husband in the estate of his deceased wife differ.

I. In all States where the deceased leaves a child or children, or descendants of any deceased child, and no widow, the children or descendants take the entire estate, to the exclusion of all other relatives. The children take equal shares, and in most States the descendants of a deceased child together take the share of their parent, except where the descendants are all in equal degree to the deceased (all grandchildren, no children surviving), when they share equally and do not take their proportionate share of their parent's interest.

No statement is given in this synopsis of the law of Louisiana, which, being founded on the provisions of the French code and Roman law instead of the English common law, which is the underlying principle in the other States, differs in many respects from the principles followed in the other States, especially on the question of the rights of a husband and wife in each other's property and in the property acquired by the husband and wife during their married life. The provisions of the law of Indiana are also not included, for the reason that for an accurate statement of its provisions a reading of the entire statute is necessary, together with the decisions of the Indiana courts construing its provisions, which would occupy too much space for a statement here.

II. (a) If deceased leaves a widow, and no children or descendants, the widow takes all. This is the rule in Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Kansas, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Jersey, New Mexico, Ohio, Oregon, Tennessee, Texas, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

(b) In the following States the widow takes one-half, the residue being taken by the other relatives in the manner and proportion in which they take the entire estate when the deceased leaves neither widow nor descendants (given below): Arkansas, California, Delaware, District of Columbia, Idaho, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Texas, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin. In Delaware the widow takes all up to $3,000 and one-half after that. If no kin, widow takes all.

(c) In Massachusetts, North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Utah the widow takes the entire estate up to $5,000 and one-half of the residue.

(d) In Connecticut the widow takes the entire estate up to $2,000 and one-half of the residue.

(e) In New York, if there be a father or mother of deceased surviving, the widow takes one-half; if there be no father or mother, but a brother or sister, nephew or niece surviving, the widow takes $2,000 and one-half residue; if there be no parent, brother, sister, nephew or niece, the widow takes

all. The residue after the widow's share passes in each case in accordance with the provisions applying where no widow or issue survive.

(f) In New Hampshire the widow takes $1,500, and, if the estate exceeds $3,000, one-half of the residue.

(g) In Wyoming the widow takes the entire estate up to $20,000 and three-fourths of the residue (if brother, sister or parent survive, otherwise all to widow).

(h) In Michigan the widow takes the entire estate up to $3,000 and one-half of the residue (if brother, sister or parent survive, otherwise all to widow).

(i) In Vermont the widow takes entire estate if not exceeding $2,500; if more than $2,500, widow takes that sum and one-half of residue.

III. (a) When the deceased leaves a widow and children, or descendants, the widow takes one-third and the children share equally in the residue in the following States: Arizona, Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Illinois, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio (one-half if less than $400), Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Vermont, Virginia and West Virginia.

(b) In the following States, if there be but one child, the widow takes one-half and the child one-half; if two or more children of their descendants, the widow takes one-third, as above, and the children or their descendants the residue: California, Florida, Idaho, Michigan, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Utah.

(c) In the following States the widow takes one-half and the children, or descendants, the residue: Colorado, Kansas, Kentucky, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming.

(d) In the following States the widow takes the same share as each of the children: Mississippi, Missouri, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

(e) In North Carolina, if there are less than three children, the widow takes one-third and the children the residue; if there are three or more children, the widow takes the same share as each of the children.

(f) In Alabama, if there is but one child, the widow takes one-half and the child one-half; if there are more than one child and less than five children, the widow takes the same share as each of the children; if there are five or more children, the widow takes one-fifth and the children or their descendants share equally in the residue.

(g) In Georgia, if there are less than five children, the widow takes the same share as each of the children; if there are five or more children, the widow takes one-fifth and the children or their descendants share equally in the residue.

(h) In Nebraska if widow is not the parent of all the children of the deceased and there be more than one child, widow takes one-fourth and children the residue. If widow is parent of all children of the deceased, she takes one-half if there be but one child and the child the residue; if there be more than one child the widow takes one-third and the children the residue.

(i) In New Mexico, the widow takes one-half of the estate acquired during marriage, otherwise than by gift (by purchase, for example) and the children or their descendants share equally in the residue; the widow also takes one-fourth of the estate acquired before marriage, or by gift or legacy during marriage, the children or their descendants taking the residue.

IV. (a) When the deceased leaves no widow, children or descendants, the parents take the entire estate in equal shares in the following States: Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

In all of the States just mentioned, except Alabama, Arizona, Maine, and Texas, if one parent is dead, the surviving parent takes the entire estate, to the exclusion of brothers and sisters. In Alabama, Arizona, Maine, and Texas the surviving parent takes one-half and the brothers and sisters, or their descendants, take the residue.

If all of them, if both parents are dead, the brothers and sisters and their descendants take the entire estate.

(b) In the following States the father, if living, takes the entire estate; if the father is dead, then to the mother and brothers and sisters, or their descendants equally; and if both parents are dead, then to the brothers and sisters, or their descendants: Florida, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia.

(c) In the following States the father, if living, takes the entire estate; if the father is dead, then to the mother, and if both parents are dead, then to the brothers and sisters of their descendants: Arkansas, District of Columbia and North Dakota.

(d) In the following States the parents, if living, and the brothers and sisters, or their descendants, take the entire estate, sharing equally: Georgia, Illinois, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey and South Carolina.

(e) In Delaware, Ohio and Maryland (where the property did not descend to intestate from either parent), the brothers and sisters, or their descendants, take the entire estate in preference to the parents, who only inherit if there are no brothers or sisters or lawful issue of any deceased brothers or sisters.

DISTRIBUTION OF FEMALE'S ESTATE.

In the following States, if the deceased was a married woman, the rights of her surviving husband in her personal estate differ from the rights of a widow in the estate of her deceased husband as shown in the above synopsis.

(a) In Delaware, District of Columbia, North Carolina, Rhode Island, and Virginia the husband takes the entire personal estate, whether there is any issue of the marriage or not.

(b) In New York, the husband takes the same distributing share as a widow would take.

(c) In Florida, Georgia, and Pennsylvania, if there are no children or descendants, the husband takes the entire estate; if there are children, the husband takes the same share as each child.

(d) In Ohio the husband takes the entire estate if there are no children or descendants; if there are children or descendants, they take the entire estate.

(e) In Alabama the husband takes one-half of the estate, the children, or descendants, taking the residue.

(f) In North Carolina, where surviving husband is not also the father of all the children of decedent, if there be one child the husband takes one-half and the child one-half; if there be more than one child, husband takes child's share.

CRIMES AND PENALTIES.

WHILE the penalties for homicide are not precisely uniform throughout the various States of the Union, except for the continuance or the abolishment of capital punishment, they are similar. With regard to other serious crimes, likewise, differences are more seeming than real. Felonies, such as manslaughter, arson, burglary, robbery and larceny, are in some States subdivided into degrees, first, second, third and even fourth; while in others there is a single general classification. Where there is no subdivision into degrees, however, the modifying of penalties by reason of attending circumstances results in the same effect as though there were degrees.

CRIMES AGAINST THE UNITED STATES.

Treason—Whoever, owing allegiance to the United States, levies war against them, or adheres to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort, is guilty of treason. The penalty upon conviction is imprisonment for not less than 5 years, fine of not less than $10,000, or death. Misprision of treason consists in general of having knowledge of, concealing and not disclosing the treason of others. The penalty is imprisonment for not more than 7 years, and fine of not more than $1,000; or both fine and imprisonment. Rebellion or insurrection is the inciting, setting on foot, assisting or engaging in armed resistance to the execution of the laws by two or more. The penalty on conviction is imprisonment for not more than 10 years, fine of not more than $10,000, or both. Offenses against the mails fall into two general classes; one, the misuse of the mails for immoral or fraudulent purposes, the other, robbing the mails; penalties vary with the nature of the particular offense.

CRIMES AGAINST THE STATES, PROVIDED FOR IN THE VARIOUS STATE PENAL CODES

Bank Hold-Up—Kan., 10 to 50 yrs.; No. Dak., 30 yrs. or less.

Murder in the First Degree may be generally defined to be the unlawful, intentional and premeditated killing of a human being, or such a killing resulting from the commission or attempt to commit one of the graver crimes, such as arson, burglary, rape or robbery.

Murder in the Second Degree is such a killing without premeditation, or resulting from the attempt to commit some lesser crime.

The penalty for murder in the first degree by the Federal Statutes is death by hanging. Hanging is also the penalty in Arizona, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Missouri, New Mexico, Hawaii and the District of Columbia. Death by hanging or life imprisonment in Alabama, California, Colorado, Idaho, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Montana, New Hampshire, Oregon, West Virginia and Wyoming. Alaska and Porto Rico. In Illinois, hanging or imprisonment not less than 14 years to life. In Texas, hanging, or any term of imprisonment not less than 5 years. Death by electricity in Arkansas, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Vermont. Death by electricity or life imprisonment in Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, Oklahoma and South Carolina. Life imprisonment in Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, South Dakota and Wisconsin. In the State of Utah, the convicted person may choose between hanging or shooting. In Tennessee, the jury may fix the term of imprisonment. In the State of Washington, the jury may, by special verdict, find for the death penalty. In New Jersey and Oregon, the penalty is death, unless jury recommends life imprisonment; in Nevada, lethal gas.

Murder in the second degree is punished in the Federal Constitution by imprisonment for not less than 10 years to life. The same penalty, not less than 10 years up to life is imposed in the States of Arizona, Idaho, Iowa, Nebraska, Nevada, Rhode Island, Utah. Not less than 10 (the statutes in mentioning life imprisonment) is the penalty in Alabama, California, Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Washington and Porto Rico. Life imprisonment is the penalty in Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Oregon, Vermont. The statutes of Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, South Carolina and Texas have no minimum penalty is from 5 to 21 years; Maryland, 5 to 18; Michigan and New Hampshire, any term of years to life; no minimum term mentioned. New Jersey, not over 30; New Mexico, 3 or more; New York, not less than 20 up to life; North Carolina, 2 to 30; North Dakota, 10 to 30; Pennsylvania, not over 20; Tennessee, 10 to 20; Virginia and West Virginia, 5 to 18; Wisconsin, 14 to 25; Wyoming, not less than 20 up to life; Alaska, not less than 15; Hawaii, 20 up to life; District of Columbia, not less than 20 up to life.

In Colorado the death sentence is not imposed where the conviction is had on circumstantial evidence, nor on one under 18 years of age. In Delaware the jury may recommend commutation of the death sentence to imprisonment for life. In Delaware killing by husband of man found in adultery with wife is a misdemeanor, not a felony.

Manslaughter may be defined as a killing either unintentionally resulting from the careless or unlawful doing of some otherwise lawful act or from the commission of some unlawful act of comparatively trivial character or intentionally in the heat of passion and without premeditation.

Penalties for manslaughter vary, scarcely any two States fixing precisely the same. Many of the States do not subdivide into first and second. Where there is but the single heading the penalties are as follows: California (not over 10), Connecticut (not over 10 years and fine of $1,000), Delaware (1-10 and $500 to $5,000), Florida (not over 20 or $5,000), Idaho (not over 10), Illinois (any term up to life fixed by the Division of Pardons and Paroles), Indiana (2-21), Iowa (not over 5 and $1,000), Louisiana (not over 20 and $2,000), Maine (not over 20 and $1,000, or both), Maryland (not over 10 or $500), Massachusetts (not over 20), Michigan (15 or not over $1,000), Mississippi (not over 20 and $500), Montana (not over 10), Nebraska (1-10), Nevada (not over 10), New Jersey (not over 10), New Mexico (1-10), North Carolina (4 months to 20 years), Ohio (1-20), Oregon (1-15 and $5,000), Rhode Island (not over 20), South Carolina (2-30), Texas (2-5), Vermont (not less than 1 up to life or $1,000), Virginia (1-15), Washington (not over 20 and fine), Wyoming (1-20), Alaska (1-15), District of Columbia (not over 15, or $1,000, or both). Where two degrees are specified the penalty for manslaughter in the first is: Alabama (1-10), Arizona (1-30), Arkansas (2-7), Colorado (1-30), Georgia (1-20), Kansas (5-21), Kentucky (2-21), Minnesota (5-20), Missouri (not less than 5), New Hampshire (not over 30), New York (not over 20), North Dakota (5-15), Oklahoma (not less than 4), Pennsylvania (not over 12 and $1,000), South Dakota (not less than 4), Tennessee (2-10), Utah (1-10), West Virginia (1-5), Wisconsin (5-10), Hawaii (10-20), Porto Rico (not over 10). And for second degree: In Alabama (not over 1 and $500), Georgia (1-3), Kansas (3-5), Kentucky (1-6), Minnesota (1-15), Missouri (3-5), New Hampshire (not over 10 or $1,000, or both), New York (not over 15 or $1,000, or both), North Dakota (1-15), Oklahoma (2-4), Pennsylvania (not over 2 and $1,000), South Dakota (2-4), Tennessee (1-15), Utah (not over 1), West Virginia (court fixes penalty), Wisconsin (4-7), Hawaii (5-10), Porto Rico (not over 10).

Assault with Intent to Kill—Under Federal Statutes, assault with intent to kill or to commit a rape is punishable by imprisonment for not more than 20 years, while assault with intent to commit a felony other than murder or rape is punishable by not more than 5 years' imprisonment and a fine of not over $3,000. In Iowa, assault with intent to kill is punishable by 10 years' imprisonment; not over 10 in Kansas, Massachusetts, Missouri, New York and Oklahoma; from 1 to 10 in Porto Rico; 1 to 14, California, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Nevada, Wyoming; 1-20, Maine, Rhode Island and Utah; Alabama (2-20), Arizona (5 up to life), Arkansas (1-21), Connecticut (10-30), Delaware (not over 3), Florida (not over 20), Georgia and Maryland (2-10), Indiana (2-14 and $2,000), Kentucky (1-5), Louisiana (not over 2 and $1,000), Michigan (any term to life or $3,000), Minnesota (5-10 and not over $100), Mississippi (not over 5 or $1,000), Montana (5-10), Nebraska and Texas (2-15), New Hampshire (not over 20), New Jersey (not over 7 or $200, or both), New Mexico (1 to 25 years or $1,000), North Carolina (fine or imprisonment, or both), Ohio and Iowa (fine or imprisonment, or both), Alaska (1-15), Pennsylvania (not over 7 and $1,000), South Dakota (not over 5), Tennessee (not less than 5), West Virginia (2-10), Wisconsin (1-5 or $1,000), Hawaii (not over 5 and a fine), District of Columbia (not over 15). In Texas, an assault with a dagger incurs a double penalty. In Iowa, assault with intent to commit a rape (not more than 20).

Rape—In Federal Courts, rape is punishable with death by hanging. While many States have death as the extreme penalty, in few is it the same one. Arkansas and North Carolina (death by electricity), Alabama, Delaware, Kentucky, and Louisiana (hanging), Florida and Mississippi (hanging or life imprisonment), Georgia (hanging or 1-20), Missouri (hanging or not less than 5), Oklahoma (electrical execution or not less than 15), South Carolina (electrical execution or 5-40). Tennessee (electrical execution or not less than 10 to life), Texas (hanging or not less than 5 to life), Virginia (electrical execution or 5-20), West Virginia (hanging or 7-20). District of Columbia (hanging or 5-30). Many of the States do not inflict the death penalty. Arizona (5 to life), California (not over 50), Colorado (3 to life), Connecticut (not over 20), Idaho (not less than 5 to life), Illinois (1-life), Indiana (2-21), Iowa (any term to life), Kansas (5-21), Maine (any term of years), Maryland (hanging or 18 months-21 years), Massachusetts and Michigan (any term to life), Minnesota (7-30), Montana (not less than 5), Nebraska (3-20), Nevada (not less than 2 up to life), New Hampshire (not over 30), New Jersey (not over 15, or $5,000, or both), New Mexico (5-20), New York (10-20), North Dakota (not less than 1), Ohio and Oregon (3-20) Pennsylvania (not over 15 and $1,000), Rhode Island (not less than 10 up to life), South Dakota (not less than 10), Utah and Washington and Porto Rico (not less than 5), Vermont (not over 20 or $2,000, or both), Wisconsin (1-30), Wyoming (not less than 1 up to life), Alaska (3-20), Hawaii (up to life and $1,000). The rape of a daughter, sister or female under 12 is punishable in Alaska by life imprisonment, in Indiana by 20 years, in Iowa by life imprisonment. In Nevada rape accompanied with extreme violence may be punished by death or imprisonment not less than 20 years in jury's discretion.

Arson—where classified in degrees—though the number and exact definitions of degrees vary greatly—is in general classified with reference to two conditions, first, the character of the building burned, whether a dwelling house or structure likely to contain a human being; and, second, whether the crime is committed by day or night. Thus the most serious offense is the burning of an inhabited dwelling by night, and the least serious the burning of an uninhabited structure by day. Often intermediate degrees are recognized, such as burning a dwelling by day or an uninhabited building by night. The Federal Statutes for arson in the first degree impose a penalty of not more than 20 years, and for the second degree, not more than 20 years and a fine of not more than $5,000. Some States punish arson in the first degree with death. These are: Alabama (hanging or not less than 10), Delaware (hanging), Louisiana (hanging or 1 to 10), Maryland (hanging or not over 20), Mississippi (hanging or life imprisonment), North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia (death by electricity), Vermont (any term to 30 years or death by electricity), Hawaii (hanging or life imprisonment). The imprisonment which may be imposed for arson in the first degree takes a wide range—New York (not over 40), Iowa (30), New Hampshire (not over 30), Oklahoma (10-30), Florida and Michigan (any term up to life), Georgia (1 to life), Idaho (2 to life), Illinois (1-20), Indiana (2-21), Kansas (10-21), Kentucky (5-12), Maine (3-20), Minnesota and North Dakota (not less than 10), Nebraska (1-20), New Jersey (not over 15 or $2,000, or both), New Mexico (2-20), Ohio (not over 20), Oregon, West Virginia and Alaska (10-20), Texas (5-20), Utah (2-15), Wisconsin (3-14), Wyoming (1-21), South Dakota and Porto Rico (not less than 10), Arizona and California (not less than 2), Arkansas (2-10), Colorado and District of Columbia (1-10), Connecticut (not over 10), Missouri, Montana and Washington (not less than 5). The penalties for arson in the second degree are as varied as those for the first. In the Federal Courts, not more than 20 and $5,000. California (1-25), Colorado (not over 2 and $1,000), Delaware (not over 15 or $5,000), Iowa (10-20), Kansas (7-10), Louisiana (1-20), Maine (any term of years), Maryland (2-20), Minnesota (7-15), New Hampshire (not over 20), New Mexico (1-15), New York (not over 25), North Dakota (7-10) Oregon (5-15), Pennsylvania (not over 10 and $2,000), South Dakota (7-10), Tennessee (2-21), Vermont (not over 10 or $1,000) Virginia (5-18), Washington (not over 10 or $5,000), Alaska (5-15), Hawaii (life or any number of years), Alabama and Oklahoma (2-10), Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Utah and Porto Rico (1-10), Arkansas (6 months and fine), Massachusetts and Mississippi (not over 10), Missouri (not less than 5), Nevada (1-3 and fine), South Carolina (in discretion of the court), Wisconsin (3-10).

Burglary—The classification of burglary or house-breaking depends on substantially the same elements as those of arson; namely, the building entered, whether a dwelling or other building, and whether the offense was committed by day or night. Burglary in the first degree is punished in North Carolina by death by electricity; Virginia (electricity or 5-18), Delaware (hanging or not over 14), Florida and Iowa (any term up to life), Maine (any term of years), Massachusetts (life imprisonment or not less than 10), Ohio (life or 5-30), Rhode Island and South Carolina (not less than 5 up to life), Alabama, Georgia and Illinois (1-20), Arkansas, California, Idaho, Montana, Alaska and Porto Rico (1-15), Connecticut, Michigan and Hawaii (not over 20), Indiana (10-20), Kansas (10-20), Mississippi (7-15), Nevada and Wyoming (1-14), New Hampshire (not over 30), New Mexico (3-12), Oklahoma (7-20), Oregon, Tennessee and Wisconsin (5-15), Pennsylvania (not over 10 and $10,000), Texas (2-12), Utah (25-40), Vermont (not over 15 or $1,000), District of Columbia (not over 15), West Virginia (2-15), Minnesota, New York, North Dakota, South Dakota (not less than 10), Missouri and Washington (not less than 5), Arkansas (3-7), Colorado and Nebraska (1-10), Kentucky (2-10), Maryland (3-10). Burglary by means of dynamite or other explosives is punished in Colorado by imprisonment from 25 to 40 years; in Wisconsin (10-40), and in Wyoming (not over 20). Quite a number of States have no heading of second degree burglary. These are Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Nebraska, New Jersey, Rhode Island, South Carolina, West Virginia, and Wyoming, also the District of Columbia. The penalties where it is specified do not show as much variance as in the first degree. Connecticut, Florida, Iowa, Massachusetts (not over 20), Delaware, Georgia and Utah (1-20), Minnesota, Mississippi, New York, North Carolina and Hawaii (not over 10), Maine (1-10), Arizona, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada and New Hampshire (not over 5), Texas (not less than 5), North Dakota and New Mexico (1-5), Oregon, South Dakota, Tennessee and Virginia (3-10), Indiana (2-14), Kansas (5-10), Missouri (not less than 2), Ohio (1-15), Oklahoma (2-7), Pennsylvania (not over 10 and $500), Vermont (not over 10 or $1,000), Washington (not over 15), Wisconsin (3-8), Alaska (2-5), Porto Rico (not over 2).

Robbery may be generally defined as the theft or appropriation from the person or immediate presence of the victim accomplished by force or fear. Where degrees of robbery are recognized the distinction is generally determined by whether the thief be armed or unarmed, though some States also distinguish the second from the first degree, where the theft is accomplished by means of threats of future rather than immediate injury. In the following synopsis, degrees are not considered. Federal Statutes fix the penalty for robbery at not more than 15 years. Alabama punishes robbery by death (hanging or not less than 10), Virginia (electrical execution or 5-18), Massachusetts, Michigan and Hawaii (any number of years to life), Maine (any term of years), Idaho, Rhode Island and Texas (5 to life), Oregon and Utah (3 to life), Illinois (1 to life), Oklahoma (not less than 10), New York and South Dakota (10-20), Kansas (10-21), Arizona, Nevada and Washington (not less than 5), North Carolina (5-60), Minnesota (5-20), Tennessee (5-15), Indiana (5-14 and $1,000), West Virginia (5-10), Arkansas (3-21), Nebraska, New Mexico and Wisconsin (3-15), Colorado (3-14), Maryland (3-10), Kentucky and South Carolina (2-10), Georgia and Iowa (2-20), Montana and Porto Rico (1-20), Ohio and Alaska (1-15), Wyoming (1-14), North Dakota (1-10), California (not less than 1), New Hampshire (not over 30), Vermont (not over 20 and $1,000), Florida (not over 20), New Jersey (not over 15 or $1,000, or both), Louisiana (not over 14), Delaware (not over 12), Connecticut (not over 7), Pennsylvania (not over 5 and $1,000), District of Columbia (6 months to 15 years). In Nevada train robbery and in Texas robbery by means of deadly weapons may be punished with death. Train robberies in Territories are punishable by imprisonment not more than 20 years and a fine of not more than $5,000.

Grand Larceny is simply theft of property above a fixed value, generally $25 to $50—more States also classify as grand larceny theft of property from the person of the victim, irrespective of value, though, of course, accomplished without the force or fear which constitutes the crime of robbery. In the Federal Courts, grand larceny is punishable by not more than 10 years' imprisonment and a fine of not more than $10,000. Wisconsin (1-25), Alabama and Georgia (1-20), Maryland (1-15), Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Montana and Nevada (1-14), New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Virginia, Alaska, Porto Rico and District of Columbia (1-10), Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia (2-10), Nebraska and Ohio (1-7), Arkansas, Kentucky, Maine and North Dakota (1-5), Hawaii (not over 20), Washington (not over 15), Louisiana, New York, North Carolina and Wyoming (not over 10), Kansas and Missouri (not over 7), New Jersey (not over 7 or $2,000, or both), Connecticut, Iowa, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Oklahoma and South Dakota (not over 5), Florida and Rhode Island (not over 5 or $1,000), Michigan (not over 5 or $5,000), Pennsylvania (3 and $500), Delaware (not over 3), South Carolina (3 months to 10 years). Special penalties are imposed in certain States for horse and cattle stealing. In Calif., Mont.

and N. Mex., taking horses, cattle, etc., is grand larceny, irrespective of value; in Arkansas for stealing horse or mule (1-15); in Missouri and New Hampshire, larceny of horse or cattle (not over 7); in Texas horse theft (5-10); in Georgia there are various grades of larceny of horses, cattle, etc. In Connecticut the punishment for larceny of over $2,000 (not over 20). In North Carolina habitual offenders receive longer terms.

Forgery in general means the false making, imitating or counterfeiting or alteration of a genuine signature or written instrument. There are numerous Federal Statutes defining and imposing penalties for alteration of public records and documents. These do not come within the purview of this synopsis, being no one general classification. Counterfeiting is punished by imprisonment of not more than 15 years and a fine of not more than $5,000. There is some uniformity but not a great deal in the various State penalties for forgery. North Dakota (not less than 10), North Carolina (4 months to 10 years), Oklahoma (7-20), Kentucky (5-15), Tennessee (3-15), Arkansas (2-21), Oregon and Alaska (2-20), Mississippi and New Mexico (2-15), Indiana (2-14 or $1,000), Alabama, Georgia and West Virginia (2-10), Texas (2-7), Nebraska, Ohio and Utah (1-20), Montana (1-15), Nevada and Wyoming (1-14), Maryland, Virginia, Porto Rico and District of Columbia (1-10), Wisconsin (1-7), South Carolina (1-7), Kansas (not over 21), Minnesota, New York and Washington (not over 20), Michigan (not over 14), Florida, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Missouri, South Dakota (not over 10), Pennsylvania and Vermont (not over $1,000), Rhode Island (not over 10, or $1,000, or both), Hawaii (not over 10 and $500), New Hampshire (not over 7), New Jersey (not over 5), in Iowa changing plate numbers on autos is classified as forgery.

Bigamy—A person who, having a husband or wife living, marries another, is guilty of bigamy. Under Federal Statutes, polygamy (or bigamy) in the Territories is punished by imprisonment for not more than 5 years and a fine of not more than $500. Five years' imprisonment is the most general maximum penalty in the States for bigamy and fines are quite commonly imposed. Some of the States, however, have a more severe extreme penalty and some a lesser maximum. Kentucky (3-9), Virginia (3-8), Tennessee (2-21), Arkansas (3-7), New Mexico and District of Columbia (2-7), Alabama and Texas (2-5), Indiana (2-5 or $1,000), Georgia (1-10), Nebraska, Ohio and Alaska (1-7), North Dakota, West Virginia and Wyoming (1-5), Illinois, Nevada and Rhode Island (1-5 and $1,000), Louisiana (1-5 and $500), Wisconsin (1-5 and fine), Oregon (1-4), Mississippi (not over 10), California (not over 10 and $5,000), Arizona (not over 10 and $2,000), New Jersey (not over 10 or $1,000, or both), Delaware (not over 6 and $2,000), Connecticut, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Missouri, New York, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Washington (not over 5), Idaho (not over 5 and $2,000), Minnesota and Vermont (not over 5 and $1,000), Florida, Maine, Michigan and Utah (not over 5 or $500), Porto Rico (not over 3 or $2,000), Montana (not over 3 and $1,000), New Hampshire (not over 3 and $500), Pennsylvania (not over 2 and $1,000), Hawaii (not over 2 or $500).

Perjury under the various State codes usually means false testimony on a material point given in an action or proceeding at law. The following are the penalties imposed in accordance with this usual definition. In the Federal Courts (not more than 5 and not more than $2,000), Iowa (10 up to life), Oklahoma (5-20), Georgia (4-10), Ohio and Oregon (3-10), Indiana (2-21 or $50 and $1,000), Minnesota, Texas and District of Columbia (2-10), Wisconsin (2-5), South Dakota (1-20), Arkansas and Tennessee (1-15), Arizona, Nebraska, Nevada and Idaho, Illinois, Montana, Nebraska, Utah, Alaska and Wyoming (1-14), North Dakota, Utah, Alaska and Porto Rico (1-10), New Mexico (1-7), Kentucky (1-5), West Virginia (1 year and $1,000), North Carolina (4 months to 10 years), Florida, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Hawaii (not over 20), Michigan and Washington (not over 15), Vermont (not over 15 and $1,000), Maine, Maryland, Mississippi and New York (not over 10), Delaware (not over 10 and $2,000), Kansas, Missouri and South Carolina (not over 7); New Jersey (not over 7 or $2,000, or both), Pennsylvania (not over 7 and $500), Connecticut and Louisiana (not over 5), Virginia (not over 1 and $1,000). In many of the States severer penalties than those given above are imposed, varying with the character of the action or the results of the false testimony. Thus in Colorado and Texas perjury which causes conviction in a capital case is punished by death. In capital cases, irrespective of results, the penalty is: in Alaska (2-20), Oregon (5-20), Kansas (not less than 10), Massachusetts and Missouri (any term up to life), Wisconsin (3-15). In cases of felony not necessarily capital: Alabama (3-20), New York (not more than 20), North Dakota (not less than 10), Virginia (2-10), West Virginia (1-10).

Where crimes are divided into several degrees it is generally within the province of the jury, in convicting, to fix the degree of the crime, and in almost every case in which a crime is punishable by death or imprisonment it is the province of the jury to determine the punishment, except upon a plea of guilty, when the duty devolves upon the court.

Note.—Figures in parentheses in the laws on crimes with their penalties are years. Money figures are maximum.

LITIGATION OF CUSTOMS CLAIMS.

(By the Board of United States General Appraisers.)

A statutory judicial remedy is given by the Customs Practice Act of June 10, 1890, and supplements thereto, for the return of money illegally exacted by the administrative customs officials before a special statutory Court of Customs Claims called the Board of United States General Appraisers. If the valuation by the local appraiser of imported merchandise upon which an ad valorem duty is assessed is disputed by the importer he may appeal for a revaluation (or reappraisement as it is called) within ten days after the local appraiser has made the assessment. If the importer is dissatisfied with the classification by the Collector of Customs at the port of entry, he may file a protest in writing within thirty days with such Collector, who thereupon must forward the papers to the board, and the case is regularly docketed.

NO LIMITATION ON AMOUNT.

There is no limitation upon the amount involved in such litigation. It covers and includes merchandise imported by Parcel Post and claims arising from the assessment and classification of baggage not exempt from duty. The trial of the case is usually had at the port of entry or some nearby place. Regular dockets for the trial of such cases are held at New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, St. Paul, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles. In addition special dockets are held in other customs districts at the convenience and on request of the importers' attorneys. There are no expedition costs and the procedure is simple and expeditious, yet includes all the safeguards and protections of an ordinary court trial. Numerous claims against the Government, arising from the administration of the customs laws are thus litigated and involve in the aggregate large sums of money. Reappraisement cases are heard by a single member of the board, with an appeal by either the Government or the importer from his judgment to a board of three. Classification cases, including contests over the legality of an appraisement, the legality of any administrative regulation promulgated by the Secretary of the Treasury, or the legality of other administrative action resulting in the levy of an excessive rate or amount of duty by the Collector of Customs are decided by the Classification Board.

METHOD OF APPEAL.

An appeal lies from this board's judgment to the Court of Customs Appeals at Washington, from whence certiorari lies to the Supreme Court of the United States in treaty cases, constitutional cases and other cases which the Attorney General certifies as of sufficient importance.

U. S. NATURALIZATION LAWS.

By an act of Congress approved Sept. 22, 1922, it is provided that after that date the citizenship status of a married woman shall no longer follow that of the husband, and that thereafter a married woman shall have the privilege of becoming naturalized on her own account.

The two principal classes of married women specifically referred to in the above legislation, with the means each class must take in order to acquire American citizenship, are described below:

1. An alien woman marrying an American citizen after the passage of the above act, or any woman whose husband is naturalized after said act.

She may become naturalized by filing the usual petition for naturalization and complying with all requirements of the naturalization laws, with the following exceptions:

(a) No declaration of intention required.

(b) Only one year's continuous residence in the United States, Hawaii, Alaska, or Porto Rico immediately preceding the filing of her petition required.

2. A woman who before the passage of the above act was an American citizen and lost her United States citizenship by marriage to an alien.

She may become naturalized by filing the usual petition for naturalization and complying with all requirements of the naturalization laws, with the following exceptions:

(a) No declaration of intention required.

(b) Only one year's continuous residence in the United States, Hawaii, Alaska, or Porto Rico immediately preceding the filing of her petition required.

(c) No certificate of arrival required if during the continuance of the marital status she shall have resided within the United States.

An alien woman married to an alien at the time of the passage of the above act, or who thereafter marries an alien may become naturalized by complying with all requirements of the naturalization laws, including declaration, five years' continuous United States residence, one year continuous State residence, certificate of arrival if her entry dates from June 29, 1906, etc.

The status of single alien women is not affected by this law, and women of this class may continue as in the past to file declarations and petitions for the purpose of becoming naturalized.

The act referred to further provides that no married woman whose husband is not eligible to citizenship shall be naturalized during the continuance of the marital status, and that she herself must be eligible to citizenship. Eligibility for citizenship is determined almost entirely by the question of whether the persons concerned are "white persons" or "persons of African nativity or African descent," as provided by the Revised Statutes, and whether the husband is disqualified from citizenship because of withdrawal of declaration of intention under the act of July 9, 1918, for the purpose of securing immunity from military service during the recent war.

The following courts alone have the power to naturalize aliens: United States District Courts in the States and Territories; also all courts of record in any State or Territory having a seal, a clerk, and jurisdiction in actions at law or equity, or law and equity, in which the amount in controversy is unlimited.

The power to naturalize is limited to persons residing within the geographical limits of the respective courts.

Any alien, white, or of African nativity or descent, is required, if he desires to become naturalized, to file a declaration of intention in the clerk's office of a court having jurisdiction, and such declaration may not be filed until the alien has reached the age of eighteen. This declaration must contain information as to the name, age, occupation, time and place of arrival in the United States, and must further show that it is the declarant's bona fide intention to become a citizen of the United States and to renounce forever all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state or sovereignty.

Not less than two years after an alien has filed his declaration of intention, and after not less than five years' continuous residence in the United States, he may file a petition for citizenship in any one of the courts which has jurisdiction over the place in which he resides, provided he has lived at least one year continuously, immediately prior to the filing of such petition, in the State or Territory in which such place is located. This petition must be signed by the petitioner in his own handwriting and shall give his full name, place of residence, occupation, place of birth and the date thereof, the place from which he emigrated, and the date and place of his arrival in the United States. If such arrival occurred subsequent to the passage of the act of June 29, 1906, he must secure a certificate from the Department of Labor showing the fact of such arrival and the date and place thereof, for filing with the clerk of the court to be attached to his petition. If he is married he must state the name of his wife and, if possible, the country of her nativity and her place of residence at the time of the filing of his petition, and, if he has children, the name, date and place of birth and present place of residence of each living child. The petition must set forth that he is not a disbeliever in or opposed to organized government or a member of or affiliated with any organization or body of persons teaching disbelief in or opposition to organized government; that he is not a polygamist or a believer in the practice of polygamy, and that he absolutely and forever renounces all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign country of which he may, at the time of filing such petition, be a citizen or subject. This petition must be verified at the time it is filed by the affidavit of two credible witnesses, who are citizens of the United States and who shall state that they have known the petitioner during his entire residence (not exceeding five years) in the State in which the petition is filed, which must be not less than one year, and that they have known him to be a resident of the United States continuously during the five years immediately preceding the filing of the petition; that during such time he acted as a man of good moral character, attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same. If a portion of the five years has been passed by the petitioner in some other State than that in which he resides at the time of filing his petition the affidavit of the witnesses may verify so much of the petitioner's residence as has been passed in the State (not less than one year), and the portion of said five years' residence out of the State may be shown by depositions at the time of hearing on the petition.

No petition may be heard until the expiration of at least ninety days after it is filed nor within thirty days preceding a general election.

The act of May 9, 1918, in reference to naturalization of honorably discharged soldiers and sailors who served during the recent war, has been superseded by the act of July 19, 1919, as follows: "Any person of foreign birth, who served in the military or naval forces of the United States during the present war, after final examination and acceptance by the said military or naval authorities, and shall have been honorably discharged after such acceptance and service, shall have the benefits of the seventh subdivision of Section 4, of the act of June 29, 1906, 34 Statutes at Large, Part 1, Page 596, as amended, and shall not be required to pay any fee therefor; and this provision shall continue for the period of one year after all of the American troops are returned to the United States."

Alien seamen who have sailed three years on United States merchant or fishing vessels are protected as American citizens after declaring intention of becoming such. (This means that aliens who have sailed three years or more on American vessels may claim protection as American citizens by simply asking for it and, at the same time, declaring their intention of becoming citizens.) Aliens honorably discharged on account of disability in performance of duty while in military or naval service during the war, at its termination, may be relieved of the necessity of proving continuous five years' residence. Citizens having lost citizenship by entering the service of the Allies may resume citizenship by taking the oath of allegiance.

STATUS OF NATURALIZED AMERICANS ABROAD.

Section 2 of the Citizenship Act of March 2, 1907, contains the following provision: "When any naturalized citizen shall have resided for two years in the foreign state from which he came, or for five years in any other foreign state, it shall be presumed that he has ceased to be an American citizen, and the place of his general abode shall be deemed his place of residence during said years; provided, that such presumption may be overcome on the presentation of satisfactory evidence to a diplomatic or consular office of the United States, under such rules and regulations as the Department of State may prescribe; and provided also, that no American citizen shall be allowed to expatriate himself when this country is at war."

UNITED STATES IMMIGRATION LAW OF FEB. 5, 1917.

The tax on immigrant aliens entering, including seamen, is $8. Children under sixteen years, when with a parent, are exempted, also aliens in transit to another country.

Excluded Classes—All idiots, imbeciles, feeble-minded persons, epileptics, insane persons: persons who have had one or more attacks of insanity at any time previously; persons of constitutional psychopathic inferiority; persons with chronic alcoholism; paupers; professional beggars; vagrants; persons afflicted with tuberculosis in any form or with a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease; persons not comprehended within any of the foregoing excluded classes who are found to be and are certified by the examining surgeon as being mentally or physically defective, such physical defect being of a nature which may affect the ability of such alien to earn a living; persons who have been convicted of or admit having committed a felony or other crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude; polygamists, or persons who practise polygamy or believe in or advocate the practice of polygamy;

Anarchists, or persons who believe in or advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States or of all forms of law, or who disbelieve in or are opposed to organized government, or who advocate the assassination of public officials, or who advocate or teach the unlawful destruction of property; persons who are members of or affiliated with any organization entertaining and teaching disbelief in or opposition to organized government, or who advocate or teach the duty, necessity, or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers, either of specific individuals or of officers generally, of the Government of the United States or of an official character, or who advocate or teach the unlawful destruction of property; prostitutes, or persons coming into the United States for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose; persons who directly or indirectly procure or attempt to procure or import prostitutes or persons for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose; persons who are supported by or receive in whole or in part the proceeds of prostitution.

Persons, hereinafter called contract laborers, who have been induced, assisted, encouraged, or solicited to migrate to this country by offers or promises of employment, whether such offers or promises are true or false, or in consequence of agreements, oral, written, or printed, express or implied, to perform labor in this country of any kind, skilled or unskilled; persons who have come in consequence of advertisements for laborers printed, published, or distributed in a foreign country; persons likely to become a public charge; persons who have been deported under any of the provisions of this act, and who may again seek admission within one year from the date of such deportation, unless prior to their re-embarkation at a foreign port or their attempt to be admitted from foreign contiguous territory the Secretary of Labor shall have consented to their reapplying for admission; Persons whose ticket or passage is paid for with the money of another, or who are assisted by others to come, unless it is affirmatively and satisfactorily shown that such persons do not belong to one of the foregoing excluded classes; persons whose ticket or passage is paid for by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign Government, either directly or indirectly; stowaways, except that any such stowaway, if otherwise admissible, may be admitted in the discretion of the Secretary of Labor; all children under sixteen years of age unaccompanied by or not coming to one or both of their parents, except that any such children may, in the discretion of the Secretary of Labor, be admitted if in his opinion they are not likely to become a public charge and are otherwise eligible.

Unless otherwise provided for by existing treaties, persons who are natives of islands not possessed by the United States adjacent to the continent of Asia, situate south of the twentieth parallel latitude north, west of the one hundred and sixtieth meridian of longitude east from Greenwich, and north of the tenth parallel of latitude south, or who are natives of any country, province, or dependency situate on the continent of Asia west of the one hundred and tenth meridian of longitude east from Greenwich and east of the fiftieth meridian of longitude east from Greenwich and south of the fiftieth parallel of latitude north, except that portion of said territory situate between the fiftieth and the sixty-fourth meridians of longitude east from Greenwich and the twenty-fourth and thirty-eight parallel of latitude north, and no alien now in any way excluded from or prevented from entering the United States shall be admitted to the United States.

The provision next foregoing, however, shall not apply to persons of the following status or occupations: Government officers, ministers or religious teachers, missionaries, lawyers, physicians, chemists, civil engineers, teachers, students, authors, artists, merchants, and travellers for curiosity or pleasure, nor to their legal wives or their children under sixteen years of age who shall accompany them or who subsequently may apply for admission to the United States, but such persons or their legal wives or foreign-born children who fail to maintain in the United States a status or occupation placing them within the excepted classes shall be deemed to be in the United States contrary to law, and shall be subject to deportation as provided in section nineteen of this act.

All aliens over sixteen years of age, physically capable of reading, who cannot read the English language or some other language or dialect, including Hebrew or Yiddish: Provided, That any admissible alien, or any alien heretofore or hereafter legally admitted, or any citizen of the United States, may bring in or send for his father or grandfather over fifty-five years of age, his wife, his mother, his grandmother, or his unmarried or widowed daughter, if otherwise admissible, whether such relative can read or not; and such relative shall be permitted to enter.

The following classes of persons shall be exempt from the operation of the literacy test, to wit: All aliens who shall prove to the satisfaction of the proper immigration officer or to the Secretary of Labor that they are seeking admission to the United States to avoid religious persecution in the country of their last permanent residence, whether such persecution be evidenced by overt acts or by laws or governmental regulations that discriminate against the alien or the race to which he belongs because of his religious faith; all aliens who have been lawfully admitted to the United States and who have resided therein continuously for five years and who return to the United States within six months from the date of their departure therefrom; all aliens in transit through the United States; all aliens who have been lawfully admitted to the United States and who later shall go in transit from one part of the United States to another through foreign contiguous territory:

Provided, That nothing in this act shall exclude, if otherwise admissible, persons convicted or who admit the commission, or who teach or advocate the commission of an offense purely political:

Provided further, That the provisions of this act relating to the payments for tickets or passage by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign Government shall not apply to the tickets or passage of aliens in immediate and continuous transit through the United States to foreign contiguous territory:

Provided further, That skilled labor, if otherwise admissible, may be imported if labor of like kind unemployed cannot be found in this country, and the question of the necessity of importing such skilled labor in any particular instance may be determined by any Secretary of Labor upon the application of any person interested, such application to be made before such importation, and such determination by the Secretary of Labor to be reached after a full hearing and an investigation into the facts of the case:

Provided further, That the provisions of this law applicable to contract labor shall not be held to exclude professional actors, artists, lecturers, singers, nurses, ministers of any religious denomination, professors for colleges or seminaries, persons belonging to any recognized learned profession, or persons employed as domestic servants:

Provided further, That whenever the President shall be satisfied that passports issued by any foreign Government to its citizens or subjects, go to any country other than the United States or to any insular possession of the United States or to the Canal Zone, are being used for the purpose of enabling the holder to come to the continental territory of the United States to the detriment of labor conditions therein, the President shall refuse to permit such citizens or subjects of the country issuing such passports to enter the continental territory of the United States from such other country or from such insular possession or from the Canal Zone:

Provided further, That aliens returning after a temporary absence to an unrelinquished United States domicile of seven consecutive years may be admitted in the discretion of the Secretary of Labor and under such conditions as he may prescribe:

Provided further, That nothing in the contract-labor or reading-test provisions of this act shall be construed to prevent, hinder, or restrict any alien exhibitor, or holder of concession or privilege for any fair or exposition authorized by act of Congress, from bringing into the United States, under contract, such otherwise admissible alien mechanics, artisans, agents, or other employees natives of his country as may be necessary for installing or conducting his exhibit or for preparing for installing or conducting any business authorized or permitted under any concession or privilege which may have been or may be granted by any such fair or exposition in connection therewith.

VIOLETIONS AND PENALTIES.

Violations of the immoral-women clause are punishable, on conviction, by imprisonment up to ten years and a fine up to $5,000. Violations of the contract-labor clause are punishable, on conviction, by $1,000 fine in each case and (or) imprisonment up to two years. Violations of the Anarchist clause carry prison up to five years and fine up to $5,000. Other violations carry various penalties. It is unlawful for any person or concern engaged in bringing immigrants to give fare rebates or to solicit immigration: penalty $400 fine in each case. The penalty for smuggling immigrants is fine up to $2,000 and prison up to five years. Immigrant ships must bring written records of each alien, with name, description, destination, etc., signed by the ship's surgeon: penalty, $10 for each unrecorded alien.

Incoming aliens at all U. S. ports are examined by U. S. Public Health Service doctors, and each immigrant must be examined by at least two inspectors, under oath. False testimony by an immigrant or in his behalf is punishable as perjury. Inspecting is punishable by fine up to $2,000 and prison up to one year. An alien can appeal to a board of special inquiry, and then to the Secretary of Labor, whose word is final. Excluded aliens are returned at the ship's expense.

Aliens may be deported at any time within five years of their arrival if found guilty of crime or of having been of the excluded classes at arrival. An alien otherwise admissible may be let in by giving a cash bond that he or she will not become a public charge. The amount of cash is fixed in each case by the Secretary of Labor. It is unlawful for a ship to pay off or discharge an alien seaman in a U. S. port unless he lands merely to under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner General of Immigration, with the approval of the Secretary of Labor, may prescribe both as to the admission and return of such persons:

Provided further, That the Commissioner General of Immigration with the approval of the Secretary of Labor shall issue rules and prescribe conditions, including exaction of such bonds as may be necessary to control and regulate the admission and return of otherwise inadmissible aliens applying for temporary admission:

Provided further, That nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to accredited officials of foreign Governments, nor to their suites, families, or guests.

reship. An alien seaman unlawfully entered may be deported within three years of arrival, and it applies to any other person who got in unlawfully and who was not of the excluded classes.

Whenever an alien shall have been naturalized or shall have taken up his permanent residence in this country and thereafter shall send for his wife or minor children to join him, and said wife or any of said minor children shall be found to be affected with any contagious disorder, such wife or minor children shall be held under such regulations as the Secretary of Labor shall prescribe, until it shall be determined whether the disorder will be easily curable or whether they can be permitted to land without danger to other persons; and they shall not be either admitted or deported until such facts have been ascertained; and if it shall be determined that the disorder is easily curable and the husband or father or other responsible person is willing to bear the expense of the treatment, they may be accorded treatment in hospital until cured and then be admitted, or if it shall be determined that they can be permitted to land without danger to other persons, they may, if otherwise admissible, thereupon be admitted:

Provided, That if the person sending for wife or minor children is naturalized, a wife to whom married or a minor child born subsequent to such husband or father's naturalization shall be admitted without detention for treatment in hospital, and with respect to a wife to whom married or a minor child born prior to such husband or father's naturalization the provisions of this section shall be observed, even though such person is unable to pay the expense of treatment, in which case the expense shall be paid from the appropriation for the enforcement of this act.

AMENDMENT EXCLUDING ALIENS.

An act of Congress, approved June 5, 1920, amends the amendment of Oct. 16, 1918, as to Anarchists so as to exclude from admission to the United States the following classes:

(a) Aliens who are Anarchists; (b) aliens who advise, advocate, or teach, or who are members of or affiliated with any organization, association, society, or group that advises, advocates, or teaches, opposition to all organized government; (c) aliens who believe in, advise, advocate, or teach, or who are members of or affiliated with any organization, association, society, or group, that believes in, advises, advocates, or teaches; (1) the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States or of all forms of law, or (2) the duty, necessity or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers (either of specific individuals or of officers generally) of the Government of the United States or of any other organized government because of his or their official character, or (3) the unlawful damage, injury or destruction of property; or (4) sabotage.

(c) Aliens who write, publish, or cause to be written or published, or who knowingly circulate, distribute, print, or display, or knowingly cause to be circulated, distributed, printed, published, or displayed, or who knowingly have in their possession for the purpose of circulation, distribution, publication, or display, any written or printed matter advising, advocating, or teaching opposition to all organized government, or advising, advocating or teaching: (1) the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States or of all forms of law, or (2) the duty, necessity or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers (either of specific individuals or of officers generally) of the Government of the United States or of any other organized government, or the unlawful damage, injury or destruction of property, or (4) sabotage:

(e) Aliens who are members of or affiliated with any organization, association, society, or group that writes, circulates, distributes, prints, publishes, or displays, or causes to be written, circulated, distributed, printed, published, or displayed, or that has in its possession for the purpose of circulation, distribution, publication, issue, or display, any written or printed matter of the character described in subdivision (d).

For the purpose of this section: (1) the giving, loaning, or promising of money or any thing of value to be used for the advising, advocacy, or teaching of any doctrine above enumerated shall constitute the advising, advocacy, or teaching of such doctrine; and (2) the giving, loaning, or promising of any thing of value to any organization, association, society, or group of the character above described shall constitute affiliation therewith; but nothing in this paragraph shall be taken as an exclusive definition of advising, advocacy, teaching, or affiliation.

Any alien who shall, after he has been excluded and deported or arrested and deported in pursuance of the provisions of this act, thereafter return to or enter the United States or attempt to return to or to enter the United States shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years; and deported.

ALIENS ADMITTED TO MARRY.

An act of Congress, approved June 5, 1920, amends the Immigration Act by adding that an alien who cannot read may, if otherwise admissible, be admitted if within five years hereafter a citizen of the United States who has served in the military or naval forces of the United States during the war with the Imperial German Government requests that such alien be admitted, and with the approval of the Secretary of Labor marries such alien at a United States immigration station. Approved June 5, 1920.

Under an act of Congress, approved May 10,

1920, the Secretary of Labor is given power to deport, after a hearing, aliens found guilty of violating any of the so-called war acts, including interned aliens.

Congress, by a joint resolution, approved Oct. 19, 1918, amended the Immigration Law so as to

THE IMMIGRATION

The Immigration Restriction Law of May, 19, 1921, operative until June 30, 1924, defines "alien" as any person not native born or naturalized, exclusive of Indians not taxed, and citizens of the islands under U. S. jurisdiction. It limits the number of aliens admissible to three per cent. of the number of the particular nationality in each case resident in the U. S. as shown by the 1910 census. Exceptions are government employees, their families and servants, visitors for pleasure or business, others merely going through the country as a convenient route, one year residents of Canada.

readmit any alien who enlisted or served here or abroad in the United States or other Allied forces if such alien applies for readmission within a year after the war's end, or returns to a United States port within two years after the war's end. In such cases the head tax is remitted, and the alien is let in.

RESTRICTION LAW.

Newfoundland, Cuba, Mexico, or Central or South American countries, and children (under eighteen) of U. S. citizens. Not more than 20 per cent. of each nationality to be admitted in any one month. Preference to be given to relatives and fiancées of U. S. citizens, of applicants for citizenship, and of persons eligible to citizenship by service in U. S. military or naval forces between April 6, 1917 and Nov. 11, 1918, inclusive.

The penalty for bringing aliens in who are inadmissible under the Restriction Act is $200 for each alien.

PASSPORT REGULATIONS.

1. AUTHORITY TO ISSUE—Section 4075 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, as amended by the act of Congress approved June 14, 1902, provides that "the Secretary of State may grant and issue passports, and cause passports to be granted, issued, and verified in foreign countries by such diplomatic or consular officers of the United States, and by such chief or other executive officer of the insular possessions of the United States, and under such rules as the President shall designate and prescribe for and on behalf of the United States."

2. TO WHOM PASSPORTS ARE ISSUED—Section 4076 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (U. S. Comp. Stat., 1901, 2765) provides that "no passport shall be granted or issued to or verified for any other persons than those owing allegiance, whether citizens or not, to the United States. Persons who have declared their intention to become citizens are not classed as citizens."

3. BY WHOM ISSUED AND REFUSAL TO ISSUE—No one but the Secretary of State may grant and issue passports in the United States (Rev. Stat., Secs. 4075, 4078) and he is empowered to refuse them in his discretion. Passports are not issued by American diplomatic and consular officers abroad, except in cases of emergency; and a citizen who is abroad and desires to procure a passport must apply therefor through the nearest diplomatic or consular officer to the Secretary of State. Applications for passports by persons in Hawaii, Porto Rico or the Philippines should be made to the chief executives of those islands. The evidence required of such applicants is similar to that required of applicants in the United States.

4. FEES—A fee of $10 is required to be collected for every citizen's passport issued. That amount in currency or postal money order should accompany each application made by a citizen or person owing allegiance or entitled to the protection of the United States. Orders should be made payable to the Disbursing Clerk of the Department of State. Drafts or checks will not be accepted. No fees charged to widow, child, parent, brother or sister of an American soldier, sailor or marine buried abroad, to visit country of burial.

5. APPLICATIONS: AFFIDAVIT OF APPLICANT—A person who is entitled to receive a passport, if within the United States, must submit a written application, in duplicate, in the form of an affidavit, to the Secretary of State. The application should be made by the person to whom the passport is to be issued and signed by him, as it is not proper for one person to apply for another. The affidavit must be made before a clerk of a Federal court or of a State court authorized by the act of Congress of June 29, 1906, to naturalize aliens, within the jurisdiction of which the applicant or his witness resides, and the seal of the court must be affixed; but in any place where there is a Federal court the affidavit must be made before a clerk of such court, unless there is in such place an agent of the Department of State, in which case the Secretary may, in his discretion, require the application to be made before such agent.

The applicant must state from what place he intends to leave the United States, the object of trip and evidence of same, and the date of his intended departure, and also, if by a port of the United States, by what ship he intends to sail.

A person applying for a passport or for a renewal of his passport or for an amendment thereto to include additional objects or objects of his proposed trip abroad, but it is no longer necessary to submit with the application documentary evidence supporting the statements as to the objects of the visit.

If the applicant is proceeding abroad on his own behalf he should so indicate by the use of expressions similar to the following: Study, Health, Tourist, Recreation, Temporary Residence, Settling my own Estate, Care for my Property, Visit my Relatives.

If the applicant is proceeding abroad for other personal reasons or to represent some other person or organization, he should state definitely the object of the trip. The following expressions will serve as examples: Commercial Banking, Legal, (or other) business for (name of person or organization); Research, Literary, Construction, Relief (or other) work for (name of person or organization); Distributive funds (food, clothing, etc.) for (name of person or organization).

If there is more than one object of the trip each object should be clearly stated opposite the name of the country in which it is intended to accomplish the objects.

Passports will be issued to all parts of the world except countries where internal conditions or relations with the United States prevent.

(c) PHOTOGRAPHS—The application must be accompanied by duplicate photographs of the applicant, on thin paper, unmounted, and not larger in size than three by three inches. One must be attached to the back of application by the clerk of court or the department's agent before whom the application is made, with an impression of such officer's seal so placed as to cover part of the photograph but not the features, and the other sent loose, to be attached to the passport by the department. The loose photograph must be signed by the applicant across its face, so as not to obscure the features, and the signature thereon must correspond to the applicant's signature affixed to the application. Photographs on cardboard or postcards will not be accepted.

(d) WITNESS—The application must be supported by an affidavit of at least one credible witness, who has known the applicant at least two years, stating that the applicant is the person he represents himself to be and that the facts stated in the application are true to the best of the witness's knowledge and belief. This affidavit must be made before the clerk of court or the department's agent before whom the application is executed, and the witness must accompany the applicant when he makes his application. The witness must be an American citizen, established in a recognized profession or business and having his office or place of business within the jurisdiction of the court or the department's agent (e. g., a clergyman, lawyer, physician, banker, broker, real estate dealer, or merchant). The witness, in signing the application, should state the nature of his profession or business and his professional or business address. No lawyer or other person will be accepted as witness to a passport application if he has received as witness to receive a fee for his services in connection therewith. A passport issued by the Secretary of State on and after June 3, 1918, to which is attached the photograph and signature of the person to whom the passport was originally issued, will be accepted in lieu of an identifying witness.

6. NATIVE CITIZEN—An application containing the information indicated by rule 5 will be sufficient evidence in the case of a native citizen; except that a person born in the United States in a place where births are recorded will be required to submit a birth certificate with his application. If a birth certificate is not obtainable, the application must be supported by a baptismal certificate or an affidavit of the physician who attended the birth or affidavits of parents or other reputable persons having sufficient knowledge to be able to testify as to the place and date of the applicant's birth. Passports issued by the Department of State or its diplomatic or consular representatives are intended for identification and protection in foreign countries and not to facilitate entry into the United States, immigration being under the supervision of the Department of Labor.

7. A PERSON BORN ABROAD WHOSE FATHER WAS A NATIVE CITIZEN OF THE UNITED STATES.—In addition to the statements required by rule 5, his application must show that his father was born in the United States, resided therein, and was a citizen at the time of the applicant's birth. In such case evidence of the father's birth in this country, similar to that required in section 6, above, should be submitted.

8. NATURALIZED CITIZEN.—In addition to the statements required by rule 5, a naturalized citizen must transmit his certificate of naturalization, or a duly certified copy of the court record thereof, with his application. It will be returned to him after inspection. He must state in his affidavit when he emigrated to this country, where he has lived since his arrival in the United States, when and before what court he was naturalized, and that he is the identical person described in the certificate of naturalization. The signature to the application should conform in orthography to the applicant's name as written in his certificate of naturalization, or an explanation of the difference should be submitted.

9. WOMAN'S APPLICATION.—If she is unmarried in addition to the statements required by rule 5, she should state that she has never been married. If she is the wife of a native citizen of the United States, the fact should be made to appear in her application, which should be made according to the form prescribed for a native citizen, whether she was born in this country or abroad. If she is the wife of a naturalized citizen, in addition to the statements required by rule 5, she must transmit for inspection her husband's certificate of naturalization or a certified copy of the court record thereof, must state that she is the wife of the person described therein, and must set forth the facts of his birth, emigration, naturalization, and residence, as required in the rules governing the application of a naturalized citizen. She should sign her own Christian name with the family name of her husband. (Thus, Mary Doe, not Mrs. John Doe.) A married woman's citizenship follows that of her husband. It is essential, therefore, that a woman's marital relation be indicated in her application for a passport, and that in the case of a married woman her husband's citizenship be established.

10. THE CHILD OF A NATURALIZED CITIZEN CLAIMING CITIZENSHIP THROUGH THE NATURALIZATION OF THE PARENT.—In addition to the statements required by rule 5, the applicant must state that he or she is the son or daughter, as the case may be, of the person described in the certificate of naturalization, which must be submitted for inspection, and must set forth the facts of emigration, naturalization, and residence as required in the rules governing the application of a naturalized citizen.

11. A RESIDENT OF AN INSULAR POSSESSION OF THE UNITED STATES WHO OWES ALLEGIANCE TO THE UNITED STATES.—In addition to the statements required by rule 5, he must state that he owes allegiance to the United States and that he does not acknowledge allegiance to any other government, and must submit affidavits from at least two credible witnesses who are able to corroborate his statements as to birth, residence, and loyalty.

THE GRAIN FUTURES ACT. authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to supervise trading in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade and other Exchanges in the United States, was signed Sept. 21, 1922, by the President.

"The new law takes the place of the regulatory provisions of the Future Trading Act of Aug. 24, 1921, which was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States last May," said Secretary Wallace. "In substance the new law is the same as the old, but the new law is based on the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce, while the former statute was based on the taxing power of Congress.

"The new law does not become operative until Nov. 1, 1922. As all of the Exchanges were fully acquainted with the requirements of the former law, there should be no difficulty or delay in com-

12. EXPIRATION OF PASSPORT.—A passport is valid for twelve months from date of its issuance, and may be renewed for another twelve months. A new one will be issued upon a new application. If the applicant is a naturalized citizen, the old passport will be accepted in lieu of a certificate of naturalization, provided the application upon which a previous passport was issued is found to contain sufficient information as to the naturalization of the applicant. If the applicant is a native citizen, a reference to a previous application with which the required evidence of birth was submitted will be sufficient, provided the application upon which the previous passport was issued is found to contain the necessary record of the evidence submitted.

13. WIFE, MINOR CHILDREN, AND SERVANTS.—When the applicant is accompanied by his wife, minor children, and maid servant, who owes allegiance to the United States, it will be sufficient to state the fact, giving their names in full, the dates and places of their births, and the allegiance of the servant, when one passport will suffice for all those under twenty-one years of age. In such case, however, photographs of each person should accompany the passport application. For a maid servant or any other person in the party a separate passport will be required. A woman's passport may include her minor children and maid servant under the above-named conditions. (The term "maid servant" does not include a governess, tutor, pupil, companion, or person holding like relation to the applicant for a passport.

14. TITLES.—Professional and other titles will not be inserted in passports, but an applicant's name in religion, an author's nom de plume, a stage name, etc., may be included in parentheses.

15. SURRENDER OF OLD PASSPORTS.—An applicant for a new passport who holds an expired or unexpired passport or passports should submit the latter to the clerk of court or agent of the Department of State to whom he executes his application for a new passport. In such case the clerk of court or agent of the Department of State will cancel the old passport by cutting out a piece of the seal thereon and stamping, or writing in indelible ink, the word "Cancelled," across the face of the passport, which may then be returned to the applicant. After cancelling an old passport the official who takes the application should make a notation on the margin thereof, giving the number and date of issuance of the passport cancelled.

16. BLANK FORMS OF APPLICATION.—They will be furnished by the department free of charge to persons who desire to apply for passports. Supplies of blank applications are also furnished by the department to clerks of courts and are had by the department's agents.

17. ADDRESS.—Communications should be addressed to the Department of State, Division of Passport Control, Washington, D. C., and each communication should give the post office address of the person to whom the answer is to be directed. No passports are required from Cubans, Santo Dominicans, or Haitians. Aliens regularly residing in the United States going to Canada, New Foundland, Bermuda, the Bahamas, St. Pierre-Miquelon, Mexico, Cuba, Santo Domingo or Hayti, may return within six months without passports.

After passport has been received it is necessary to obtain a Clearance Certificate at port of departure to show Income Tax laws have been complied with. It is necessary to obtain visas from the consuls representing countries named in passport.

GRAIN FUTURES ACT.

plying with the new law. The Exchanges affected are those at Chicago, Minneapolis, Duluth, Kansas City, St. Louis, Toledo, Milwaukee, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Baltimore.

"This law does not interfere with hedging transactions on the Boards of Trade. Neither does it interfere with ordinary speculation in the buying or selling of contracts for future delivery. If, however, there should be evidence of undue manipulation or attempts to corner the market, or of disseminating false or misleading information about crop or market conditions by members of the Exchanges, such conduct would be inquired into and promptly dealt with as required by the law. In addition it prohibits the Exchanges from discriminating against co-operative associations of grain producers who may desire membership in order to obtain the use of the facilities of the grain Exchanges."

NARCOTIC (FEDERAL) LAW AMENDED.

President Harding signed, May 26, 1922, the bill passed by Congress to strengthen the Harrison Anti-Narcotic Act.

The new law establishes a Federal Narcotics Board, composed of the heads of the State, Treasury and Commerce Departments, which is empowered to authorize the importation of such quantities of crude opium and cocoa leaves as may be found necessary for medical and other legitimate purposes. Any alien convicted of violating the act is to be deported, while for others a fine of $5,000 or ten years' imprisonment is provided.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAWS.

Text includes amendments to 1922.)

ALASKA, 1915.

INDIANA, 1917.

Adm. Sys.—Industrial Board, with appeals to courts on questions of law. Sec. for Comp.—Contracts of insurance must insure directly to benefit of persons entitled to payments under an award. Payments have same preference and priority as unpaid wages, and are exempt from claims of creditors. Insurance required, or proof of financial ability to meet payments. Employ.—All except interstate and foreign commerce, for which Federal laws make provision; railroad employees engaged in train service and domestic and agricultural labor, unless employer makes contrary election; compulsory as to State and its municipalities. Wait.—Seven days. Med. and Surg.—Medical and hospital services for first 30 days, and 30 days longer if ordered by Industrial Board; employee must accept unless otherwise ordered by Industrial Board; $100 for funeral expenses if death from the injury occurs within 300 weeks. Comp. for Dis.—Total.—Fifty-five per cent. of wages for not more than 500 weeks. Partial.—Fifty-five per cent. of wage loss for not more than 300 weeks. For certain specified injuries, 55% of wages for designated periods ranging from 10 to 200 weeks. Wage basis and total amounts are limited as to death benefits. Any payments may be commuted to a lump sum after 26 weeks. Death Ben.—To persons wholly dependent, 55% of weekly wages in equal shares; to those partially dependent amounts proportionate to decedent's contribution to their support. Term of payment limited to 300 weeks. Payments cease on remarriage of widow or dependent widower; or on children attaining the age of 18 years, unless mentally or physically disabled for earning. Wages are to be considered as not above $24 nor less than $10 weekly, no total to exceed $5,000.

IOWA, 1917.

Adm. Sys.—Committees of Arbitration, with the Industrial Commissioner as Chairman; limited appeals to courts. Sec. for Comp.—Employers must insure in approved companies or mutual associations, furnish proof of financial ability, deposit security or contract with employees. Claim for compensation is first lien. If insured is incapable, insurer must settle direct with beneficiary. Employ.—All industries except agriculture and domestic service, clerical and casual, in absence of contrary election by employer. Compulsory as to State and municipalities. Wait.—Two weeks. Med. and Surg.—Reasonable surgical, medical and hospital services, and supplies for first 4 weeks, not exceeding $100; if injury exceptional, an additional $100 may be ordered on application. Reasonable expenses of last sickness, and burial not to exceed $100. Comp. for Dis.—Total (a) Temp.—(b) Part.—(a) 60% of wages, not more than $15 nor less than $6 (unless wages are less than $6, then full wages), for not more than 300 weeks. (b) The same as for temporary disability, to be paid for a period of not more than 400 weeks. Partial. (b) Perm.—(b) Specified Injuries.—60% of average weekly wages for fixed periods, beginning with the date of injury. Payments for total temporary and total permanent disability for fifth, sixth and seventh weeks are 60% of the weekly earnings plus two-thirds of weekly rate of compensation. If disability continues beyond those dates, 60% continues. Lump sum payments may be substituted on approval of the Industrial Commissioner and an order of the court. Death Ben.—To persons wholly dependent, 60% of weekly payment equal to 60% of the wages, but not more than $15 nor less than $6 per week, for 300 weeks. If only partial dependents survive, such a proportion of the above as the amounts contributed by the employee to such partial dependents bear to his annual earnings. If employee was a minor whose earnings were received by the parent, a sum to the parent equal to two-thirds of the amount provided for persons wholly dependent. If the spouse dies during compensation period, unpaid benefits go to other dependents if any; if she remarries and there are no dependent children, payments cease.

KANSAS, 1917

Adm. Sys.—Disputes not settled by agreement may be referred to arbitration, subject to an appeal to the courts. Sec. for Comp.—Lump sums awarded by the court may be secured by order of the court by a bond. Expense of last sickness and of burial, not exceeding $100 for burial. Comp. for Dis.: Total. (a) Temp.—(a) 66⅔% of wages, payable during disability, but not beyond 300 weeks. (b) 66⅔% of wages during such disability, not beyond 400 weeks. Partial. (a) Temp.—(a) For certain specific injuries (mutilations, etc.), 66⅔% of wages during fixed periods. All weekly payments are subject to maximum and minimum of $12 and $6. A lump sum payment may be substituted at the discretion of the Compensation Bureau. Death Ben.—To one dependent, 3⅓% of the wages of the deceased, and for each additional dependent 5% additional, the total not to exceed 60%, payable for not more than 300 weeks. Compensation not to be less than $6 nor more than $12 per week, unless the earnings are less than $6, when full wages are paid. Payments to widows cease on remarriage, to orphans at 18, unless mentally or physically deficient. Provision is made also for education and rehabilitation.

NEW MEXICO, 1917.

Adm. Sys.—District courts. Sec. for Comp.—Employer must file bond or certificate of guarantee, mutual, or other insurance, unless he can satisfy the Judge he is solvent. Employ.—Extra hazardous (enumerated), where four or more are employed, or where work is carried on upon a derrick, scaffolding, pole, or other structure ten or more feet above the surface of the ground; others by election. Wait.—Ten days. Med. and Surg.—Medical care up to $150, during "waiting" period of 10 days. $75 for funeral expenses. Comp. for Total Dis.—Fifty per cent. of earnings for 250 weeks. Compensation is increased 50% if caused by employer's failure to provide safety devices provided by law, and decreased 50% if caused by the employee's failure to observe a statutory regulation concerning safety, or to use a safety device provided. Death Ben.—To a dependent widow or widower, 40% of earnings, 5% additional for each child up to 60%.

There is a special schedule for permanent partial disabilities, ranging from 6 to 150 weeks, and from $6 to $12 per week. Lump sum settlements can be made.

NEW YORK, 1913.

Adm. Sys.—State Department of Labor with limited appeals to the courts. Sec. for Comp.—Employer must give proof of financial ability, or must insure in State fund, or mutual, or stock company. Policies must insure directly to beneficiary. Payments have same preference as unpaid wages. Employ.—Enumerated industries, employers having four or more "workmen or operatives," except farm and domestic service, and employers voluntarily insuring. Wait.—Two weeks, except when disability lasts more than forty-nine days or where permanent partial disability paid from date of accident. Med. and Surg.—Care and treatment until recovery unlimited as to time; costs to be approved by department; $100 for funeral expenses. Comp. for Dis.—Total. Two-thirds of wages during continuance. Partial.—Two-thirds of wage loss. For permanent loss or partial loss of limb or vision or total hearing, two-thirds of wages for fixed period. For facial or head disfigurement an equitable amount not to exceed $3,500. Compensation rate, minimum, $8; maximum, $20 per week. If employee dies, amounts for disability due or remaining payable to dependents. Death Ben.—To a widow or dependent widower alone, 30% of wages of deceased, 10% additional for each child under 18; or if no surviving parent, children under 18 receive 15% each, and dependent parents or grandparents, 25%; brothers or sisters, 15% each; aggregate payments in no case to exceed 66⅔%. Payments to widow or widower cease on death or remarriage, with 2 years lump sum to widow on remarriage; payments to children, brothers and sisters cease at 18 and to parents when dependency ceases. In computing the above death benefits no wages in excess of $125 monthly are considered. The law covers certain occupational diseases. Municipalities are self-insurers, if not insured otherwise. Acceptance of premium estops carrier from denying coverage. Contractors are responsible for sub-contractors. The State fund pays entire expenses and makes its own budget. Failure to insure is punishable by a fine of $500 or prison for one year or both. Awards may be recorded as judgments.

NORTH DAKOTA, 1919.

Adm. and supplies. $100 burial expenses and transportation of bodies of residents of the United States dying away from home station, if relations desire it. Comp. for Dis.—Total—63 1/3% of the monthly pay during continuance of the disability. Partial—66 2/3% of the difference in wage earning capacity due to such disability. Payments are subject to the same maximum and minimum amounts as in case of death. Payments on account of death, or permanent disability, may be computed to a lump sum. Death Ben.—To widow or dependent widower alone, 31% of the monthly wages, with 10% additional for each child, total not to exceed 66 2/3%. To dependent parents, 25% if one, 40% if both are dependent. If there is a widow, widower, or child, the parents' rights are subordinate, and the total awards may not exceed 66 2/3%. Other dependent relatives receive benefits in smaller amounts, subject to claims of foregoing. Payments to widow or widower terminate on death or remarriage, to a child on marriage, reaching eighteen. Payments to other beneficiaries in death cases in no case extend beyond eight years. All payments subject to maximum of $66.67 per month, and minimum of $33.33, unless actual earnings are less, when compensation will equal earnings. If only children survive, one child gets 25%, and each additional child 10%, total not to exceed 66 2/3%.

THE SINGLE TAX.

The following statement of the single tax principle was written by Henry George, Sr.:

We assert as our fundamental principle the self-evident truth enunciated in the Declaration of American Independence, that all men are created equal and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights: We hold that all men are equally entitled to the use and enjoyment of what God has created and of what is gained by the general growth and improvement of the community of which they are a part. Therefore, no one should be permitted to hold natural opportunities without a fair return to all for any special privilege thus accorded to him, and that value which the growth and improvement of the community attaches to land should be taken for the use of the community; that each is entitled to all that his labor produces; therefore, no tax should be levied on the products of labor.

To carry out these principles we are in favor of raising all public revenues for national, State, county, and municipal purposes by a single tax upon land values, irrespective of improvements, and of the abolition of all other forms of direct and indirect taxation.

A TAX ON LAND VALUES.

Since in all our States we now levy some tax on the value of land, the single tax can be instituted by the simple and easy way of abolishing, one after another, all other taxes now levied and commensurately increasing the tax on land values until we draw upon that one source for all expenses of government, the revenue being divided between local government, State government, and the general government as the revenue from direct taxes is now divided between the local and State governments, or by a direct assessment being made by the general government upon the States and paid by them from revenues collected in this manner. The single tax we propose is not a tax on land, and therefore would not fall on the use of land and become a tax on labor.

It is a tax not on land, but on the value of land. Thus it would not fall on all land, but only on valuable land, and on that not in proportion to the use made of it, but in proportion to its value—the premium which the user of land must pay to the owner, either in purchase money or rent, for permission to use valuable land. It would thus be a tax not on the use and improvement of land, but on the ownership of land, taking what would otherwise go to the owner as owner, and not as user.

NO TAX ON IMPROVEMENTS.

In assessments under the single tax all values created by individual use or improvement would be excluded, and the only value taken into consideration would be the value attaching to the bare land, by reason of neighborhood, etc., to be determined by impartial periodical assessments. Thus the farmer would have no more taxes to pay than the speculator who held a similar piece of land idle, and the man who on a city lot erected a valuable building would be taxed no more than the man who held a similar lot vacant. The single tax in short would call upon men to contribute to the public revenues not in proportion to what they produce or accumulate, but in proportion to the value of the natural opportunities they hold. It would compel them to pay just as much for holding land idle as for putting it to its fullest use. The single tax, therefore, would—

1st. Take the weight of taxation off the agricultural districts, where land has little or no value irrespective of improvements, and put it on towns and cities, where bare land rises to a value of millions of dollars per acre.

2d. Dispense with a multiplicity of taxes and a horde of tax-gatherers, simplify government, and greatly reduce its cost.

3d. Do away with the fraud, corruption, and gross inequality inseparable from our present methods of taxation, which allow the rich to escape while they grind the poor. Land cannot be hid or carried off, and its value can be ascertained with greater ease and certainty than any other.

FREEDOM OF TRADE.

4th. Give us with all the world as perfect freedom of trade as now exists between the States of the Union, thus enabling our people to share through free exchanges in all the advantages which nature has given to other countries, or which the peculiar skill of other peoples has enabled them to attain. It would destroy the trusts, monopolies, and corporations which are the outgrowths of the tariff. It would do away with the fines and penalties now levied on any one who improves a farm, erects a house, builds a machine, or in any way adds to the general stock of wealth. It would leave every one free to apply labor or expend capital in production or exchange without fine or restriction, and would leave to each the full product of his exertion.

5th. It would, on the other hand, by taking for public use that value which attaches to land by reason of the growth and improvement of the community, make the holding of land unprofitable to the mere owner and profitable only to the user. It would thus make it impossible for speculators and monopolists to hold natural opportunities unused or only half used, and would throw open to labor the illimitable field of employment which the earth offers to man. It would thus solve the labor problem, do away with involuntary poverty, raise wages in all occupations to the full earnings of labor, make overproduction impossible until all human wants are satisfied, render labor-saving inventions a blessing to all, and cause such an enormous production and such an equitable distribution of wealth as would give to all comfort, leisure, and participation in the advantages of an advancing civilization in securing to each individual equal right to the use of the earth. It is also a proper function of society to maintain and control all public ways for the transportation of persons and property, and the transmission of intelligence; and also to maintain and control all public ways in cities for furnishing water, gas, and all other things that necessarily require the use of such common ways.

The Tariff Act of 1922.

The Fordney-McCumber tariff act was signed by President Harding Sept. 21, 1922, and it went into effect at 12:01 A. M., Sept. 22. It was over twenty months in the making. The Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee began hearings on it Jan. 6, 1921, which continued until Feb. 16, and the bill passed the House July 21, 1921. It rested for eight months and three weeks in the Finance Committee of the Senate, and was reported April 11, 1922, to the Senate with 2,082 amendments. The Senate began consideration of it April 19, and adopted 2,436 amendments. It was passed by the Senate Aug. 19 by a vote of 48 to 25 and was sent to conference at once. The conference report was submitted to the House

Sept. 12 and on the 13th the House sent it back to the Conference Committee by a vote of 177 to 130 (102 Republicans joining with the Democrats) with instructions to eliminate the embargo on dyestuffs and the duty on potash. When submitted again with these changes it was adopted and the bill passed by a vote of 210 to 90 on Sept. 15. The Senate adopted the conference report as amended on Sept. 19 by a vote of 43 to 28.

Treasury experts figure that the new Tariff Act will yield about $400,000,000 a year in revenue, one-half from these four sources: Sugar, $87,000,000; raw wool, $63,000,000; tobacco, $35,000,000; laces and embroideries, $15,000,000. The Underwood-Simmons law yielded last year $308,025,125.17. The Payne-Acheson law brought $318,891,395.86 into the Treasury in 1913, the last year of its operation.

FLEXIBLE TARIFF PROVISIONS.

The power of the President to alter rates of duty is provided for under Title III.—Section 315—reads:

"(a) When the President, after careful investigation, finds that the rates of duty in the Tariff of 1922 do not in fact equalize the costs of production of any article or articles between the United States and the principal competing foreign country, he shall determine the rates that will so equalize such difference, and 30 days after the proclamation is made the rates of duty proposed by him shall be in effect on the articles named in the proclamation in lieu of the rates of duty specified in the Tariff of 1922. These rates of duty are to be based upon foreign valuation. He cannot increase or decrease any rate of duty more than 50 per centum of the amount thereof as provided in the Tariff of 1922.

"(b) When the increase or decrease of 50 per centum in the rates of duty based upon foreign valuation do not equalize the difference in the cost of production between the United States and the principal competing foreign country, then the President shall, after due investigation, ascertain the American selling price of the competing article or articles and by proclamation may announce new rates of duty that will equalize the costs of production between the United States and the principal competing foreign country on the articles involved in the inquiry. Such rates of duty, when based upon the American selling price of imported articles, shall not decrease the rates of duty in the Tariff of 1922 by more than 50 per centum of such rates, and shall in no case increase them. The rates based upon the American selling price are to be effective 15 days from the date of the proclamation.

"(c) Differences in the costs of production at home and abroad shall be ascertained by giving due weight to differences in conditions of production, wages, costs of materials, hours of labor, and other items involved in production; differences in the wholesale selling prices in this country of similar domestic and foreign articles; subsidies or other assistance foreign governments give their producers; and any other advantages or disadvantages in competition."

The President can make no proclamation of changes of rates under the flexible tariff provisions until after the United States Tariff Commission has investigated the differences of cost of production at home and abroad.

The investigation by the Tariff Commission is required to be very thorough.

The President must determine in fact that the differences in cost of production really exist or that unfair practices exist, before he can take action. The Tariff Commission shall hold public hearings at which parties interested may be present and heard, and is authorized to make proper rules and regulations for the holding of such hearings.

If, subsequent to any proclamation or a change in rates, the President finds that the costs of production at home and abroad have changed so as to exist, he may modify or terminate the rates formerly proclaimed by him.

The President cannot transfer a dutiable article to the free list, or an article on the free list to the dutiable list, or substitute an ad valorem rate for a specific rate, or a specific rate for an ad valorem rate. Nor can he increase a rate beyond the maximum ad valorem rate as provided in the Tariff of 1922, when such act declares that the combined specific and ad valorem rates of duty shall not exceed a specified maximum ad valorem. For instance, if the act says that the rate on any article shall be 20 cents per pound and 40 per centum ad valorem, but that in no case shall the total duty collected be more than 50 per centum ad valorem, the President cannot announce new rates that would increase the total duty beyond the maximum of 50 per centum ad valorem.

Section 316 authorizes the President to investigate unfair methods of competition and unfair acts of importation, and to declare the same to be unlawful. The Tariff Commission is authorized to report upon such methods and acts, and its findings are to be conclusive if supported by evidence; the offending parties may be given a rehearing by the Commission; appeal may be taken to the United States Court of Customs Appeals and its decision shall be final, except that the subject may be reviewed by the United States Supreme Court. In such cases, the President shall increase the duties upon the article or articles in question by not less than 10 per centum ad valorem or more than 50 per centum ad valorem; or the articles may be excluded from entry into the United States. The President's decision is conclusive, but he can modify it thereafter as the facts may warrant.

RETALIATORY PROVISIONS.

Section 317 provides that when any foreign country discriminates against articles wholly or in part the product or products of this country, by imposing, directly or indirectly, by any unreasonable charge, fee, duty, exaction, regulation or limitation, or other method of discrimination and the commerce of them, the President is authorized in fact that said foreign country has done and continues so to do, and that the American public interest will be served thereby, he shall by proclamation declare such new and additional rates of duty, as will offset the burdens placed upon our commerce, not exceeding 50 per centum ad valorem on the commodities from the offending country or countries named in his proclamation; or he may by proclamation exclude the articles named. The provisions of a proclamation become effective 30 days after it is made. It is the duty of the Tariff Commission to continually make investigation concerning the welfare of our commerce abroad, and to bring to the attention of the President any discrimination.

In order to give prompt effect to the flexible tariff and retaliatory provisions of the act, the Tariff Commission, under Section 318 is directed to obtain and compile and have ready for prompt use, the conversion costs; costs of production; import costs; growers', manufacturers' or producers' selling prices at home and in the manufacturing, producing and growing centres of foreign countries, which export to the United States competitive articles. This will afford the President, the Congress and the country the information necessary for immediate and effective action.

TWELVE-MILE LIMIT NOW.

The act extends the zone of search and seizure at sea from the former three-mile extent to twelve miles, in this section:

"Sec. 581.—Boarding Vessels.—Officers of the customs or of the coast guard, and agents or other persons authorized by the Secretary of the Treasury, or appointed for that purpose in writing by a collector, may at any time go on board of any vessel or vehicle at any place in the United States or within four leagues of the coast of the United States, without as well as within their respective districts, to examine the manifest and to inspect, search, and examine the vessel or vehicle, and every part thereof, and any person, trunk or package on board, and to this end to hail and stop such vessel or vehicle, if under way, and use all necessary force to compel compliance, and if it shall appear that any breach or violation of the laws of the United States has been committed, wherever or in consequence of which such vessel or vehicle, or the merchandise, or any part thereof, on board of or imported by such vessel or vehicle is liable to forfeiture, it shall be the duty of such officer to make seizure of the same, and to arrest or, in case of escape or attempted escape, to pursue and arrest any person engaged in such breach or violation.

Officers of the Department of Commerce and other persons authorized by such department may go on board of any vessel at any place in the United States or within four leagues of the coast of the United States and halt, stop, and board such vessels in the enforcement of the navigation laws and arrest or, in case of escape or attempted escape, pursue and arrest any person engaged in the breach or violation of the navigation laws."

The more important rates in the tariff law are given below, with the corresponding rates in the Payne-Aldrich (Republican) tariff law of 1911, and in the Underwood (Democratic) law of 1914:

THE CONSTITUTION.

PREAMBLE.

WE, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this CONSTITUTION for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I.

Section 1—(Legislative powers; in whom vested.)

All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

Section 2—(House of Representatives, how and by whom chosen. Qualifications of a Representative. Representatives and direct taxes, how apportioned. Enumeration. Vacancies to be filled. Power of choosing officers, and of impeachment.)

1. The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States, and the electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislature.

2. No person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

3. Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each State shall have at least one Representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose 3; Massachusetts, 8; Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, 1; Connecticut, 5; New York, 6; New Jersey, 4; Pennsylvania, 8; Delaware, 1; Maryland, 6; Virginia, 10; North Carolina, 5; South Carolina, 5; and Georgia 3.*

4. When vacancies happen in the representation from any State, the Executive Authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

5. The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers, and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

Section 3—(Senators, how and by whom chosen. How classified. State Executive, when to make temporary appointments, in case, etc. Qualifications of a Senator. President of the Senate, his right to vote. President pro tem., and other officers of the Senate, how chosen. Power to try impeachments. When President is tried, Chief Justice to preside. Sentence.)

1. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote.

2. Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen by resignation, or otherwise, during the recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary appointment until the next meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

3. No person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.

4. The Vice-President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.

5. The Senate shall choose their other officers, and also a President pro tempore, in the absence of the Vice-President, or when he shall exercise the office of President of the United States.

6. The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

7. Judgment of cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust, or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment, and punishment, according to law.

Section 4—(Times, etc., of holding elections, how prescribed. One Session in each year.)

1. The times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to places of choosing Senators.

2. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Section 5—(Membership. Quorum. Adjournments. Rules. Power to punish or expel. Journal. Time of adjournments, how limited, etc.)

1. Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each House may provide.

2. Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and with the concurrence of two-thirds expel a member.

3. Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either House on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the Journal.

4. Neither House, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

Section 6—(Compensation. Privileges. Disqualification in certain cases.)

1. The Senators and Representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall in all cases, except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either House they shall not be questioned in any other place.

2. No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office.

"Section 7—(House to originate all revenue bills. Veto. Bill may be passed by two-thirds of each House, notwithstanding, etc. Bill, not returned in ten days, to become a law. Provisions as to orders, concurrent resolutions, etc.)

1. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

2. Every bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the President of the United States; if he approve, he shall sign it, but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their Journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two-thirds of that House shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other House by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved by two-thirds of that House it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the Journal of each House respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law.

3. Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the same shall take effect shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the Senate and the House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

Section 8—(Powers of Congress.)

1. The Congress shall have power: To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts, and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States.

2. To borrow money on the credit of the United States.

3. To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes.

4. To establish a uniform rule of naturalization and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States.

5. To coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures.

6. To provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States.

7. To establish post-offices and post-roads.

8. To promote the progress of science and useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive rights to their respective writings and discoveries.

9. To constitute tribunals inferior to the Supreme Court.

10. To define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offences against the law of nations.

11. To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water.

12. To raise and support armies, but no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years.

13. To provide and maintain a navy.

14. To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces.

15. To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions.

16. To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the States respectively the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress.

17. To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by provision of particular States and the acceptance of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the Legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dry-docks, and other needful buildings.

18. To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

Section 9—(Provision as to migration or importation of certain persons. Habeas Corpus. Bills of attainder, etc. Taxes, how apportioned. No export duty. No commercial preference. Money, how drawn from treasury, etc. No titular nobility. Officers not to receive presents, etc.)

1. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty; but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

2. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it.

3. No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed.

4. No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.

5. No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any State.

6. No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one State over those of another, nor shall vessels bound to or from one State be obliged to enter, clear, or pay duties in another.

7. No money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

8. No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States. And no person holding any office of profit or trust under them shall, without the consent of the Congress, accept of any present, emolument, office, or title of any kind whatever from any king, prince, or foreign state.

Section 10—(States prohibited from the exercise of certain powers.)

1. No State shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation, grant letters of marque and reprisal, coin money, emit bills of credit, make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts, pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or grant any title of nobility.

2. No State shall, without the consent of the Congress, lay any impost or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws, and the net produce of all duties and imposts, laid by any State on imports or exports, shall be for the use of the Treasury of the United States; and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the Congress.

3. No State shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any duty of tonnage, keep troops or ships of war in time of peace, enter into agreement or compact with another State, or with a foreign power, or engage in war, unless actually invaded, or in such imminent danger as will not admit of delay.

ARTICLE II.

Section 1—(President; his term of office. Electors of President; number and how appointed. Electors to vote on same day. Qualification of President. On whom his duties devolve in case of his removal, death, etc. President's compensation. His oath of office.)

1. The Executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the Vice-President, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows:

2. Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress; but no Senator or Representative or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States shall be appointed an elector.

3. The electors shall meet in their respective States and vote by ballot for two persons, of whom one at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same State with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and of the number of votes for each, which list they shall sign and certify and transmit, sealed to the seat of the Government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed, and if there be more than one who have such a majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the House of Representatives shall immediately choose by ballot one of them for President; and if no person have a majority, then from the five highest on the list the said House shall in like manner choose the President. But in choosing the President, the vote shall be taken by States, the representation from each State having one vote. A quorum, for this purpose, shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States, and a majority of all the States shall be necessary to a choice. In every case, after the choice of the President, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors shall be the Vice-President. But if there should remain two or more who have equal vote, the Senate shall choose from them by ballot the Vice-President.*

4. The Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

5. No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

6. In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice-President, and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the President and Vice-President, declaring what officer shall act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed or a President shall be elected.

7. The President shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them.

8. Before he enter on the execution of his office he shall take the following oath or affirmation:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Section 2—(President to be Commander-in-Chief. He may require opinions of Cabinet Officers, etc., may pardon, Treaty-making power. Nomination of certain officers. When President may fill vacancies.)

1. The President shall be Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several States when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offences against the United States except in cases of impeachment.

2. He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate shall appoint ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the Supreme Court, and all other officers of the United States whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law, but the Congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

3. The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate by granting commissions, which shall expire at the end of their next session.

Section 3—(President shall communicate to Congress. He may convene and adjourn Congress, in case of disagreement, etc. Shall receive ambassadors, execute laws, and commission officers.)

He shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them, and in case of disagreement between them with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers; he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

Section 4—(All civil offices forfeited for certain crimes.)

The President, Vice-President, and all civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for and conviction of treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III.

Section 1—(Judicial powers. Tenure. Compensation.)

The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The judges, both of the Supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall at stated times receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

Section 2—(Judicial power; to what cases it extends. Original jurisdiction of Supreme Court. Appellate. Trial by jury, etc. Trial, where.)

1. The judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more States, between a State and citizens of another State, between citizens of different States, between citizens of the same State claiming land under grants of different States, and between a State or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens, or subjects.

2. In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers, and consuls, and those in which a State shall be party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction both as to law and fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make.

3. The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury, and such trial shall be held in the State where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any State the trial shall be at such place or places as the Congress may by law have directed.

Section 3—(Treason defined. Proof of. Punishment of.)

1. Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

2. The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture except during the life of the person attained.

ARTICLE IV.

Section 1—(Each State to give credit to the public acts, etc., of every other State.)

Full faith and credit shall be given in each State to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other State. And the Congress may by general laws prescribe the manner in which such acts, records, and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

Section 2—(Privileges of citizens of each State. Fugitives from justice to be delivered up. Persons held to service having escaped, to be delivered up.)

1. The citizens of each State shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States.

2. A person charged in any State with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice, and be found in another State, shall, on demand of the

* This clause is superseded by Article XII., Amendments.

Executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime.

3. No person held to service or labor in one State, under the laws thereof, escaping into another shall, in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due.

Section 3.—(Admission of new States. Power of Congress over territory and other property.)
1. New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new State shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other State, nor any State be formed by the junction of two or more States, or parts of States, without the consent of the Legislatures of the States concerned, as well as of the Congress.

2. The Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

Section 4.—(Republican form of government guaranteed. Each State to be protected.)
The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion, and, on application of the Legislature, or of the Executive (when the Legislature cannot be convened), against domestic violence.

ARTICLE V.

(Constitution; how amended. Proviso.)

The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this Constitution, or, on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of the several States, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and pur-

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

The following amendments to the Constitution, Articles I. to X. inclusive, were proposed at the First Session of the First Congress, begun and held at the City of New York, on Wednesday, March 4, 1789, and were adopted by the necessary number of States. The original proposal of the ten amendments was preceded by this preamble and resolution:

"The conventions of a number of the States having, at the time of their adopting the Constitution, expressed a desire, in order to prevent misconstruction or abuse of its powers, that further declaratory and restrictive clauses should be added, and as extending the ground of public confidence in the Government will best insure the beneficent ends of its institution:

"Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled, two-thirds of both Houses concurring, that the following articles be proposed to the Legislatures of the several States, as amendments to the Constitution of the United States; all or any of which articles, when ratified by three-fourths of the said Legislatures, to be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of the said Constitution, namely:

THE TEN ORIGINAL AMENDMENTS.

ARTICLE I.

Religious Establishment Prohibited.
Freedom of Speech, of the Press, and Right to Petition.

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

ARTICLE II.

Right to Keep and Bear Arms.

A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III.

No Soldier to Be Quartered in Any House, Unless, Etc.

No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV.

Right of Search and Seizure Regulated.

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

ARTICLE V.

Provisions Concerning Prosecution,
Trial and Punishment.—Private Property Not to Be Taken for Public Use, Without Compensation.

No person shall be held to answer for a capital or other infamous crime unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service, in time of war or public danger; nor poses, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress; provided that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the Ninth Section of the First Article; and that no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate.

ARTICLE VI.

(Certain debts, etc., declared valid. Supremacy of Constitution, treaties, and laws of the United States. Oath to support Constitution, by whom taken. No religious test.)

1. All debts contracted and engagements entered into before the adoption of this Constitution shall be as valid against the United States under this Constitution as under the Confederation.

2. This Constitution and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land, and the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.

3. The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several State Legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support this Constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII.

(What ratification shall establish Constitution.)

The ratification of the Conventions of nine States shall be sufficient for the establishment of this Constitution between the States so ratifying the same.

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI.

Right to Speedy Trial, Witnesses, Etc.

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which districts shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

ARTICLE VII.

Right of Trial by Jury.

In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States than according to the rules of the common law.

ARTICLE VIII.

Excessive Bail or Fines and Cruel Punishments Prohibited.

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

ARTICLE IX.

Rule of Construction of Constitution.

The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE X.

Rights of States Under Constitution.

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

The following amendment was proposed to the Legis- atures of the several States by the Third Congress on the 5th of March, 1794, and was declared to have been ratified in a message from the President to Congress, dated Jan. 8, 1795.

ARTICLE XI. Judicial Powers Construed.

The judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States, by citizens of another State, or by citizens or subjects of any foreign state.

The following amendment was proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by the Eighth Congress on the 12th of December, 1803, and was declared to have been ratified in a proclamation by the Secretary of State, dated September 25, 1804. It was ratified by all the States except Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire.

ARTICLE XII. Manner of Choosing President and Vice-President.

The Electors shall meet in their respective States, and vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, one of whom at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same State with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as President, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as Vice-President; and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as President, and of all persons voted for as Vice-President, and of the number of votes for each, which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit, sealed, to the seat of the Government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate; the President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates and the votes shall then be counted; the person having the greatest number of votes for President shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest number, not exceeding three, on the list of those voted for as President, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by States, the representation from each State having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States, and a majority of all the States shall be necessary to a choice. And if the House of Representatives shall not choose a President, whenever the rights of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the Vice-President shall act as President, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the President. The person having the greatest number of votes as Vice-President shall be the Vice-President if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list the Senate shall choose the Vice-President; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice. But no person constitutionally ineligible to the office of President shall be eligible to that of Vice-President of the United States.

The following amendment was proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by the Thirty-eighth Congress on the 1st of February, 1865, and was declared to have been ratified in a proclamation by the Secretary of State dated December 13, 1865. It was rejected by Delaware and Kentucky; was conditionally ratified by Alabama and Mississippi; and Texas took no action.

ARTICLE XIII. Slavery Abolished.

1. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

The following, popularly known as the Reconstruction Amendment, was proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by the Thirty-ninth Congress on the 16th of June, 1866, and was declared to have been ratified in a proclamation by the Secretary of State, dated July 28, 1868. The amendment got the support of 23 Northern States; it was rejected by Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, and 10 Southern States. California took no action. Subsequently it was ratified by the 10 Southern States.

ARTICLE XIV. Citizenship Rights Not to Be Abridged.

1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Apportionment of Representatives in Congress.

2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of Electors for President and Vice-President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male members of such State, being of twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

Power of Congress to Remove Disabilities of United States Officials for Rebellion.

3. No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or Elector of President and Vice-President, who, having held any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath, as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid and comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may, by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

What Public Debts Are Valid.

4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection and rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations, and claims shall be held illegal and void.

5. The Congress shall have power to enforce by appropriate legislation the provisions of this article.

The following amendment was proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by the Fortieth Congress on the 27th of February, 1869, and was declared to have been ratified in a proclamation by the Secretary of State, dated March 30, 1870. It was not acted on by Tennessee; it was rejected by California, Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, and Oregon; ratified by the remaining 30 States. New York rescinded its ratification January 6, 1870. New Jersey rejected it in 1870, but ratified it in 1871.

ARTICLE XV.

Equal Rights for White and Colored Citizens.

1. The right of the citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

2. The Congress shall have power to enforce the provisions of this article by appropriate legislation.

The following amendment was proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by the Sixty-first Congress on the 12th day of July, 1909, and was declared to have been ratified in a proclamation by the Secretary of State, dated February 25, 1913. The income tax amendment was ratified by all the States except Connecticut, Florida, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, and Virginia.

ARTICLE XVI.

Income Taxes Authorized.

The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration.

The following amendment was proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by the Sixty-second Congress on the 16th day of May, 1912, and was declared to have been ratified in a proclamation by the Secretary of State, dated May 31, 1913. It got the vote of all the States except Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Utah, and Virginia.

ARTICLE XVII.

United States Senators to Be Elected by Direct Popular Vote.

1. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislatures.

Vacancies in Senatorships, When Governor May Fill by Appointment.

2. When vacancies happen in the representation of any State in the Senate, the executive authority of such State shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, That the Legislature of any State may empower the Executive thereof to make temporary appointment until the people fill the vacancies by election as the Legislature may direct.

3. This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution.

The following amendment was proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by the Sixty-fifth Congress, December 13, 1917; and on January 29, 1919, the United States Secretary of State proclaimed its adoption by 36 States, and declared it in effect on January 16, 1920.

Early in 1920, the validity of the Eighteenth Amendment was upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States, in suits to void, brought by the States of Rhode Island and New Jersey, and by various brewers and distillers.

ARTICLE XVIII.*Liquor Prohibition Amendment.

1. After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

2. The Congress and the several States shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the Legislatures of the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

The following amendment was proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by the Sixty-fifth Congress, having been adopted by the House of Representatives, May 21, 1919, and by the Senate, June 4, 1919. On August 26, 1920, the United States Secretary of State proclaimed it in effect, having been adopted (June 10, 1919-August 18, 1920), by three-quarters of the States. The Tennessee House, August 31, rescinded its ratification, 47 to 24.

ARTICLE XIX.*Giving Nation-Wide Suffrage to Women.

1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

2. Congress shall have power, by appropriate legislation, to enforce the provisions of this article.

THE FEDERAL SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT.

The United States House of Representatives, in January, 1918, adopted a resolution submitting a Federal Suffrage Amendment to the States, but the United States Senate refused its consent. The House, May 21, 1919, readopted the resolution; and the Senate adopted it June 4, 1919. Then the resolution went to the Legislatures of the States, thirty-six of which—the necessary three-quarters of all—adopted Federal Suffrage for women in the following order:

THE WHITE HOUSE.

The site was selected by President Washington and Major Peter Charles L'Enfant when they laid out Washington, 1791; architect, James Hoban of Dublin; plans chosen by competition, closed July 15, 1792. Cornerstone laid October 13, 1792. First occupation—President and Mrs. John Adams, November, 1800. Burned by British in 1814. Mr. Hoban superintended the restoration. First White House appropriation from the U.S. Treasury, April 24, 1800, $15,000, for furniture. The first appropriation for repairs, $15,000, March 3, 1807. Congress appropriated $8,137 for enlarging "the offices west of the President's House," 1819. South Portico finished 1823; cost $19,000. East Room finished and furnished by appropriation made in 1828. North Portico added; cost $24,769.25, 1829. Original plans always followed. First heated by gas, 1848; system of heating and ventilation installed, 1853.

A thorough overhauling and restoration was made under direction of New York architects, McKim, Mead & White, during incumbency of President Roosevelt June 20-September 29, 1902. Congress appropriated in all $475,445; the architects returning an unexpended balance of $7,906.10.

The principal apartments in the White House are officially designated: the East Room, Red Room, Blue Room, Green Room, State Dining Room, Family Dining Room, and Usher's Lobby. There are a Family Floor, a main stairway, and a private staircase and elevator.

The dimensions of the White House, in 1840, were length or frontage, 170 feet; depth or width, 86 feet. The mansion was built of gray sandstone, which was painted white after the fire, hence the name "the White House." Architect Hoban had modelled the structure after the palace of the Duke of Leinster. The original cost was defrayed out of the sale of lands donated by Maryland and Virginia.

The President's Office Building is located at the West of the White House. It was built and occupied in 1902, and was enlarged later. The building contains the President's Room, the Cabinet Room, a room for the President's Secretary, a telegraph room, a press room, and rooms for the clerical force.

NOTES.—Twelve amendments were proposed in 1789, of which New York ratified 11, but only 10 were adopted by three-fourths of the States. An attempt was made to have the amendments ratified by resolution, but the motion failed, 49 to 2.

Date received in N. Y. means date on which received by the Legislature. On February 4, 1818, the President reported to Congress that 12 States had ratified the amendment forbidding titles, while 3 had rejected it and 2 were undecided.

A resolution to ratify the amendment of 1865 passed the Senate on February 2, and the Assembly on February 3, 1865, in the Senate, 18 to 8, and in the Assembly, 72 to 40.

The fourteenth amendment was the first ratified in New York by resolution. Others were ratified by statute.

NATIONAL STATUARY HALL.

The National Hall of Statuary, formerly a corridor of the United States House of Representatives in the Capitol at Washington, was established by Congress July 2, 1864. Each State was invited to contribute marble or bronze statues of her two most distinguished deceased citizens. The following is a list of statues presented by the States and the dates of the works:

Works of art in the Capitol have been acquired by gift, from private individuals and from States.

A group containing bust portraits of Lucretia Mott, Susan B. Anthony, and Elizabeth Cady Stanton was placed in the crypt of the Capitol in February, 1921.

SALARY OF THE PRESIDENT.

The salary of the President of the United States was the cause of discussion in the First Congress, in view of the fact that the Constitution declared that the President should receive compensation for his services. Washington had notified his fellow citizens that he desired no salary. The limits suggested in Congress ranged from $15,000 to $70,000. The salary was finally placed at $25,000, and this remained the compensation until President

Grant's second term (March 3, 1873), when it was increased to $50,000. Chapter 2918 of the Laws of the Second Session of the Fifty-ninth Congress, approved March 4, 1907, appropriated "for travelling expenses of the President of the United States, to be expended at his discretion and accounted for by his certificate solely, $25,000." In the Second Session of the Sixtieth Congress the President's salary was fixed at $75,000 a year.

For years 1800 to 1850 the figures for interest-bearing debt include the total public debt as of January 1.

Interest charges and interest per capita are for fiscal years.

REDUCTION IN THE UNITED STATES PUBLIC DEBT.

In a statement on Nov. 3 dealing with the status of the debt of the United States on Oct. 31, 1922, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon shows that except for the temporary increase of $265,000,000 in the debt during October, uninterrupted progress has been made in reducing the debt from the peak registered on Aug. 31, 1919, viz., $26,596,701,648. The following is Secretary Mellon's statement:

"The preliminary statement of the public debt on Oct. 31, 1922, shows the results of the refunding issue of Treasury bonds on Oct. 16, 1922, and at the same time emphasizes the progress which has been made by the Treasury in the orderly funding and gradual liquidation of the public debt, particularly the short-dated debt.

"Ever since the war debt reached its peak, on Aug. 31, 1919, the Treasury has made almost uninterrupted progress in its reduction, though, necessarily, there are fluctuations from time to time as a result of borrowings for refunding purposes and temporary deficiencies in the current revenues. This was the case, for example, in October, when there was a temporary increase in the public debt as a result of the refunding operations on Oct. 16 and the excess of current expenditures, arising chiefly from heavy payments of interest on the public debt.

"Income and profits taxes, which constitute the Government's heaviest receipts, are paid quarterly, in March, June, September and December of each year, while interest payments, which constitute the largest single item of Government expense, fall chiefly in March, April, May, June, September, October, November, December. In these circumstances, one month's operations necessarily give a distorted picture, and it takes at least a full quarter, or even a full year, in order to get a correct view of the Government's finances.

"The following table shows the gross public debt (cents omitted) on the basis of daily Treasury statements for each quarter from Aug. 31, 1919, when the debt reached its peak, to Oct. 31, 1922, and indicates how regularly the debt reduction has progressed:

"The progress made in dealing with the short-dated debt has been still more striking. On April 30, 1921, when the Treasury first announced its refunding program, there was over $7,500,000,000 of debt maturing before the end of the present fiscal year. By Oct. 31, 1922, that is to say, eighteen months later, about $4,500,000,000 had already been retired or refunded, leaving about $3,000,000,000 to be refinanced during the balance of the year.

"Treasury certificates outstanding all have tax maturities, and the total is now less than $1,000,000,000, the lowest figure for several years back.

"As for the Dec. 15 maturities of certificates and called Victory notes, the refunding operations have already reduced them to manageable proportions, and there will be further retirements between now and Dec. 15 out of existing Treasury balances, pursuant to general offers already made to redeem called Victory notes and Dec. 15 certificates before maturity.

"Against its December maturities, the Treasury will receive, it is estimated, about $275,000,000 in income and profits taxes, which will still further reduce the amount requiring to be refunded. There is every assurance that the refunding which remains to be accomplished will be completed without strain on the country's financial machinery and without disturbance of the market for outstanding securities."

The United States Treasury Department on Oct. 16, 1922, offered for public subscription 4½ per cent. United States Treasury bonds of 1947-52. The cash subscriptions totaled $1,399,851,900. Subscriptions aggregating $252,060,900 were also received in the form of exchanges of 4½ per cent. Victory notes and Dec. 15 Treasury certificates, making the total subscription for the offering in excess of $1,651,900,000. The exchange subscriptions were allotted in full. All cash subscriptions for amounts not exceeding $10,000 were also allotted in full. The others were scaled; subscriptions for over $10,000 but not exceeding $50,000, 40 per cent.; over $50,000 but not exceeding $100,000, 30 per cent.; over $100,000 but not exceeding $500,000, 20 per cent.; over $500,000 but not exceeding $1,000,000, 15 per cent.; over $1,000,000, 10 per cent.

The successful consummation of this large financial operation marks the second phase in the execution of the loan refunding policy inaugurated in 1921 by the present Administration. The first phase may be said to cover the period from April 30, 1921, when the Treasury first announced its refunding program to the close of September of the present year, during which the short-term debt, i. e., the debt maturing within the next two years from the beginning of the period, was reduced from about $7,500,000,000 to about $3,500,000,000 through refunding of about $2,743,000,000 into Treasury notes, with maturities spread over the period from June 15, 1924, to Sept. 15, 1926, and the retirement of the balance. The second phase of the refunding program may be said to have been entered with the placing of the present long-term refunding loan, which matures in October, 1952, but may be redeemed on or after Oct. 15, 1947, on four months' notice.

In the foregoing table the figures for 1890 to 1908, inclusive, but not subsequently, include the number of depositors and the amount of deposits in the State banks of Illinois having savings departments but not the number of such banks, by reason of the fact that general returns from these institutions are incorporated in State banks' returns.

Amount of surtax is the total of the instalments for the income considered.

In computing the tax in the above chart a personal exemption of $2,500 is allowed on incomes not in excess of $5,000. On incomes of $6,000 and over, $2,000 is allowed.

Many changes are made in the former law by this act, among which are the repeal of the excess-profits tax and the taxes on transportation, as of Jan. 1, 1922, and the reduction of the surtax to 50 per centum on individual income in excess of $200,000 for the year 1922 and thereafter.

For 1922 and thereafter an individual deriving gains from the sale or exchange of capital assets, may elect to have the gains taxed at the rate of 12½ per cent., the remainder of his net income being taxed in the usual manner for normal tax and surtax. If he elects to be so taxed, the total tax shall not be less than 12½ per cent. of the total net income.

For 1922 and thereafter, corporations are subject to income tax at the rate of 12½ per cent.

"Bell Connected Stations" are independently owned, but are connected with Bell lines and exchanges for the interchange of local and long distance service. "Average Daily Messages" represents the number of messages during the year preceding the Jan. 1 date shown, and includes local, toll and long distance messages. Figures for employees, miles of wire, and average daily messages do not include statistics for the independently owned companies which connect with the Bell Telephone System.

Under date of 1919, figures for employees are as of July 31, 1918; figures for messages are for the first seven months of 1918. Under date of 1920, figures for messages are for the last five months of 1919. In the calendar year, 1915 and thereafter, all incomplete messages were rigidly excluded from the statistics.

The total number of telephones, without regard to ownership, in use in the United States on Jan. 1, 1922, was 13,847,752—one to every eight persons or every two families.

BEAUMONT AND PORT ARTHUR SHIP CHANNEL.

(By Harvey W. Gilbert, member Waterway Committee.)

The Beaumont and Port Arthur ship channel has now become one of the greatest in the United States, both in value of exports and imports, as well as tonnage produced. The imports consist mainly of Mexican petroleum and a small amount of sisal. The first shipping done in this district was through the port of Sabine Pass, which was a natural outlet for the Neches and Sabine Rivers which passed into Sabine Lake and emptied into the Gulf through Sabine Pass.

Seven years ago the channel from Port Arthur to Beaumont was completed, the citizens of Jefferson County putting up one-half of the money to dig this channel, and the U. S. Government furnishing the other half, making a complete waterway from the Gulf up as far as Beaumont, thirty miles inland. The waterway has become the world's greatest oil refining centre.

The bulk of the lumber from the great pine regions of Eastern Texas, and Western Louisiana, as well as the sulphur production of Louisiana, use this waterway. Most of the petroleum from Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas, is run through the Beaumont refineries. The late John W. Gates settled at and developed Port Arthur.

Approximately 300,000 barrels of petroleum are handled daily on the channel.

TONNAGE EXPLAINED.

(By the U. S. Shipping Board.)

Deadweight Tonnage expresses the number of tons of 2,240 pounds that a vessel can transport of cargo, stores and bunker fuel. It is the difference between the number of tons of water a vessel displaces "light" and the number of tons it displaces when submerged to the "load water line." Deadweight tonnage is used interchangeably with deadweight carrying capacity. A vessel's capacity for weight cargo is less than its total deadweight tonnage.

Cargo Tonnage is either "weight" or "measurement." The weight ton in the United States and in British countries is the English long or gross ton of 2,240 pounds. In France and other countries having the metric system a weight ton is 2,204.6 pounds. A "measurement" ton is usually 40 cubic feet, but in some instances a larger number of cubic feet is taken for a ton. Most ocean package freight is taken at weight or measurement (W/M), ship's option.

Gross Tonnage applies to vessels, not to cargo. It is determined by dividing by 100 the contents, in cubic feet, of the vessel's closed-in spaces. A vessel ton is 100 cubic feet. The register of a vessel states both gross and net tonnage.

Net Tonnage is a vessel's gross tonnage minus deductions of space occupied by accommodations for crew, for machinery for navigation, by the engine room and fuel. A vessel's net tonnage expresses the space available for the accommodation of passengers and the stowage of cargo. A ton of cargo, in most instances, occupies less than 100 cubic feet; hence the vessel's cargo tonnage may exceed its net tonnage, and, indeed, the tonnage of cargo carried is usually greater than the gross tonnage.

Displacement of a vessel is the weight, in tons of 2,240 pounds, of the vessel and its contents. Displacement "light" is the weight of the vessel without stores, bunker fuel, or cargo. Displacement "loaded" is the weight of the vessel, plus cargo, fuel, and stores.

For a modern freight steamer the following relative tonnage figures would ordinarily be approximately correct: net tonnage, 4,000; gross tonnage, 6,000; deadweight carrying capacity, 10,000; displacement loaded, about 13,350.

Interior includes Col., Ind., Iowa, Ky., Minn., Omaha, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Tenn., Utah, and Nev.

The extension of rail and water routes to the East, West and South coasts of the United States has transferred the export trade to the great coast ports. The import figures at the Interior points mostly relate to parcel post and other mail, and express, matter.

OTHER NATIONALITIES, NOT INCLUDED IN TABLE.

Number of farmers born in—Scotland, 7,605; Wales, 2,472; Holland, 15,589; Switzerland, 13,051; France, 6,119; Poland, 17,352; Finland, 14,988; Roumania, 693; Greece, 846; Portugal, 4,254; other European countries not in the table, 20,107; Mexico, 12,142; all other countries, 7,765.

Note by the Census Bureau.—The foreign countries which contributed the largest numbers to the total of 581,068 foreign-born white farmers in the United States as reported for 1920, were as follows: Germany, 140,667; Sweden, 60,461; Norway, 51,599; Canada, 48,668; Russia, 32,388; Austria, 30,172; England, 26,614; and Denmark, 25,565.

It should be noted that this order by no means corresponds to the order in which the various foreign countries have contributed to the total population of the United States.

The immigrants from certain countries, notably Italy, Poland, and Ireland, have gone chiefly into pursuits other than agricultural.

FOREIGN-BORN WHITE FARMERS IN 1910.

The number of foreign-born white farmers in the United States in 1910, by the Federal Census of that year, by chief races, was as follows: Germany, 221,800; Sweden, 67,453; Canada, 61,878; Norway, 59,742; England, 39,728; Ireland, 33,480; Austria, 33,336; Denmark, 28,375; Russia, 25,788; Switzerland, 14,333; Holland, 13,790; Italy, 10,614; Scotland, 10,220; Poland, 7,228; France, 5,832; Wales, 4,110; Hungary, 3,827.

FARM MIGRATIONS TO AND FROM CANADA.

The number of Canadian farmers in the United States in 1920 (48,668) was offset, approximately, by the number of farmers born in the United States who are now cultivating land in Canada. This migration across the international border is largely in the Northwest, and is due to the gradual movement north of the wheat-growing lands. There are in the eastern provinces of the Dominion comparatively few farmers who were born in the United States, the migration having been chiefly by the French Canadians into this country, where they engaged in the intensive cultivation of small tracts in New England.

The average value of land and buildings per acre of land in farms in the United States in 1920 was $69.38, as compared with $39.90 in 1910.

The average value of land and buildings per farm for the United States as a whole in 1920 was $10,284, as compared with $5,471 in 1910.

In the census reports a distinction is made between farmers operating their own land only and farmers who hire some land in addition to that which they own. The former are classified as "full owners" and the latter as "part owners." The value of farms operated by full owners in 1920 was $30,717,493,565, and of those operated by part owners, $9,166,810,001. The corresponding figures for 1910 were: Full owners, $17,310,639,016, and part owners, $5,556,295,262.

ANNUAL LOSS IN THE UNITED STATES CAUSED BY INSECTS.

FARM CROPS—Cereals, $430,204,600; hay, $116,230,500; cotton, $140,631,100; tobacco, $16,900,800; vegetables, $199,412,600; sugar crops, $8,436,800; fruits, $141,264,300; farm-forest products, $22,138,900; other crops, $29,649,700; farm crop total, $1,104,869,300.

Forests and forest products $100,000,000; products in storage, $100,000,000; insect-borne diseases of man, $150,000,000; damage to domestic animals, $100,000,000; grand total, $1,554,869,300.

MAJORITY OF INSECTS HELPFUL TO MAN.

As against over 7,000 deaths per year due to railroad accidents there are 97,200 deaths each year in this country due to malaria and intestinal diseases, spread by insect carriers. And while in the whole Spanish War only 300 men were killed by Spanish bullets, 5,000 died of fly-borne diseases. Yet the great majority of insects are either harmless or beneficial to man.

Although we are able to determine the damage done by insects it is impossible to calculate the benefits they confer. Practically no fruits could be formed without the blossom-pollinating aid of insects, and in the production of a harvest, insects, especially bees, of course, dwarf into insignificance all modern implements of husbandry.

It would be impossible to get a single crop of red clover without the aid of insects, and the present scarcity of bumble bees, who usually perform this service, is making itself felt in the smaller crops and lower vitality of the clover seed.

Their importance in this connection was realized in Australia and the Philippine Islands, which imported bumble bees for the sake of their clover crops. Figs could not be successfully grown in this country until a fig pollinating insect was imported from the Mediterranean countries.

A great majority of the beautiful flowers depend on insects for the development of their seed.

CENSUS BUREAU'S NOTE TO FARM MORTGAGE TABLE.

While the figures given above relative to the number of mortgaged farms in the United States include the farms operated by part owners—that is, farms whose owners hired some additional land—the figures representing the amount of the mortgage debt relate only to those farms which consisted wholly of land owned by the operator.

This limitation was made necessary by the difficulty of ascertaining the value of that part of the farm which was covered by the mortgage, where the farmer owned a part of the farm and hired a part of it.

OWNERSHIP OF MORTGAGED FARMS.

The total number of farms reported as mortgaged in 1920 (1,461,306) comprised 1,217,234 farms operated by full owners and 244,072 farms operated by part owners.

The number of farms operated by full owners for which the amount of mortgage debt was reported in 1920 was 1,193,047, as compared with 1,006,511 in 1910.

The amount of the farm mortgage debt reported was $4,008,767,192 in 1920, as against $1,726,172,851 in 1910.

INCREASE IN MORTGAGE DEBT.

The amount of debt thus increased $2,277,594,341, or 131.9 per cent., while the value of the mortgaged farms increased 117.6 per cent. during the decade.

The value of the farms for which the amount of the mortgage debt was reported in 1920 was $13,775,500,013.

The debt therefore represented 29.1 per cent. of the value, as compared with 27.3 per cent. in 1910.

The average rate of interest paid on farm mortgages in the United States in 1920 was 6.1 per cent.

IRRIGATION IN THE UNITED STATES.

THE climatic conditions having the largest influence in determining the necessity for irrigation are the amount and seasonable distribution of precipitation, particularly rainfall, while wind movement and relative humidity also have an influence.

In that part of the United States lying east of the arid and semi-arid States the normal annual precipitation exceeds 25 inches and is so distributed throughout the year as to provide sufficient moisture for the growing of general farm crops. In this section short periods of drought occur sufficiently often to make irrigation desirable for such crops as truck and small fruits, which may be damaged to a large extent by lack of moisture for even short periods, although the irrigation of these crops is not general. Seasons with too little rainfall for the proper growth of general crops occur, but not sufficiently often to justify making provision for irrigation.

Arkansas, Louisiana, and Eastern Texas have a normal annual precipitation of from 40 to 50 inches, which is ample for all crops except rice. It is necessary to keep water standing on rice fields during most of the growing period of this crop, and for this the rainfall is not sufficient. Irrigation in this section is practically confined to the rice fields.

THE SEMI-ARID REGION.

The States of North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Western Texas lie in the so-called semi-arid region, and have a normal annual precipitation varying from about 15 inches at their western boundaries to about 25 or more inches at their eastern boundaries. In this section success in growing crops without irrigation varies from year to year according to the amount and distribution of the rainfall, and the practice of irrigation advances eastward and recedes to the west with periods of deficient or excessive rainfall.

The same condition exists on the plains in the eastern parts of Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, and New Mexico. Here crops are grown on the high plains without irrigation, with varying success, while irrigation is generally practised in the stream valleys.

The main ranges of the Rocky Mountains extend through Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, and New Mexico. On the high mountains the precipitation, particularly snowfall, is heavy, while in the valleys between the ranges the precipitation is light and irrigation is necessary for the growing of most crops.

THE REAL ARID REGION.

West of the Sierra Nevada and between them and the Sierra Nevada and Cascade Mountains and extending from the Mexican boundary to Central Idaho is the real arid region of the United States. Here the normal annual precipitation varies from about 2 inches in Southwestern Arizona and South-eastern California to about 8 inches in Southern Idaho. In this section, comprising the larger parts of Arizona, Nevada, and Utah, and considerable parts of California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho almost no crops can be grown in the valleys without irrigation. On the higher lands in Arizona, Utah, Idaho, Oregon, and Washington the precipitation is greater and grain and forage crops are grown without irrigation. Northern Idaho, Northwestern Montana, and Northeastern Washington receive sufficient precipitation for growing crops without irrigation.

West of the Sierra Nevada and Cascade Mountains there is a great variation in rainfall. The western coast of Washington and Oregon receives the heaviest precipitation of any part of the United States, but there is a dry period in the late summer, during which irrigation is desirable for crops which make their growth during this period. Irrigation is practised to a limited extent for pastures, vegetables, and fruits.

IN CALIFORNIA.

Throughout California there is a well-defined wet season in the winter months, and an equally well-defined dry season in summer. Most of the northern part of the State receives sufficient rainfall to mature crops if it were distributed throughout the year, but the growing of crops in late summer requires irrigation. On the other hand, most of the southern part of the State receives less moisture than is usually considered necessary for crop growing, but the concentration of the year's precipitation in the winter and spring makes it possible to mature crops where it would not be possible were the rainfall more widely distributed throughout the year.

MILK AND BUTTER PRODUCED AND USED IN THE U. S.

(Data and estimates are by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.)

The total production of milk in the United States was 98,862,276,000 lbs. in 1921. This shows increase over 1920, when production was 89,658,000,000 lbs. On the basis of production per capita of population this amounted to an increase from 100 gals. (860 lbs.) in 1920 to 107 gals. in 1921.

Milk cows on farms increased 341,000 head during 1921, there being 24,028,000 head on Jan. 1, 1922, compared with 23,594,000 head on Jan. 1, 1921, with an average for the year of 23,811,000 head. In addition, the number of milk cows not on farms was estimated at 1,260,000.

A very great increase in the quantity of creamery butter manufactured occurred during 1921, the total production for the year being 1,054,938,000 lbs., an increase over 1920 of 191,360,000 lbs. The total production of farm and factory butter, exclusive of whey butter, for the year 1921 is estimated to have amounted to 1,705,438,000 lbs., notwithstanding the regular decrease in production of farm butter. This increase of 166,361,000 lbs. in total butter production accounts for the utilization of an additional 3,494,000,000 lbs. of milk during 1921 over the previous year.

Although there was a small decrease in the total production of cheese from 362,431,000 lbs. in 1920 to 355,838,000 lbs. in 1921, the production of whole milk American cheese alone increased from 254,684,000 lbs. to 261,727,000 lbs. during this period. Condensed and evaporated milk production decreased 113,852,000 lbs. during 1921, dropping from 1,578,015,000 lbs. in 1920 to 1,464,163,000 lbs. Milk powder production also declined from 10,334,000 lbs. in 1920 to 4,243,000 lbs. in 1921.

The increase in the amount of whole milk used for household purposes during 1921, approximating 5,000,000,000 lbs., accounts for the largest share of the total increase over 1920 in the consumption of milk. The average consumption of milk and cream in cities was obtained from reports from 300 cities with a total population of 33,676,563, nearly one-third of the population of the United States. On the basis of this survey, the average quantity of whole milk consumed per person in the cities was estimated at 0.668 of a pint daily, and, in addition, the consumption of cream accounted for the utilization of 0.167 of a pint of milk, making a total equivalent to 0.835 of a pint of whole milk.

Combining the rural and urban consumption, the average per capita consumption of whole milk as milk and cream for household purposes was 1.08 pints daily. This is equal to 49 gals. of milk annually, which is the largest annual per capita consumption on record in this country.

Ice cream production, as indicated by reports from manufacturers, decreased 6% in 1921 compared with 1920. Applying this rate of decrease to the estimated total production of 260,000,000 gals. in 1920, the 1921 production is estimated at 244,000,000 gals.
